INTRODUCTORY.

TO THE GENEALOGICAL STUDENT,

WHOEVER and wherever and whenever he may be, this collection is DEDICATED; and to avoid Labor, I venture, instead of writing a formal PREFACE, to supply its place by reprinting the following from the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, vol. xxxiii., April, 1879, which, by allowing for the changes that have taken place, must answer the purpose.

The following Address was delivered at the first re-union of the Selden family, which took place in Fenwick Grove, Saybrook, Ct., on the 22d of August, 1877. This meeting was presided over by the Hon. Morrison Remick Waite, LL.D., Chief Justice of the United States, whose mother was Maria (Selden) Waite, daughter of the Hon. Richard Ely and Desire (Colt) Selden of Hadlyme, Ct. The proceedings at this family gathering were varied and interesting.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN :

By reason of being one-half Selden—and that my "better half"—I am asked to address you on this occasion. Of all men, the original average New Englander relied least upon adventitious and extraneous aids in making his way in the world. He cared little what his own name was and less what was his father's name, and as to his grandfather, it related to a matter in an antiquity too remote to be of any special interest, so far, at least, as any substantial aid was to come to him through a knowledge of this subject. This wholly self-reliant race at the very beginning took especial care to abjure titles and hereditary privileges. Primogeniture carried with it nothing in law and little in social practice. Every man was a man, if at all, on his own attainment, and no thanks to ancestry or birth that he knew of.

With this character and under these conditions, the study into the genealogy and history of families became a matter of indifference not only, but one of positive unpopularity. The fear of appearing aristocratic stood in the way of a proper inquiry concerning, and any publicly expressed regard for, one's own ancestry. Under these circumstances, it is simply wonderful that there should be preserved in the town and church records of New England, so much, to render possible, at the present day, the authentic tracing of pedigrees and the compilation of genealogies, reaching back to the immigrant progenitors of present families.*

Fortunately there have arisen and become recognized a set of motives more pure and noble than those which were formerly supposed to be active in this direction. If merely family pride—the love of distinction—or the hopeless search after some apocryphal "fortune in England," were the cause and purpose, the end and aim of genealogical inquiries, we should continue to treat the whole matter with total indifference. But when heredity, and through it self-knowledge, is the subject of investigation—when the inheritance of physical, intellectual and moral traits, instead of the inheritance of property, becomes the object of study and search, the pursuit is at once invested with the dignity of a Philosophy. Add to these the cultivation of a rational reverence for what is good and true, virtuous and noble in the characters of our fathers, and we reach one of the most elevating and beautiful sources of personal and social improvement.

I can readily conceive with what anxiety Mr. John Farner, then corresponding secretary of the New Hampshire Historical Society, on the 6th of October, 1829, entered for copyright his "Genealogical Register of the First Settlers of New England." This work, a modest volume of 350 pages, has, beyond a doubt, been instrumental in arousing a laudable curiosity and stimulating a praiseworthy activity in genealogical pursuits.

* This is more specially true since Revolutionary times, for in earlier times more attention was given to the subject.

The attention of individuals and of families became slowly turned to these pursuits and investigations, but many who would otherwise have become interested in them were deterred by the fear of ridicule and the danger of having their motives either misunderstood or misconstrued; and I am not quite sure that the same danger and the same fear do not still exist in many quarters. Year after year, however, the establishment of local historical societies has gone on, investigations have begotten investigations, "notes and queries" have multiplied, and the press, that great engine of moral power, has added its sanction to historical and genealogical pursuits as a potent element in general improvement, and as an important adjunct to a higher civilization.

In the year 1844, the "New England Historic, Genealogical Society" was organized in the city of Boston. At that time a very few, only, genealogies of American families had been published or printed. The first known was a pamphlet of 24 pages, printed in 1771. "Prior to 1847," says Hoyt, "but thirty genealogies or family pedigrees had been printed, and these for the most part were very limited in extent and inferior in character." "Since 1847, or during the last thirty years, the number of genealogies more or less extended and complete, that have been printed, is nearly six hundred, of which by far the greater number were produced in New England."

Parallel with the increase of genealogical publications, histories of New England towns have appeared, each class of work largely aiding the other. Of such town histories there were published but forty-one previous to 1845, while since that date about one hundred and twenty-five have been published, and there are many more in preparation. In other parts of the country, also, genealogies and town, church, and local histories are multiplying.

In the year 1846, the New England Historic, Genealogical Society made arrangements for the publication, under its auspices, of the New England Historical and Genealogical Register. The first number was issued on the 5th day of February, 1847, thirty years ago, and not one of its quarterly numbers has failed to make its appearance with reasonable promptness. Having been a member of that society many years, and a subscriber to and reader of the Register from its commencement to the present time, I cannot let this opportunity pass without giving testimony, as emphatically as is in my power, to the inestimable value of the labors of the Society, and to the priceless worth of the treasures contained in the Register.

In 1846, also, Royal R. Hinman commenced the publication at Hartford, in numbers, of "A Catalogue of the names of the first Puritan settlers of the Colony of Connecticut." This publication was especially useful to collectors and students for the State of Connecticut. Ten years later, in 1856, was published "Genealogical Notes, or Contributions to the Families of First Settlers," mainly of Connecticut. This work was a selection from the "Genealogical Notes" of the then late Nathaniel Goodwin, prepared by himself, but published after his death; and it has proved of great service to many in pursuit of genealogical data. "Goodwin's Notes" was followed, in 1860-62, by the great work of the Hon. James Savage, "The Genealogical Dictionary of New England." For all who interest themselves in genealogical pursuits, this work is not only a constant resort, but a perpetual wonder. The ground it covers and the labor its compilation required, are simply astonishing. Though not always accurate absolutely, it is amazingly so considering its extent; consisting as it does of four octavo volumes in solid page and much condensed by the use of abbreviations. I quote the closing paragraph of Mr. Savage's preface to show very plainly the interest already, twenty-two years ago, taken in genealogical studies in New England:

"A very extensive catalogue of gentlemen," says he, "that might be traced by one of more than half-a-dozen ladies, could here be supplied, were it useful to mention the smaller as well as the greater contributors to these sheets. To Goodwin, Bond, Harris, father and son, Kingsley, Abbott, Day, Shattuck, Lunt and Kilbourne, of the respectable file who have passed out of active service, it would not be easy to state the respective portions of indebtedness; nor could I specify the ratio of benefit derived in my pages from the benevolence of the living Babson, Boltwood, Brayton, Bubington, Clapp, Day, Edwards, Felt, Fiold, Herrick, Hoadley, Jackson, Judd, Kelley, King, Kellogg, Lincoln, Locke, Otis, Paige, Patterson, Riker, Sargent, Sewell, Shurtleff, R. D. Smith of Gailford, Staples, Vinton, Wentworth, Whitmore, Willard, Wymon and twice as many more. Not one of the living or dead could complain of my declaration, that from the distinguished antiquary of Northampton the acquisition exceeds that of any other ten contributors."

You will at once recognize the identity of Mr. Sylvestre Judd with the "distinguished antiquary of Northampton." I can appreciate the justness of this compliment on the part of Mr. Savage, as I know from personal correspondence, the rare attainments in genealogical lore, the ever patient and gentlemanly kindness, and the remarkable and conscientious accuracy of the lamented Judd of Northampton.

We have thus hastily glanced at the gradual but very marked growth of interest in genealogical pursuits, and named a few of the instruments put into our hands by industrious, patient, and painstaking men to aid us in this class of studies and investigations. The genealogical dictionaries, the one hundred and sixty-five town histories, the six hundred genealogies, the thirty volumes of The Historical and Genealogical Register, the transactions, historical collections and publications of this character, are open and accessible to the genealogical student or author. Many of these works we have in our own libraries, and if not there they can be found in public libraries ready for consultation; and to one who considers how, in the absence of the rights of primogeniture and an aristocracy of any kind, New England families have intermarried, it is not surprising that almost every book of this description which is examined, throws some light upon the history of the family which may for the time be the subject of investigation. No genealogy can safely be thought complete, until the compiler has made himself familiar with the main body of the works in question.

The fine fruits of genealogical studies are year by year ripening and falling into our hands in the form of new publications, and it is pleasing to observe that literary and artistic tastes are no longer shocked in this class of works. The wretched caricatures called portraits, the lithographic ghosts of earlier publications, must be succeeded by fine engravings, which, if they accidentally fall in likeness, will give at least the idea of the "human form divine." The forms also of genealogical records are improved, so that it is possible, as it was not in earlier works, to trace a line through several generations without bringing our Yankee faculty of guessing into constant requisition. There is, however, in this connection, an opportunity for an improvement which I hope to see adopted. It consists of a proper provision in the form of record for the possible regular completion in writing of any branch of a family, necessarily for any reason left incomplete at the time of printing, and for the addition of the families of the future. In this manner a copy of a family record could, in any branch, still be made perfect for a half century, or indeed a much longer period, without the necessity of a reprint.

With a family record of this description, the descendant in any line in the far future would find himself possessed not only of a history of his lineage in the past, but brought down to the then present. And every passing year would add to its incalculable preciousness in the family; and if ever a new edition should be desired, how ready at hand would be the material, gathered as it might be from the various branches of the family. Let us not think or act, devise or labor for ourselves alone, but so frame our thoughts and so execute, if it may be, that future generations may "arise and call us blessed." If our reward be anywhere, it is in the far future.

Accuracy in names, dates and facts is the very first requirements of a good family record. Some works of this kind show wonderful patience and industry, and at the same time fail in accuracy, arising from imperfect information, careless writing and especially careless proof-reading. The "Genealogy of the Strong Family," by Dwight, is somewhat open to criticism, for instance. To illustrate—in that work, into which a portion of my own family was unnecessarily introduced by reason of my paternal grandmother having been a Strong, my eldest brother, poor fellow, was made to lose his beautiful and amiable wife many years ago, by death, while in fact she is still living, and as amiable as ever. Not content with this, the author caused my suffering brother to marry his mother-in-law, who at the alleged date of the marriage, had herself been some time dead. So he, wretched man, will go down to posterity as the "only inhabitant" ever found equal to such a piece of temerity as that of marrying his mother-in-law. Errors perpetuate not only, but multiply themselves; and there is no branch or subject of investigation in which accuracy is more necessary or more difficult of attainment.

I will detain you only to allude to the original sources of information in genealogical pursuits. It is certainly fortunate for us that so many valuable works have been published as time-saving aids. Fortunate that so many gentlemen of antiquarian tastes have been willing, in almost every case without reward, and in most instances without the hope of or wish for reward, to devote time and money to such pursuits, and have given us the results. For it should be understood that literary labor of this description rarely, if ever, pays. The circle of purchasers is too limited, and the interest in any one work far from general. Town histories and genealogies have mainly to rely upon the public spirit of citizens, or the liberality of some wealthy member or members of a family. The means, however, by which these works have been put within our reach, is immaterial, so long as we have them; but they are only as a "drop in the bucket" to the great ocean of original unpublished records of our towns and churches and courts of probate, and the monumental treasures of our cemeteries—these let us learn more and more to prize, to examine, and to preserve. How sad to read that in such and such a town, at about such a time, the original records "were totally destroyed by fire." Utterly irrestorable! And it is only surprising that this story is not more frequently to be told!

I well remember that on the 15th day of June, 1853, a quarter of a century ago, I enjoyed the hospitality, at Lyme, across the river, of the Hon. Henry M. Waite, the honored father of a rightfully honored son, your President of the day. After resting at his house, he kindly took me on a drive to the house of the person who had in custody the records of the town, or church, or both. Exactly who he was, or where he lived, I do not remember. But I do remember that the record books which we examined were kept in a small cupboard built in the finish of the woodwork about the large fireplace, either over the oven or on the opposite side from the oven,—a place admirably fitted to secure the destruction of the records by fire.

About the same time I visited other towns—Stratford, Saybrook, Farmington, etc.—and I have never lost the impression that the preservation of the town and church records in New England bordered very closely on the line of miracles. One of the most salutary effects of the historical and genealogical revival is the action being taken in many towns towards the safe keeping of the public records. Old Stratford, for instance, which twenty years ago had a small box called a safe, in a small wooden building, has now large fire-proof brick and iron vaults, built into a new and commodious brick building. So of Fairfield, and I have no doubt of many other towns. But the church records I have reason to think are as much exposed as ever, being in no safer place than under an elder's or deacon's arm, in the minister's hat, or in the "cupboard over the oven."

Let the good work of preserving the records go on, and let it be supplemented by a careful preservation of the monuments in your cemeteries—or, in other phrase, the tombstones in your grave-yards! New England is full of them. The inscriptions on these stones will doubtless never be published, except in rare instances. Resort must be had to them in the places where they stand. Would that there were in every parish some "Old Mortality," who, with mallet and chisel, would see to the re-touching of these silent mementoes of buried generations. It would almost seem that the wisest of men must have passed by some of our grave-yards before writing that description of the "field of the stolid." "Lo! it was all grown over with thorns, nettles had covered the face thereof, and the stone wall thereof was broken down." Let us "look upon them and receive instruction," rebuild those walls, and exterminate the nettles and the thorns! If

"All that tread
The globe are but a handful to the tribes
That slumber in its bosom,"

then the simple rule of "the majority" would demand that the homes of the dead be made beautiful and attractive. Let no one say of this burial place or of that, "Ah, well! there is no one of note buried there." This is the old chronic trouble of History itself. History is not an honest witness. She may tell "the truth, and nothing but the truth," but she does not tell the "whole truth." She sees only the mountain peaks in the landscape, and this is less than half sight. The spire of Trinity, the dome of St. Peter's, could not stand, could not have been built, without first those deep and wholly obscure and hidden foundations. To rescue from utter oblivion the names of those on whose patience, industry, honesty and virtue, the very superstructure of society is built, and the celebrity of great names founded, and by which these are made possible, is the beautiful and delightful work of the genealogist and the local historian. We owe a debt of gratitude (and here I give cognovit to that effect) to many individuals in this neighborhood: Cotbren of Woodbury, Andrews of New Britain, Huntington of Stamford, Miss Caulkins of Norwich, Dr. Davis of Meriden, Timlow of Southington, Boyd of Winchester, Chapman of Rocky Hill, Hoadly of Hartford, Dr. Field, Messrs. Bronson, Dodd, Chapin, Chipman, Hall, Phelps, Stiles and Miss Shelton, some of whom have gone where we must follow, leaving their "foot-prints on the sands of time."

The subject of heraldry and heraldic devices as connected with genealogy, has, perhaps deservedly, received little attention, for which there are many reasons. So few of the immigrant families were actually entitled to the use of "armorial bearings," and so many who were so entitled cared not for their use on this side the water, that the evidences of eminent birth or great achievement on the part of some remote ancestor were neglected, and achievement itself substituted for its sign. If we care not for ancestry itself, why should we care for its insignia? What we need most in this country is an aristocracy of Honesty, and then that the whole body of the people should belong to that aristocracy.

The New England Historic, Genealogical Society, some time since, organized a standing committee on heraldry, but it is probable that under the rules they have established, very few Americans at the present time will sport "Coats of Arms," except, perhaps, much as they would use a "trade mark," in which they are now protected by law. It is to be regretted that so small a proportion of New Englanders can trace and show an authentic connection with the English families from which they sprung, or even decide, without serious doubt, from what county or parish in England the immigrant ancestor came. There was something as between churchmen and non-conformists and Puritans, which affected the parish records of England as to the latter class, making it less easy to arrive at the facts in this behalf.

Col. Joseph L. Chester, a very accurate and accomplished antiquary, formerly of Philadelphia, now and for many years in London, writes me that absolute proofs of this kind are very difficult to make, and cites, as an example, his own case. For I think the last seventeen years he has been searching to discover the original seat and the name of the progenitor of the first Chester emigrant to America, and has so far failed. On this subject a vast deal of assumption and wild guessing have gotten themselves incorporated into history.

More assuming and still less tangible is the inquiry into possible origin and literal significations of our surnames. It was a self-question of my early boyhood, never yet answered, "How came the first Hawley to be called Hawley, and what, if anything, does the word mean?" And now I ask how the first Selden happened to be called Selden, and what, if anything, did the word mean? A very ingenious book has recently been published on the origin, etymology and signification of surnames; but I believe there is in it imagination enough, if properly treated, to make an Iliad and an Aeneid, an Inferno and a Don Quixote. Our names came from England. England was our "Mother Country" (An unnatural mother at times!) If England was our mother country, what, pray, was our grandmother country? England had, so to speak, many mothers—the Angles, the Saxons, the Danes, the Normans, besides the original inhabitants, savage enough, worshipping with bloody rites under the oaks. From which of these sprang the Seldons?

The Hawleys, I regret to say, as appears from the "Roll of Battle Abbey," came to England from Normandy, with that wretched filibustering crew, led by William the Conqueror, in 1066. A worse set of scoundrels never robbed a nation, or spoiled half so ruthlessly. Wholesale pillagers! Gigantic bunniers! I have searched in vain for the name of Selden as connected with that mammoth expedition of robbers, and am heartily glad I cannot find it there!

But I follow this no further, as you may soon learn all about this question from other lips.

Out of the distant, dim and shadowy past
Our names and families arise at last,
And moving on, as fleets move on the sea;
Their voyage Time, their port Eternity!

I thank you for listening to this rambling and incoherent talk. I never was so happy as to be coucise.

He who cares not for ancestry is not fit to be cared for by Posterity! Not at all, then, subscribing to the sentiment of "one of our own poets," in his "Psalm of Life:"

"Trust no future, how'er pleasant,
Let the dead Past bury its dead;
Act! Act in the living Present!"

I give you a broader sentiment, "The Past, the Present and the Future!" Knowing you will, with one accord, join me in A PSALM OF THE TENSES.

THE PAST.
We heard the tread of Nations, tramping blithly through the ages,—
Heard the stifled cry of millions—conquered, heroes, fools and sages,— Read stories of dead Centuries—History's dim and fading pages,— While Time was "marching on!"

THE PRESENT.
We see Religion's conflicts and War's terrible mutilations,—
See advances and regresses, see contentions and transitions,
And Humanity's great struggle toward loftier conditions,
For Man is "marching on!"

THE FUTURE.
And We shall know hereafter of the triumphs of the Race,—
The ultimate reach of Science, and the victories of Grace,
As we leave the finite journals of Earth and Time and Space!
Life forever "marches on!"

"WHAT'S IN A NAME?"

I remember very well, when quite a lad, having speculated, as doubtless most children do, as to why one man was called HAWLEY and another SMITH. The question "How came the first man who was called Hawley to be so called?" was one of profound import, and one which I cannot now answer, of course, any more certainly than in boyhood. It may be harmless if not satisfactory to say, that when this inquiry was quite a new one comparatively, I supposed and hoped that the name was of Saxon origin. This opinion was fortified by the highly imaginative conclusions as follows:

ley, leag, says, ley, scottish written lea, ley, n.s. Day, lee, lay — are all from the Saxon leag, a field, a pasture, by the usual melting of the letter z. or g.
 Haw n.s. Baz says, 1. the berry and seed of the Hawthorn. 2. An ex-cuse in the eye. [3. Bazza says, hav, a garden, Danish] a small piece of ground adjoining a house, in Scotland they call it, haugh.

I thought this all very pretty and quite the thing, until I found later that if the first man of our family got his name in this fashion in Saxondom, he must have emigrated early to Normandy. In Thierry's "Norman Conquest" are to be found as appendices two or three versions of the "Roll of Battle Abbey." No. xii (vol. i, page 417). "Ancient List of the Conquerors of England, published by Andre Duchesne from a Charter in Battle Abbey," contains among others the names HANSARD, HASTINGS, HAULAY, etc. Also in "Another list from Leland," which is in the form of rude couplets, appear

"HASTINGS et HAULLEY, MENEVILLE et MAULLEY," etc.

Hence, while mistrusting somewhat my Saxon devices, it may well be imagined with what chagrin I saw myself a Norman; especially when I quote Thierry's language describing the most wretched lot of filibusters that ever left their own or attacked a neighboring country. He says, possibly with some French prejudice (vol. i, p. 161):

"One subscribed for ships, another for armed soldiers, others promised to march in person; priests gave money, merchants merchandise, peasants their goods.

"Presently, after this, the consecrated banner and the bull, authorizing the invasion of England, arrived from Rome, which greatly increased the popular ardour; every one bought what he could; mothers sent their sons to enrol their names for the salvation of their souls. William published his ban in the neighbouring countries; he offered good pay and the pillage of England to every able man who would serve him with lance, sword or cross-bow. A multitude accepted the invitation, coming by every road, far and near, from north and south. They came from Maine and Anjou, from Poitou and Brittany, from France and Flanders, Aquitaine and Burgundy, from the Alps and the banks of the Rhine. All the professional adventurers, all the military vagabonds of Western Europe hastened to Normandy, by long marches; some were knights and chiefs of war, the others simple foot-soldiers and sergeants of arms, as they were then called; some demanded money-pay, others only their passage and all the booty they might make. Some asked for land in England, a domain, a castle, a town; others simply required some rich Saxon in marriage. Every thought, every desire of human avarice presented itself. William rejected no one, says the Norman chronicle, and satisfied every one as well as he could."

At page 197 of the same volume, we find the following:

"Another catalogue of the conquerors of England, long preserved in the treasury of Battle Abbey, contained names singularly low and fantastic, as Bouvillain and Boutevillain, Trousselot and Troussabout, L'Engayne and Lougue Epee, Cil-de-beuf and Front-de-beuf. . . . Lastly, several authentic docu-

HAW [old Saxon] in the North of England means "a green plot in a valley," and it is also used to mean "a small field" or garden connected with the house, as they say pea-haw, meaning pea-field. It is also the fruit or berry of the haw-thorn. LEY—is a field which is laid down to grass or sward; it is also a song. (See Ree's and the London Encyclopedias.)

This looked to my fancy like the name of a man who was happy enough to be singing while at work in the field, and that so habitually as to warrant his neighbors in calling him Field-singer or Field-song. Besides, I found in Gibson's "Camden" that ments designate as Norman Knights in England, a Guillaume le charretier, a Hugues le tailleur, a Guillaume le tambour; and among the surnames of the chivalry collected from every corner of Gaul figure a great many mere names of towns and districts—Saint-Quentin, Saint-Maur, Saint-Denis, Saint-Malo, Tournai, Verdun, Fismes, Chalons, Chateaux, Etampes, Rochefort, La Rochelle, Cahors, Champagne, Gascoigne. . . .

"Such were the men who assumed in England the titles of nobleman and gentleman, and planted it there by force of arms for themselves and their descendants.

"The mere valet of the Norman man-at-arms, his groom, his lancebearer, became gentleman on the soil of England; they were all at once nobles by the side of the Saxon, once rich and noble himself, but now bonding beneath the sword of the foreigner, driven from the home of his ancestors, having nowise to lay his head."

This, then, seems to be the desperate and detestable crowd of the Eleventh Century (1066) in which the name first appears. Doubtless this disreputable crew furnished the ancestors of many a man who, in later times and under higher culture and finer influences, has become truly noble; but any one will be slow, after reading the foregoing descriptions, in attempting to extract from such a source food for aristocratic pride.

But then again came a letter from my esteemed correspondent, Mr. Christopher E. Hawley of Binghamton, N. Y., containing among other interesting matter the following paragraph which shows that his mind has been running in the direction of the origin of our name:

"1875. Newbrook.—Our English Surnames!—says: 'John Hawley is named in Calendar of Proceedings in Chancery [Elizabeth] . . . Hay or hawe—a hedge; hence, de la Haye, de la Hagh. Of simple root comes Hay, Hayes, Haynes, Hawes; composite forms very numerous: Roundhay, Lyndshay, Haywood, Heywood, [Hayward], Hayland, Hayley. From

"Haw, we have Hawley, Hworth, Hawton, Houghton, and probably Featherstonhugh. We still talk of the Hawthorn and Haw-haw—Chaucer uses the term for a farm-yard or garth—Chirchay or Chircheyay. Chaucer speaks of the church-hawe as churchyard.' There are other variations, and I believe there is a village in Co. Kent, England, called 'Hageleigh,' which is recognized as a variation of Hawley."

This, again, looks toward a Saxon origin; but I am quite satisfied that if the name were originally Saxon, its proprietor or his ancestor left his country (possibly "for his country's good"), and having before emigrated to the continent, in due time joined the motley army of the Conqueror, and came again across the channel in the capacity of an invader and Norman.

THE ENGLISH HAWLEYS.

But whatever may be the etymology or meaning of the name or wherever it may have originated, the earliest account of a family by this name which has come to my knowledge is the following, in a work entitled "The Peerage of Ireland, etc.," printed in London in 1768, in two vols. 8vo., with no author's name in the title, but understood to be entirely authentic; indeed I believe so pronounced by Sir Bernard Burke himself. The article is in vol. ii. at page 175, and is illustrated by a lithographed copy of Coat of Arms, printed with others in the first volume of the work, of which the accompanying engraving is an exact copy. A veritable Heraldic copy of this shield, but with different crest, was sent me, through a friend, by Sir Bernard Burke, it is said, "drawn by himself," and with the assurance from him that it is the same as was borne by the early Derbyshire Hawleys; an exact copy of which is herewith given in proper colors.

I need not say that I do not "take much stock" in Heraldry or Heraldic devices, especially when the same are sought for as illustrative of the history of American families; still it would not be quite honest in me to deny any interest in the subject as connected with our own history. I therefore give an accurate copy of the Coat of Arms of the Hawley family of Derbyshire, printed in chromo-lithograph. This may by possibility become at some future day important as leading to the identification of the English and American branches of the family. At most it is not perhaps a bad "Trade Mark."

Letter Accompanying the Arms of the Hawleys of Derbyshire.

PRIMROSE HILL, LUCAN, CO. DUBLIN,
Jan'y 16, 1875.

Dear Mr. Hawley:

I feel very great pleasure in informing you that I have succeeded in obtaining from Sir Bernard Burke a beautiful sketch of the Arms of the Hawley family of Derbyshire, of which you are a member. Sir Bernard has acted with great kindness to me in the matter, for he has drawn the sketch (which I now send you by this post) with his own hand, as I told him I did not wish to put you to any expense respecting it. It is also highly satisfactory to you to have those Arms from the recognized officer of the Crown in Ireland.

You can now have them engraved on your plate, your seal, carriages, etc., and always use them.

I wrote to my son Charles, who is still at the University, Glasgow, informing him I had gotten your Arms from Sir B.

With Sir Bernard Burke's best compts.

Burke. He was greatly pleased to hear of my success in the matter, and desired me to forward them to you, which I do by this post.

I send you, also, Sir Bernard's own handwriting which accompanied the Arms to me, giving his best compliments, and sealed with his official seal from Dublin Castle.

I will conclude by saying that I feel great satisfaction in having succeeded for you in a family matter in which you naturally felt a very deep interest. I will be glad to have a few lines from you at your leisure, saying that the sketch of the Arms has safely reached you.

Believe me, dear Mr. Hawley,

Yours very sincerely,

ROBERT J. MULLINS.

Hawley Family of Somerset and Derbyshire.

Copy verbatim of the account of the family as given in "The Peerage of Ireland, etc.," above alluded to:

no Hawley, Lord Hawley

This family has long been seated in the counties of Dorset, Somerset and Derby; and of the last county was Robert de Hawley, father of Sir William, father of another Sir William, of Erisby, father of Thomas of the same place, father of John Hawley of Banbridge, whose only daughter and heir, Anne, was wife of Thomas, second son of Sir Thomas Blount, living temp. Hen. IV. [1399-1413].

Walter de Hauleigh or Hawley (sic) was member in Parliament for Shaftsbury, in Dorsetshire, in 1377, 1 Rich. II. and to the 9th of that reign inclusive. Francis Hawley, Esq., was member for Corfe-castle in 2, 7, 28, and 30 Eliz., in 26th of whose reign Gabriel Hawley was sheriff of the county of Somerset. From Francis Hawley above mentioned descended Sir Francis Hawley of Buckland-house, in Somersetshire, who in 1642 raised a troop of horse, at his own expense, for the service of Charles I., who, in reward of his merits, created him a baronet, and baron Hawley. In 1671, he was elected to Parliament for St. Michael's, in Cornwall; in 1673, was gentleman of the bedchamber to James, Duke of York; died Dec. 22, 1684, aged 76, and was succeeded by his grandson, Francis, son of his son Francis, by his wife Gertrude, daughter of Richard Gethyngs, of the county of Cork, Esq., who also had issue, another son Richard (who by Jane, daughter of Mr. Harbin of Somersetshire, had issue Richard, Elizabeth and Mary), and a daughter Catharine, second wife of Robert Napier of Punknoll, in the

He died January 31, 1755. The daughters were Rachael, Elizabeth and Gertrude. His lordship died May 30, 1743, and was succeeded by his eldest son, Francis, the third and present [1768, the date of the book] Lord Hawley, who is lieutenant-governor of Antigua, and in December, 1751, took his seat in the house of Peers. Hawley Family of Kent.

In the year 1843, I was at Saratoga Springs, for the purpose of being examined for admission to practice in the then Court of Chancery: Walworth, chancellor, and Barbor, clerk. I was waiting in the chancellor's library for a hearing, and amused myself by looking at the books. I opened some work, the title of which I did not notice, and found it to be an account of English families, and among the rest found the name of Hawley, but took no special note of it at the time. I was examined, admitted to practice, took my diploma and returned to Buffalo.

After a while I wrote to my friend and college mate, Rev. Albert Tracy Chester, who was at the time the young pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Saratoga Springs, describing the above-named book as nearly as I could, and asked him to send me a copy of the Hawley article. Chancellor Walworth belonged to Chester's congregation, and was his personal friend, so that he had no difficulty in finding the book. On the 4th of August, 1843, I received from Chester the following paper, to wit:

[Here was given a pen sketch of a shield and two crests, as described.]

Arms: Vert, a saltire, engrailed, argent.

Crest: A goat's head, with a sprig of holly in the mouth.

Another crest is found in another volume of "Peerage," attached to the same Arms and belonging to the same family. [See crest shown in colored plate.]

The following is a sketch of the character of Sir Joseph Hawley (No. 20 $\frac{1}{2}$, above), printed I think in the New York Spirit of the Times, soon after his decease :

"The Character of a Turfman.

"Sir Joseph Hawley died on the afternoon of April 20, 1875, at his house in Eaton Place, London, from the effects of a paralytic stroke which overtook him abroad, in the August of last year. For the last twelve months or more his health has been rapidly failing, and he was advised last year to take the Marienbad waters. After staying there a month, his courier was seized by serious illness, and Sir Joseph delayed his departure for a fortnight, in the hope that the sick man might recover. Upon the second night after he had left Marienbad, Sir Joseph fell out of bed, struck with paralysis. Despite some flattering and intermittent promise of amendment if not rest red health, his intimate friends entertained but faint hopes for his recovery since he returned to England last Autumn.

"Sir Joseph Hawley was born in the October of 1813, and had therefore not completed his sixty-second year at the time of his lamented death. In a sketch of his career the Daily Telegraph says :

"It required but little intimacy with Sir Joseph for a man of culture to discover that his was no common mind, nor is it by any means impossible that if Mr. J. M. Stanley had not inculturated him at Florence with the virus of horse-racing some five and thirty years ago, Sir Joseph Hawley might have represented his division of the County of Kent, as an ardent Liberal, in Parliament for many a year, or have died possessed of such a gallery of pictures by the old masters as to leave the Vernon or Angerstein collections far in the back-ground. He had a natural taste for acquiring, and fine discrimination in selecting, Italian pictures; nor was his love for books inferior to his artistic appreciation and diagnosis. Few country gentlemen ever possessed a finer library in two departments of literature—to wit: Italian authors and county histories—than that accumulated by Sir Joseph Hawley of Leybourne Grange, and his books, however handsomely bound, were by no means kept for idle show. Sir Joseph was himself an unusually well-read man, and his capacious and retentive memory enabled him to converse upon history and especially upon historical topics with no ordinary accuracy and fullness. So active indeed was his sympathy with pictures and books, that when his love of horse-racing had grown cold, he would talk by the hour about famous painters and sculptors, or about his favorite authors, with such a congenial companion as the late Rev. L. B. Larking. But among the generation of living sportsmen who have passed their fiftieth year, there will be little disposition to deny that Sir Joseph Hawley has written his name as deeply across the scroll of turf history as any member that the Jockey Club ever inscribed upon its lengthy roll. For a quarter of a century and more his name has been a household word wherever the English tongue is spoken, while the British public has successively known him as "the Ban Baronet," the "Kentish Baronet," the "lucky Baronet," and last of all as the "reforming Baronet." That he has impressed his stamp so strongly upon the race and style of our thoroughbred stock may be attributed to the singular intensity of his nature, which made him resemble the cloud of the Poet, "which moveth altogether if it move at all."

"Two-and-thirty years have passed since Sir Joseph was present at the Doncaster race meeting in the September of 1843. It was one of the first meetings that he attended since he had transferred himself, at the instance of his subsequent confederate, Mr. John M. Stanley, from the Italian to the English turf. He was often heard to declare that the experience gained by him at Doncaster, in 1843, exercised no inconsiderable influence upon his future career as an owner of race-horses. Sir Joseph Hawley's triumphs upon the British turf have never been surpassed, even if they have been equaled. They comprise four—and the backers of Poro Gomez, in Pretender's year, would say five—Derbies, one Oaks, one St. Leger, three Ascot Cups, two Doncaster Cups, and one Goodwood Cup, to say nothing of a host of minor victories.

"But the moral of all this success is far more important than its collective amount, and is briefly comprehended in the old saying that "honesty is the best policy." There breathes not a man in England, nor has there ever lived one, who could have said with truth, that upon any occasion Sir Joseph Hawley "spoke to him the thing that is not." He was the most direct, straightforward, and truthful of men, and in all his transactions with his fellows he proved himself emphatically to be a man of his word. Above the grave of none who for more than a quarter of a century have trodden the dangerous and slippery path of the turf, can it be recorded with more truth, that he is an honest, generous, and large-hearted man.¹¹¹

Will of the late [1759] Lieutenant-General Henry Hawley.

I being perfectly well, both in body and mind, knowing that I am writing this my last will, by which I do hereby give, order, and dispose of what is mine, both real and personal, that there may be no dispute after I am gone. Therefore as I began the world with nothing, and as all I have is of my own acquiring, I can dispose of it as I please. But first I direct and order that as there is now a peace, and I may die the common way, my estate may be put anywhere; 'tis equal to me; but I will have no more expense or ridiculous show, than if a poor soldier (who is as good a man) was to be buried in the hospital.

The priest I conclude will have his fee; let the puppy have it. Pay the carpenter for the carriage box. Debts I have none at this time; some very small trifies of course may be; let them be paid; there is wherewithal to do it.

First, then, to my only sister, Anne Hawley, if she survives me, I give and bequeath £5,000 sterling out of the £7,500 which I have at this time in bank annuities of 1738. Be that altered or not, I will give her £5,000 out of what I die worth, to dispose of as she pleases; and this to be made over to her, or paid as soon as possible, after I am dead, a month at most. As to any other relative, I have none who want, and as I never was married, have no heirs. I therefore have long since taken it into my head to adopt one heir, and son, after the manner of the Romans, whom I hereafter name.

But first there is one Mrs. Elizabeth Toovey, mother of this aforesaid adopted son, who has been for many years my friend and companion, and often my careful nurse, and in my absence a faithful steward; she is the person I think myself bound in honor and gratitude to provide for, as well as I can, during her life. I do therefore give and bequeath to the said Eliz. Toovey, widow, all that my freehold estate, houses, out-houses, etc., and all the land thereto belonging, situate at the upper end of West-Green, in the parish of Hartly Wintney, and county of Southampton, which I bought of William Shipway: I likewise give to the said Elizabeth Toovey the lands or farm commonly called Exalls farms, which join to the aforesaid lands bought of William Shipway, and which I bought of Lord Castlemain; I also give her the field adjoining thereto, which I bought of farmer Hellhouse, called the Paddock. I likewise give to the said Elizabeth Toovey, my farm house, other house, and all out-houses, etc., and all the lands thereto belonging, situated at the bottom of West-Green, parish and county aforesaid, which farms, lands, etc., I bought of farmer Hellhouse. I likewise give and bequeath to the said Elizabeth Toovey the great meadow, which I bought of Thomas Ellis, carpenter, or wright, which is commonly called Tillgany; and I give her also the little meadow over against the great one, part of the purchase made of farmer Hellhouse, to her. And I also give to the said Elizabeth Toovey a little lane and farm lately purchased, called Birchen Reach, upon Hasty-head, in the parish of Mattingly, or Hettfield. I likewise give and bequeath to the said Elizabeth Toovey, my house, stables, out-houses, and all the grounds thereto belonging, which I purchased lately of widow Rooke, situate in the parish of St. George's, near Hyde Park-Gate, in the county of Middlesex, she to hold and possess these several houses and estates during her natural life; and then after her decease, I give and bequeath them to her second son, Captain William Toovey, my adopted son and heir (at present a captain in the regiment of Royal Dragoons, under my command), then when his mother dies, and not before, the whole which I have and do give unto her, to come to him, and be his and his heirs forever. And I do direct and require the said Captain William Toovey, that as soon as I am dead, he shall forthwith take upon him both my names, and sign them, by act of Parliament, or otherwise as shall be useful. I do order and appoint that the aforesaid Elizabeth Toovey shall have the use of all my goods, plates, etc., during her natural life, as also the use and interest of all the sums of money I die possessed of in present, as also what shall be due to me from the government, during her natural life, except always the £5,000 which I give to my sister, and what legacies hereafter follow, and debts paid, and my horses and arms exclusive.

I do appoint Captain William Toovey my sole executor and trustee, to see this my will executed punctually, and to act in behalf of my sister, his mother, brother and himself, and to state my accounts with my agents for the time being, and all others concerned.

As to my brother, Lieutenant-Colonel John Toovey, I give and bequeath to him £4,000, out of the money the government owes me, when paid. I also give him all my houses and arms. I also give him up the writings and money, which his brother Captain William Toovey owes me, lest him for his several preferences in the regiment.

I give and bequeath to Elizabeth Barket, Spinster, one hundred pounds as a legacy, she having been a useful, agreeable handmaid to me; but upon this condition, that she never marries Lieutenant-Colonel John Toovey, if she does I give her nothing. Likewise, if Lieutenant-Colonel John Toovey should be fool enough to marry her, Elizabeth Barket, I disannul whatever relates to him and her, and I give nothing either to Lieutenant-Colonel John Toovey or her. And if after all this they should be both fools and marry, I do hereby give (what I had given to them) I say, I give it to my sister Anne Hawley, and her heirs; and order her or them to sue for the same.

I once more appoint Captain William Toovey, my executor and trustee; and I order him to administer; there's no debts will trouble him, or his mother; what there is she will pay; and that he immediately wait on my sister with a copy of this my will, if she survive me; if not, what I give to her is his. In case I have not time to make another will, my house in the Mews, which lease is almost out, my sister has already by my gift.

My house at Charlton I shall sell, so don't mention it. I have no other will but this, which is my last. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal, having writ it all with my own hand, and signed each page; and this I did because I hate all priests of all professions, and I have the worst opinion of all members of the law.

This the 29th of March, 1749.

Letter of Mr. Jerome Hawley to Mr. Sec. Windebanke.[†]Right Honable:

Upon the 20th of March last I took the boldness to present you wth my letters, wherein I gave you a touch of the business of our Assembly, referring yor Honor^e to the general letters sent by Mr. Hemp from the Governor and Councell. Since w^{ch} tyme heare arrived a Dutch ship wth comission from the young Queene of Sweaden, and signed by eight of the Cheife Lordes of Sweden, the coppe whereof I would have taken to send to yor Honor^e, but the Captayne would not pmit me to take any coppe thereof, except he might have free trade for tobacco to carry to Sweaden, w^{ch} being contrary to his Ma^{tie} instructions, the Govern^r excused himself therfore. The shipp remained here about ten dayes to refresh wth wood and water, during w^{ch} tyme the Mr. of said shipp made known that both himself and another shipp of his company were bound for Delaware Baye, w^{ch} is the confines of Virginia and New England, and there they pntend to make a plantation and to plant tobacco, w^{ch} the Dutche do also already in Hudson's River w^{ch} is the very next river northward from Delaware Baye. All w^{ch} being His Ma^{tie} territory, I humbly conceive it may be done by his Ma^{tie} subjects of these parts, making use only of some English ships that resort heather for trade yearly, and be no charge at all to His Ma^{tie}.

I am not yet able to give yor Honor^e so good an account of the state of His Ma^{tie}es revenue here as I desire, in regard it was late in the year before I arrived, and the business of our Assembly hath taken up all my time hetherto, but by the next returns of shipping I shall endeavor to bring things into better order then heretofore they have been, and by that time I hope to make it appear that yor honor^e hath done His Ma^{tie} service in giving him notice of the estate of his revenue in these ports; w^{ch} although I cannot now say it will be great, yet I psume it is so farr considerable as that His Ma^{tie} will not think it fit to be lost, for I doubt not but it will serve to defray the pention w^{ch} His Ma^{tie} is pleased to allowe the Governor yearly, w^{ch} is £1,000 per ann., yf His Ma^{tie} be pleased to employ itt that way; and I hope to improve it daily, as new comers doe increase the plantation, besides His Ma^{tie}es customes from hence will be much better understood then heretofore they have been.

Since my coming to the place of Treasurer, I have discerned some under hand opposition made against me, but little hath appeared in publick, therefore I cannot particularly laye it to any man's charge.

And because I find that it chiefly aymes at hindering me in making any benefite of my place (whereof I assure yor honor^e I have not yet made the value of five pounds towards my charges), I doe therefore make it my humble sute unto yor Honor^e that you will please to move the King in my behalf and puer His Ma^{tie} warrant for my fees, to the effect of this I send enclosed, w^{ch} being added to yor former favours will much increase my obligations to yor Honor^e and I shall still remaine

Yor Honor^e most devoted servant,

Elis S. Hawley, Esq.
Dear Sir,

Do you know from what county in England your ancestors came from? I recently browsed the Magna Britannia et Hibernia Antiqua et Nova, vol. 1, page 472, under the county of Devonshire, the following:—

"Lantmuth, a Sea-Port Borough, Corporation and Market-Town, etc.
"In this Town lived one Hawley, a Man of great Wealth, whose House was called the House. He was as generous and hospitable as rich, which made his Neighbours express their hearty good Wishes to him in this Chyme:
*Blow the Wind high, or blow the Wind low,
It ever blows good to Hawley's House.*"

Yours truly
Wm. B. Trask.

From Records of Devonshire, England.

John Hawley, a rich merchant of much eminence was one of the representatives of Devonshire, the greatest part of the reign of Henry IV., V., VI. (1399-1461).

Leland, the English antiquary, says in his history (1545) that the great ruins of the Hawley mansion were remaining at the old Port, Dartmouth, Devonshire.

John Crosse, who was colleague of Hawley, wrote that in the reign of Henry IV. [1399-1413], Hawley had a license to fortify his mansion at the entrance of the Port of Dartmouth, and in 1390 (?) waged war with [against] the navy of smuggling shippers, and took 34 of their ships laden with wine to the amount of 1500 tons.

"Lord John Hawley was sent to Ireland as Lord Lieutenant, where he resided for many years, but returned to England where he died."

"The King of Spain is certainly not dead, and the Italian war in appearance is blown over. This summer, I think, must finish all war, for who will have men, who will have money to finish another campaign? Adieu.

Lord Hawley and Sir Bernard Gascoigne are mentioned by John Evelyn in his diary under date Oct. 22, 1671.
(See Bray's Memoirs of Evelyn, vol. ii. p. 356.)

The name of Hawley occurs three times in Paver's List of Pedigrees of Yorkshire, England, being the lists taken in 1584, 1612, and 1665. (Gen. Register, xi. 261.)

GEORGE HAWLEY is named in a list of passengers in the ship Globe of Londen, Jeremy Blackman, Mr., to be transported to Virginia, 7 Aug., 1635. (Totten's "Lists of Emigrants," 120.)

HENRY HAWLEY is a name in a list of emigrants, 21st Aug., 1635, "to be transported to Virginia, imbarqued in the George, Je: Severne, Mr., bound thither, per examination of the Minister of Gravesend, etc." (Totten's Lists, 126.)

Frederick Hawley of Stratford-upon-Avon.

Mr. Frederick Hawley,* librarian of the Shakespeare Memorial, at Stratford-upon-Avon, died in that city on Wednesday, March 13, of consumption, aged 62. He was widely known and most sincerely esteemed, and in his death Stratford suffers a serious loss. Mr. Hawley was appointed librarian of the Memorial about three years ago, and in the fulfilment of the duties of that office, he labored with ample scholarship, fine intelligence, devoted zeal and exquisite taste. No man ever loved more dearly the name and memory of Shakespeare, and no worker ever toiled in a more affectionate spirit, or with more incessant and tender industry to serve the cause of Shakespearean scholarship. His catalogues were marvels of perspicuity and beauty. His handwriting was singularly handsome, and he rejoiced in doing his work thoroughly, so that his manuscripts are an ample satisfaction to the mind, as well as a delight to the eye. He had just completed a catalogue of all existing editions of Shakespeare in every language; and it was his intention to obtain every one of those editions for the Shakespeare Memorial Library. He had put the collection of books now in the Memorial in perfect order, and he had largely increased it by his wise and timely and always tasteful solicitations of volumes from all accessible sources. He was in particular proud of the American department of the library, and under his judicious and fostering care that section of it had considerably grown.

American visitors were always cordially welcomed by Mr. Hawley; he always delighted in showing to them such treasures as the library possessed, and he derived great pleasure from their cordial sympathy with the institution and its purposes. His plans for the advancement of the Memorial were ambitious, comprehensive, wise and practical. He wished among other things, to obtain every book or other publication about Shakespeare that ever was issued, in any part of the world.

Mr. Hawley was a native of Portsmouth, England, born in 1827, the son of Captain Hawley, of the 51st King's Own, who served in the Peninsular war, and was present as an aide-de-camp at Waterloo. He was educated for the bar, and was admitted to practice in 1852, but he adopted the stage, and for many years was an actor, under the name of Haywell. He appeared as Saddler's Wells, in London, under the management of Samuel Phelps; was associated with Charles Calvert, in Shakespearean productions at Manchester; and was once stage-manger for John Knowles, in the latter city. He possessed a deep, strong voice, an expressive countenance, and a dignified person, and his manners were gracious and distinguished. He wrote several plays, the most important of them being a blank verse tragedy, in five acts, upon the story of "Agnes of Bavaria." This was once performed in London, at the Gaiety Theatre, and its author cherished the hope of being able to bring it forward again. Its merit is literary rather than dramatic, for it provides narratives and many long and sonorous speeches rather than vital, incessant, propulsive action; but it is noble in spirit, and its ideal qualities are those of poetic fancy and sensibility.

Mr. Hawley was a charming companion, and Stratford will seem changed indeed without him. The Stratford-upon-Avon Herald, of March 15, pays a merited tribute, expressed in earnest, graceful words—which it is a comfort to read—to his signal abilities and his conscientious, useful and gentle life. His fellow citizens mourn him, but grief for the loss of a man so good and faithful and beneficial is not confined to the immediate scene of his career.

The following places in England seem to have some connection with the name Hawley:

LEYBOURNE, Co. Kent; Post Town, Maidstone (34 miles from Lon.), 5 miles N. W. b. W.; Pop. 300; a parish in the hundred of Larkfield, later of Aylesford; living, a Rectory in the Archdeaconry and diocese of Rochester: Valued in K. B. 117 13s. 4d. Church dedicated to St. Peter and St. Paul. Patron [1829] Sir Henry Hawley, Bart.

Sir Roger de Leybourne, who accompanied Richard I. to Palestine, had a castellated mansion here, the ruins of which consist of a machiolated gateway, flanked by round towers and some remains of walls and arches; the whole was formerly surrounded by a moat. Here is an endowed free-school for the education of fifty children. (See Groben's "Topog. Dic." Art. Leybourne and Kent.)

HAWLEY, Co. Southampton; P. T. Hartford Bridge (35 m. fr. Lon.), 5 m. E. b. N.; Pop. 661; a tithing in the parish of Gately and hundred of Crondall, Basingstoke division. (See same, Art. Hawley.)

HAWLEY AND MINLEY, Tithings, So. Hamp. Co.; Am. val. £2142; pop. 747. (See same.)

"HAWLEY AND HAWLEY Ho." (See map of Hampshire or So. Hampton, in same work.)

HAWLEY hamlet, parish Sutton-at-Hone, County Kent; P. T. Dartford, 14 m. South. (Same, in addenda to post route, vol. 3.)

The Usual Craze.

Some parties in Connecticut cherished the notion that there was an "immense fortune" in England, awaiting Hawley heirs. This craze has been showing itself for many years in many American families. In our own family, I am sorry to say, there were meetings held and funds raised, and an agent, Mrs. Sarah Dymond (?), sent to England, etc., etc.

Many years since, but some years subsequent to my undertaking the history of the family, I was invited by letter to attend a Hawley meeting at Hawleyville, Conn. I replied, perhaps rather discourteously, that had the meeting been some weeks earlier I would have attended with pleasure, as I was then in Connecticut on business; but as it was I could not be present. "One thing, however, I would say: that if they would find any considerable 'fortune,' I would find plenty of 'heirs' to it." (See HAWLEY RECORD.)

It is sufficient to say that the fortune hunting was wholly unsuccessful not only, but the visit of the agent, Mrs. Sarah Dymond, of New York, in England, who was also the head and heart of the "Booth" society in . . . did not even result in any definite information concerning the English branches of the family.

Many years after the above unsuccessful mission, I opened communication, after some delay and trouble, with some persons bearing our name and residing in Derbyshire not many miles from the parish (Parwich) from which there is evidence, as will subsequently appear, that our immigrant ancestor came. A copy of two or three letters received will give an idea of my want of success in learning anything definite in regard to the connection of the American with the English family, at the same time they may by possibility lead to definite knowledge hereafter.

Letters from Hawleys of Old England.

OF MONYASH, NE. BAKEWELL, Derbyshire, Eng.

Dear Sir:

A note bearing your signature having been laid before us, relative to an inquiry you are making for the records of the family named Hawley at Parwich, the only family about these parts of Derbyshire known, spring from the Hawleys of Monyash, a village some six miles from Parwich, and in the county of Derby, a township in the Parish of Bakewell, and we have traced that the family spring from or came from Kniverton, a village some mile or not more than two from Parwich; this was we believe the great-grandfather of the present Hawleys which spring from Monyash. They of course are some of them scattered, but the representatives still live there or Alstonefield Nr. Ashbourne. This man's name who came to Kniverton, was John Hawley, and we believe had five sons, whose names we believe were John, James, Samuel, William, Matthew, all dead and their next issue, all except one or two aged females not bearing the name; still the family names are yet retained, John, William, James, Samuel, and so on. This John Hawley who came to Monyash from Kniverton, died at Monyash at the good old age of 103, and his good old lady at the advanced age of 97. This we are informed was a Scotch lady, so the family has generally been considered to have a little Scotch blood. Being on a visit to my cousin, James Hawley at Manchester, we thought our duty out of courtesy, to just lay these things before you if they will at all assist your enquiries. We had thought to have had the search made for the register, but as you had already applied, we thought you might think it a little [out] of place. Hearing of the family name from so distant a land, you must excuse us for exercising a little curiosity in our enquiries on the subject, as we do it purely out of respect for the family name, and this alone must be our apology for troubling you. Should you wish for any further enquiries after you have completed these, they will as cheerfully be given as asked for. Meanwhile we subscribe ourselves on behalf of the Hawley family,

Your most obedient servants,

WILLIAM HAWLEY, Farmer,

JAMES HAWLEY,

ALSTONEFIELD, Nr. Ashbourne, Derbyshire,
Jan. 26, 1872.

My Dear Sir:

The letter addressed to the Parish Clerk of Parwich, was forwarded to me, there being no one of the name of Hawley now resident at that place, and the Clerk thinking that I was the nearest person of the name, Alstonefield being only a distance of 3 miles from Parwich. Upon receipt of the letter I caused enquiries to be made of the Parish Clerk and others here, and the first part of which information you have already received from Mr. Seddon and my brother in Manchester.

I am obliged for the very kind letter you have sent me, which came to hand 18th inst. Being anxious to find you a little information if possible, I have the last four days been engaged in searching, the results of which I enclose, and it will, I think, afford you the pleasure of tracing your ancestry.*

Knowing that a relative of the name of John Hawley was interred at Monyash, I went thither to ascertain if possible the date of his death, which with the aid of his descendants residing there, was procured from the Register; the date of death is 1803; we could not ascertain his age, but tradition makes him die very old.

Knowing also that he went from Kniverton to Monyash I went yesterday with W. Hawley to Kniverton to search the Register there. We called at Parwich on our way, but could not get that satisfactory search we wanted, so we at once proceeded to Kniverton, a distance of 24 miles from Parwich, and I think were very fortunate. I have no doubt that further inquiries would elicit clearer and more distinct records, but as you were so anxious to have any information, I hasten to send you these just in the rough manner I have obtained them, and if they supply the link or any part of it, shall feel glad.

I sincerely hope that with the aid of facts and dates you have on the other side, you will be able to trace the connection, the existence of which I have not any doubt in my own mind.

I shall be happy to receive the information you kindly promise to give if you think we are of the same good old honest ancestry.

With kind regards, believe me,

Yours very sincerely,

SAM'L HAWLEY.

Elias S. Hawley, Esq.

MONYASH, Bakewell, Derbyshire, Eng.,
April 3, 1872.

Dear Sir:

I duly received your letter of the 28th of February, some two or three weeks since. I am very sorry we find we cannot meet your wishes in prosecuting a further search, as such a wide field would have to be traversed, and such a lengthy and close investigation of Registers would have to be made, that the time and trouble would be considerable, and time we can but ill spare, but the expense for travelling, and fees for searching would be very considerable, much beyond the sum you have named as the amount you would like to go to.

We have not as yet heard anything from Parwich, but should we do so we will forward it you. I have added a more correct copy of the list I sent. I find the errors were chiefly made in copying from the original copy, after we had reached home. I take them as you have numbered them.

- 1 The date of Elizabeth Hawley's death is 1668.
- 2 May be "May 16th."
- 3 J. Hawley means "John Hawley;" and 4th and 5th the same.
- 6 Frances should be "Francis," and for buried, read "baptized."
- 7 J. Hawley means "John Hawley."
- 8 For buried, read "baptized."
- 9 J. Hawley means "John Hawley," and 10th the same.
- 11 "April" was omitted.
- 12 J. Hawley means "John Hawley."

With kind regards I am

Yours most truly,

WILLIAM HAWLEY.

EXPLANATIONS.

The following form of family record was devised and used about the year 1841, and was copyrighted and published by the author of this book in 1852; the design being to arrange a record which should contain a certain number of facts, representing the families in groups in the order of their birth and the generation to which they belong, and their marriage record.

In this arrangement each person has a marginal number, which is never repeated except in the reference column with the sign minus, and on the same line with it, running across the page, is the name, the reference number, the occupation, place of residence and date of birth; then follows the marriage record containing the date of marriage, name of the party espoused, the residence of the same, the father's name and mother's maiden name, date of birth and decease of the party espoused, and finally the date of the decease of the person first named on the line. This one line contains all the facts intended to be given of that one individual unless there is designated a note by a number in the last, or note column, referring to the printed notes in the back part of the volume.

In the reference column, a number with the sign minus, as 7—, refers back to the same name and the line of record; the sign plus, always occurring with a fractional number, as 144+, refers forward to the same number in the left hand column, however far ahead it may be, where the children of that person are given; the sign of multiplication (x) shows that the person is deceased without leaving any family and that the line in that person is extinct; the interrogation, (?) indicates further inquiry and that the facts wanting have not been obtained; and the section announces that the inquiry has been continued no further than that generation, and it is used only in regard to the children of daughters who have married out of the Hawley family and bear another name, it having been the original design of the author to end the inquiry at that point.

This method of reference is so simple and plain that it is believed any person, after examining the heading of the columns on the pages and reading these explanations, will be able, at once, to trace any person's ancestry or descendants backward or forward as may be desired.

The generation to which a family belongs appears in the narrow column near the margin of the left-hand page, each person being numbered with Roman letters, placed in the column designating the generation to which the person belongs, as shown by the figures at the top and bottom of the page.

The Branches, as indicated by the heading on the right-hand pages, begin always with the third generation, or the grand-children of Joseph the First, and at the end of some of the branches are left vacant lines and numbers for future manuscript use, by any member of that branch who may have energy and patience to continue his own line.

It will readily be seen that this does not claim to be a perfected record, but it is intentionally so arranged as to be carried to a further state of completion by any person interested, and for this purpose such paper is used as will admit of written entries, the filling in of dates and names where now, from want of knowledge of the facts, the blanks occur.

It is not supposed that this record is without mistakes and errors, but it is true that the utmost pains have been taken, from the beginning, to secure a correct record. No record has been made without being apparently well authenticated, except in a few instances, in which cases the question-mark is used.

The material has been collected by one who, in his profession and business enterprises, has been a very busy man all his life, and this work was done in snatches of time during many years, first for personal amusement, afterwards for the sake of making the record as complete as possible. Besides this a large amount of work has been done on other than the Hawley families.

Families and Names, the connection of which with the preceding branches has not been ascertained, but are printed here in the hope that the connection may be found by parties interested.

Hawley Family of Marblehead, Mass.

Furnished by Wm. D. Hawley of Malden, Mass.

HAWLEY, JOANNA, was one of the original members of the First Church of Marblehead, Mass., appearing on the records of its formation, Aug. 13, 1684. Her husband's name was probably William. She died about April, 1717. She had the following children:

- I. GRACE HAWLEY, bapt. Aug. 24, 1684.
- II. PATIENCE HAWLEY, bapt. Aug. 24, 1684.
- III. RICHARD HAWLEY, bapt. Aug. 24, 1684.
- IV. AGNES HAWLEY, bapt. Sept. 7, 1684.
- V. SARAH HAWLEY, bapt. Sept. 7, 1684; m. Eleazer Ingalls, who was living as late as April 15, 1717.
- VI. MARTHA HAWLEY, bapt. Sept. 7, 1684.

Feb. 7, 1739, William Nicholson married Elizabeth Hawley.

Nov. 25, 1768, Simon Caswell married Sarah Hawley.

Of the last five I find no further account.

RICHARD HAWLEY, Painter, was born probably Oct. 1, 1698.

He does not appear to be the son of Joanna, although he may be. He married a Mary, and died about July, 1773. She died in April, 1791. The following is the record of their children:

- VI. HANNAH, bapt. Oct. 3, 1736; m. George China, Dec. 11, 1753.

This seems to be the end of Richard and Mary, as far as I can ascertain.

- 2 I. MARY SHAPLEY, bapt. Oct. 2, 1726.

LIEUT. GIDEON HAWLEY is one of the Hawleys whose parentage has not been ascertained, even after repeated searching for it,—for the very isolation of the case creates an additional interest to know who he was. The following inscription on his grave-stone, standing in the old cemetery at Fairfield, Ct. (the only Hawley name in that inclosure,) still adds to the interest of the case:

In memory of

LIEUT. GIDEON HAWLEY,
Who died Sept. 11, 1784,
Aged — years.

GIDEON, son of Gideon &
Hannah Hawley, died
Jan. 6, 1788, Aged 3 years

"Death, like an overflowing stream
Sweeps us away; our life's a dream,
An empty tale, a morning flower,
Cut down and wither'd in an hour."

In the History of Redding, Ct., among the "Names borne on the List of the Society of Cincinnati of Connecticut" is the name of "Gideon Hawley, Lt. Horse." This was a society

Note 1.—The blank space was left on page 2 of the table work of this book, No 1, for two reasons: First, an inventory of Samuel Hauke of Charlestown, Mass., dated in 1637, had been obtained, and as the date was early enough, it was thought this man might be the father of the first family of Hawleys in Roxbury, particularly since the spelling of Hauke for Hawley had been found.

The second reason was that, being in correspondence with several Hawley families of Derbyshire, England, it was strongly hoped that the father's name and the emigration of the whole family might be obtained through them. This hope has not been realized, although some information as to the existence of the family name from the date of the emigration to the present time, in that county, has been obtained, as may be seen in the account of the English Family in the first part of this book.

Note 2.—Mr. JOSEPH HAWLEY, (No. 2), ancestor of all persons of this name recorded in the "table work" of this book, came to America in the year 1629 or 1630, or about that time. The place of his residence in England is revealed in his will, in which he says: "I give to my son Samuel Hawley all my lands and buildings in Parwidge in Darbyshire in Old England, to him, his heirs and assigns." This "Parwidge" is now Parwich, and is in Derbyshire, about nine miles northwest of Old Derby and four miles from Ashbourne, the market town; and Mr. Hawley's owning "lands and buildings" indicates it to have been a homestead. Of the family in Derbyshire more may be seen in the English History of the Family, in the front part of this book. This property was quit-claimed by Samuel Hawley to his brother Nataniel, who gave for it a lot of meadow land in Stratford, Ct., as appears on record, but no further account of it has been found.

It is supposed that Joseph was born about 1603, for his second younger sister, Elizabeth, married Richard Booth of Stratford, Ct., who was born in 1607, and that she was not older than her husband. It is believed Joseph was married when he came to America or soon after, and that this wife died leaving no children, and that he married a second wife, Katharine, before he came to Stratford, Ct. In his will he says "My now wife," as though he had had a previous one, and there being no record of any other in Stratford, it must have been before he came there. This opinion is strengthened by the fact that Joseph's eldest child was born in 1647-8, when the father was apparently over forty years of age; and his sister Elizabeth Booth's eldest child was born in 1641. Tradition in Stratford says his wife Katharine was the niece of John Birdsey, who settled in Stratford, and her father lived in Wethersfield, and this seems more probable from the fact that the Rev. Samuel Peters, who married into the Birdsey family in 1773, in his General History of Connecticut, published first in 1781, states that John Birdsey came to New Haven with two sons, and one of them settled in Middletown (more probably Wethersfield) and the other at Stratford. Mr. Peters' first wife's father, William Birdsey, was great-grandson of the first John Birdsey at Stratford, and it would seem that such information ought to pass through only two intermediate generations correctly.

That Richard Boothe married the sister of Joseph Hawley is indicated by the fact that Ephraim Booth, son of Richard, in his will calls Samuel Hawley, Joseph's son, "cousin."

Another marriage shows the friendly relations between the Boothe and Hawley families, at first, in this country, and perhaps before they came here. Sergt. John Boothe, son of Richard, married Dorothy, the daughter of Thomas Hawley of Roxbury, Mass., June 14, 1678, thus indicating continued associations between Thomas Hawley's family in Roxbury and the Stratford families, and that Joseph Hawley of Stratford was brother to Thomas Hawley of Roxbury. The marrying of cousins was a very common event in those days, and the fact does not seem to have been prejudicial to the energetic or intellectual character of the descendants of such relations.

The first record found of Joseph Hawley after his immigration to America was made by himself at Stratford, Ct., under date of 1650. Where he was during this time is a matter of conjecture. His brother Thomas remained in Roxbury, Mass., where he had land laid out to him as early as the year 1639, but there is no record of any property owned there by Joseph Hawley. If he married a second wife in Wethersfield, Ct., as seems probable, then he was there a year or more before he removed to Stratford, where he records the purchase of his first land in 1650. It is evident, also, that Joseph Hawley was not in Stratford when his eldest son, Samuel, was born, in 1647-8,* since the record of this birth was never entered on Stratford records, while that of each of the other children was.

Certain inhabitants, to the number of about fifteen, removed from Wethersfield and Hartford, Ct., in the spring of 1639, to the place then called by the Indians Cupheag, and established a plantation, which was afterwards named Stratford in honor of William Beardsley, who came from Stratford-upon-Avon, England, the birthplace of the poet William Shakespeare; and this number of inhabitants had so increased that in 1651, in apporportioning the building of a certain fence, the planters numbered more than forty, Joseph Hawley's name being among them. How long Mr. Hawley had been there is not positively known, but probably not over a year or two.

The first land records made, that are still in existence in that town, were written by Joseph Hawley; and a part of the first page of them, as he numbered the pages, leaving several pages for other records, reads as follows:

"The records of the lauds of Stratford severally.

"Imp. The lauds of Joseph Hawley purchased of Ritch[ard] Mills, 1650.

"One house lott being two acres more or less buting upon the streat east and John Blackman west, bounded with Adam Hurd on the south and the highway on the north.

"Another house lott being two acres more or less, buting upon the highway east and John Blackman west, bounded with William Crooker on the north and Francis Peeock on the south.

"Two acres and half in theould feyld, be it more or less, buting north upon the highway and south upon William Beardsly, bounded east with John Tomson and west with Richard Harvey.

"4 acres on the neck be it more or less purchased of Ritch. Mills bounded with Joseph Judson on the south Wm. Qwenby on the north, buting east upon the Highway and west upon the meadow."

The above was land surveyed or laid out before Mr. Hawley purchased it, and constituted the first division of land apporportioned to Mr. Mills, the same as had been measured to each proprietor.

The first proprietors had purchased the township, containing about seventy thousand acres of land, and as they could not improve it all at once, they divided it at different times, giving each proprietor a division of the number of acres in proportion to the money he had advanced in paying for the whole. Joseph Hawley purchased, not only the above pieces, but also the whole Right of Richard Mills in the township; for without purchasing more, he continued to receive land divided to him all his lifetime, and his children for years after him. What proportion of the seventy thousand acres he held, is not known, except that it was large, and that in 1671 Joseph Hawley stood in the tax list of the town next to the largest.* This tax list was made for the purpose of settling all claims of the Indians on Stratford territory, according to their agreement with Joseph Judson, Joseph Hawley and John Minor, as a committee of the town.

Besides land surveys, Joseph Hawley recorded births, deaths, marriages and town acts, all in the same book, and they were entered in 1650, or afterwards, although some items in his hand-writing bear dates earlier than 1650, and the probability is that no records were kept in that township, of a public character, until he commenced them, certainly none that have been preserved. He was Town Clerk or "Recorder," from 1650 until 1686, and during that time most of the records are in his hand-writing. His chirography was peculiar, consisting of French capital letters and an abbreviated combination of small letters, a style used by the first recorders of the towns of Fairfield and New London, Connecticut; and a style in which all public documents were entered into the State books in London, England, at that time, and therefore, it is judged that Joseph Hawley learned his style of writing in that city and possibly in connection with the State department.

Fac-simile samples of his writing with his Autograph as "Recorder," are inserted herewith:

The third entry made by Mr. Hawley of town acts shows the intelligent thought with which the early plantations of Connecticut were commenced, and how it is that such a world-wide fame has been attained in the idea of education. It is as follows:

"December 1, 1651.
 "It was agreed by the town at a publick meeting that they will give £36 by the year to a school teacher, the town to bare one half and the parents of the children the other half."
 This amount of money, at that time, paid a school-teacher for a whole year; and the record of it, standing as it does on the books of the town among the first entries made, is a great honor; yet it is quite doubtful if that honor had remained for Stratford had not Joseph Hawley settled there and made the record. Eleven years had the plantation been established when he began his work in it, yet not a line of any record remains to tell the transactions of those years.

Another record Mr. Hawley made of his own land and an exchange of it with John Beardsley to secure another piece at Pequonock, now the central business part of the city of Bridgeport, Ct., which, one hundred and fifty years afterwards, became very valuable property to his descendants, in the line of his son Ephraim. It is thus described:

"Land laid out about february: 58 [1658].
 "13 akars of land at pequonock layd out for 2 thirds of a division more or less butting upon the high way west and east upon the swamp bounded with Joseph Judson on the north and Goodman Beardsley on the south east.

"This parcel of land above written, I Joseph Hawley have given to John Beardsley for his divition at Pequannoek."

John Beardsley's land thus secured by Mr. Hawley is described as follows:

"A record of a parcel of land laid out to John Beardsly and now exchanged with Joseph Hawley and now his proper right lying part of it upon the second plain at Pequannoek and so along between the swamp and the poan [pond] and so on to the calf pen plain, 14 acres and a half more or less butting east upon the River and west upon the swamp, bounded with John Welles on the South and William Curtiss on the north: this was two-thirds of his divition."

This shows that Mr. Joseph Hawley secured by exchange the most important portion of land along the shore of the Pequannoek River, now the locality for shipping both by water and railroads, and largely that of business transactions of the city of Bridgeport. It extended along the shore from above Gold Street, to about what is now South Street, or a distance of over half a mile. This land was sold from time to time in city lots, and although it has all passed from the ownership of this family, yet some portions of it were held by them nearly two hundred years. (See Notes 12 and 177.)

Mr. Joseph Hawley had surveyed to him by the proprietors of the township, some years later, two hundred and fifty-eight acres, as one division; one-third of which he gave to his grandson Benjamin, and two-thirds of it to his son Samuel, who gave it to his son Ephraim; all of it being located at White Plains, in Stratford then, but now in the town of Trumbull, Ct. This shows that Mr. Joseph Hawley purchased of Richard Mills one of the fourteen or fifteen original Rights of the township of Stratford.

The accompanying diagram represents the "home lots" or places of residence of the inhabitants of Stratford Village in 1660; lot 37 being that of Joseph Hawley; and the illustrations in the front part of this book show, first, the present dwelling (1888) standing on that lot, built on the site of the first house, and second, the appearance of the main street at the same place, looking down the street southward towards Long Island Sound, the Pootatuck (now the Housatonic) River being at the left hand, or towards the east.

* The diagram for the village lots of Stratford was constructed a few years since by the Rev. Benjamin L. Swan, while pastor in that place. This he accomplished by the descriptive boundaries of the lots, on the town records.

Mr. Hawley purchased otherlands in Stratford, besides those of Richard Mills as already seen. When the Indians deserted Stratford, after selling their land in the Southern half of it for a first consideration in 1638, there remained an "Old Squaw and Neesingpaw," who were near relatives to the chief Ansantawa of Milford, on a few acres of land two miles west of Stratford village; this land Joseph Hawley purchased of them, although they seemed unwilling to leave the locality, because of its being the old dwelling place of the tribe. In 1662,* he with Joseph Judson and John Minor purchased of the Indians a tract of about five thousand acres in the northern part of Stratford township, in behalf of the town. Four years later he and Henry Tomlinson of Stratford purchased a tract of the Indians of some hundreds of acres in the township of Derby, a town adjoining Stratford, and a part of this land he disposed of in his will in 1689.

The only method for ascertaining the amount of land he owned (except by the one Right in the township, which comprised about four thousand acres) is by computation from the inventory of the estate of his son Ebenezzer, who died in 1681, nine years before his father, but the father had already distributed much of his property to his children. One item in this inventory reads: "Lands in reversion due from Mr. Hawley of Stratford, £400." Land in those days was entered upon the tax list at from six to ten shillings per acre for uncultivated, and twenty shillings for cultivated; and as this seems to have been land not cultivated, the number of acres may have been about eight hundred. Joseph's son Samuel gave to his son Ephraim, in one plot at White Plains of land as good as there was in the town, 172 acres, which the father had given to Samuel; and therefore a moderate conjecture would place the estimate of Joseph Hawley's land between four and five thousand acres. Hence his sons and grandsons, as this land continued to be improved, were placed in independent circumstances; and for this reason if for no other, it was wisdom in Joseph Hawley to emigrate from England to America.

Joseph Hawley as Land Owner in Derby.

Derby was a town joining Stratford at the north-east corner, and was first settled in 1654, by three or four inhabitants, and the settlement grew so slowly that in 1670 there were only eight families residing there. Having the liberty of the General Court to make a plantation or township, they were unable to purchase the land of the Indians and pay for it, and therefore prevailed upon persons not inhabitants to buy the land and pay the Indians, hoping such persons might eventually become inhabitants.

In 1668, Joseph Hawley and Henry Tomlinson of Stratford, Ct., made a purchase of a small tract on what was called Derby Neck, containing perhaps two hundred acres.† In 1670, Mr.

Alexander Bryan of Milford bought a tract adjoining the above named for seventeen pounds, and turned the same over to Mr. Hawley, Henry Tomlinson and John Brinsmade, and these two tracts of land were for many years called the "Hawley Purchase," and included Great Hill and hence a thousand or more acres. The next year the town of Derby agreed to take these lands of Mr. Hawley, and gave bonds so to do, but failing to fulfill its engagements, Mr. Hawley was made a proprietor of the whole township in equality with the other inhabitants of Derby, the number not to exceed thirty; but this proposition he seems not to have accepted.

In 1673, in order to encourage the more speedy settlement of the township and thus raise the value of land, it was proposed to build a house of worship, and in view of this the following with other records occurs:

"Item. At the same time Mr. Hawley, Nicholas Camp, John Beard, Henry Tomlinson and John Brinsmade did engage twenty pounds towards the building of the house in equal proportion among themselves; and to pay ten pounds if it be demanded at the rearing and ten pounds at the covering of the house, and because of present distance they are to be exempted from particular days' works about the building."

In 1676 Mr. Hawley had built a house on this land in Derby, and probably his son Samuel resided there a short time as an inhabitant.

In 1679, however, the town had not refunded to Mr. Hawley the money for the land as agreed and he sued the town for it. Whereupon a committee from the General Court was sent to settle the matter, and they awarded Mr. Hawley a considerable sum, of which there had been paid in 1681, £48 6s. 11d.

He also appears to have engaged in the business of ship building, for the following article is on the Stratford records:

"This writing witnesseth that I John Prentiss of New London in the Colony of Connecticut do acknowledge that I have received of Joseph Hawley of Stratford the full and just sum of fifty pounds one shilling and two pence, which said monyes was improved in the building of a ship which now rideth in Payrofield Harbour, called the John and Esther. I say I have released the full of £58 1s. 2d., and do hereby promise and engage myself my heirs executors or assigns well and truly to pay or cause to be paid by the first of May next ensuing the date hereof, the full and just sum of fifty-eight pounds one shilling and two pence in current country pay as the prices are set by the country; and in case of the neglect or non performance of ye said monyes then the said John Prentiss engageth one sixteenth of ye said ship to be to the said Hawley his heirs or assigns for ever: and also in the mean time the said Hawley hath present improvement of his sixteenth part of the ship until that time.

JOHN PRENTISS."

Joseph Hawley's public services were almost continuous from the time he settled in Stratford until his decease, May 29, 1690, at an advanced age. He was town clerk, or as then called "Recorder," sixteen years, and during that time, in 1663, and probably several other years, was treasurer of the town, which office at that time required much work of a business character. The taxes were nearly all collected or received by the treasurer, in various kinds of grains, principally wheat, peas, and Indian corn, and these were to be stored, sold, delivered, or shipped to distant markets as occasion required. He was chosen by the town several years "to keep an ordinary," the same as a hotel now, and this was then regarded as one of the most important offices in the town. He served in several other town offices, but specially on committees to survey lands, and adjust the boundaries between the towns of Stratford and Milford and Stratford and Fairfield. In 1687 he was chosen as one of a committee for considering and drafting a "Patent" for the town, a document that was at that time the authority for all guarantee of title to the lands of the township, and this patent is still preserved, signed by Governor Robert Treat. He was also a Deputy to the General Assembly of Connecticut, or in other words a Representative to the Legislature of the State, as follows (the election then occurring twice a year): Once in 1658, 1661, 1665, 1667, twice in 1668, 1669, 1670, 1671, 1673, 1674, once in 1675, 1677, 1678, twice in 1681, 1682, once in 1683, twice in 1684, once in 1685, and twice in 1687. He was appointed by the General Assembly of the Colony "Commissioner" for Stratford (the same office as Justice of the Peace), successively as follows: In May, 1682; May, 1683; May, 1684; May, 1685; May, 1686; May, 1687; May, 1688; May, 1689; his last appointment not having expired when he died, May 20, 1690.

In 1680 Mr. Hawley was appointed on another committee which shows his interest in religious matters. It is not known when he joined the Stratford church, but probably soon after settling there. The Rev. Adam Blakoman, in his will, dated "Mo. 1, 16, 1665," says: "I would entreat Bro. Groves, Bro. Booth, and Bro. Hawley to be overseers of this my last Will and helpful to my wife as she shall have need; to each of which I give an English Book." (See Note 204.) This shown these gentlemen to have been members of the church, and hence the propriety of placing Mr. Hawley on the following committee. In September, 1680, the inhabitants of Stratford were about completing a new meeting-house, and they proceeded to fix the rules by which it should be seated, according to the custom of that day, as follows:

First, that "every inhabitant in Stratford, both men and women, shall be seated and placed in the proper seats in the new meeting-house, and Mr. Samuel Sherman, Sen., Capt. Wm. Curtis, and Mr. Joseph Hawley" were appointed to seat the inhabitants.

"First, Magistrates and Commission officers according to their place of dignity.

"2dly, that all persons past the age of sixty years should be accounted honourable notwithstanding their payments, and he seated accordingly.

"3dly, that all other persons under the age of sixty years should be seated according to their payments to the new meeting-house, which has been according to law."

*The Will of Joseph Hawley.

I, Joseph Hawley of Stratford, Yeoman, sometime Justice of the Peace, or commissioner in Stratford, in the Colony of Connecticut and County of Fairfield, retiring the understanding and reason the Lord hath given me, do leave this my last will. My spirit I commit into the hands of Jesus Christ, my Redeemer, my body to a comely burial, and after my debts and funeral expenses are discharged, I do, as hereinafter followeth, dispose of what worldly estate I shall be possessed of at my death, viz:

I do hereby confirm to my children all the lands given them as they are recorded to them, further I give to my son Samuel Hawley, all my lands and buildiogs in Fairwidge in Darbyshire in Old England, to him, his heirs and assigns, after the death of my new wife, Katharine Hawley. Moreover, I give to him my meadow called the common meadow on the Great Neck, and my meadow at Golep's Gapp, between Porter's children and me.

I give to my son Ephraim Hawley, one acre and a quarter of meadow in ^{at} Great Neck on the east side of the creek, the south side of which is a part of that meadow purchased of Mr. Zachery Walker. All the right of that piece of meadow on the Great Neck, both of the west side of the creek and east, which I purchased of Mr. Walker, I give to my son, John Hawley.

I give to my grandchildren, John Chapman and Joseph Chapman at Seabrook, fifteen pounds to each of them when they come to the age of one and twenty years, in such goods and chattels as my executors are able best to pay them.

I give to Joseph Hawley, my son Samuel's son, besides what is upon record given him, my lot at the field gate called the Stabling lot, the whole of it.

I give to my sons, Ephraim and John Hawley, the two little lots on Claboard Hill and what was laid out to me at the Gallows Creek, also a little lot by Joseph Curtis' lot, purchased of Mr. Rippee, that was laid out to John Wheeler, being above one acre.

I give to my daughter Hannah Nichols, twenty shillings, and to my daughter Mary Cox, twenty shillings. Moreover, I give to all my grandchildren five shillings apiece.

Moreover, I appoint my three sons, Samuel Hawley, Ephraim Hawley and John Hawley, my executors, and do give unto them all my lands in Stratford, Darby and Woodbury equally amongst them, and what land I have given them here or before upon record it is to them, their heirs or assigns forever; also I give unto them all and whatsoever is my estate in debts or otherwise not given, they paying all legacies and debts, and taking care of their mother, my new wife, that she hath whatsoever she needeth during her widowhood; also, I will that my wife, Katharine Hawley, shall have the disposing of what household stuff she please, and what cows she desires to keep and what corn she shall desire from my said executors or any other needful thing whatsoever whereby her life may be comfortable; and all this I command whilist she remains unmarried. It is to be understood that what of the above said estate my wife disposes of, it is to be to her children or grandchildren, and if she die and leave households unprovided of, then they are to be divided amongst all my children equally that are living, and such children of mine that are called away by death those children shall have their parts.

I give to Mr. Israel Chancie five pounds, and in case there fall to be any difference amongst my above-named executors, my will is that Mr. Israel Chancie and Capt. John Beard shall have the power to put a final issue to any difference.

That this my will I declare by setting my hand and seal this 17th of September, 1689.

The Connection of the Hawley with the Beard Family.

1 BEARD,, b. in England; m. Martha.....; took passage with his family for America, and died on the voyage. Their children were:

2 I. BEARD, JAMES,* of Milford, Ct., 1642, came with his mother Martha, two brothers and three sisters, his father dying on the voyage to America, as the family tradition tells, which adds that he was eldest child.

3 II. JERRY, of Milford, but no record is found concerning him.

4 III. JOHN, of Milford, who was prominent as a citizen, and Captain in one of the expeditions against the Indians in 1675. He married, 1st, HANNAH HAWLEY, and had several children. He married 2d, Abigail, dau. of Richard Hulingsworth, and had probably no children by her.

Note 4.—ELIZABETH HAWLEY (BOOTHE),† No. 4, sister of Joseph Hawley the first, married Richard Boothe, and they settled in Stratford, with Joseph Hawley, about 1650.

Richard Boothe was born in England, about 1607, for in an affidavit, March 15, 1687-8, he describes himself as about 81 years of age, but from what part of England he came is not known. That his wife Elizabeth was the sister of Joseph Hawley seems quite certain, since his son Ephraim Boothe in his will calls Samuel Hawley, son of Joseph, "cousin." Richard Boothe and his wife were both living in 1688, and nothing is known as to the death of either of them. He was a proprietor in the township and received divisions of land for many years as others; and was a prominent citizen, one of the most reliable of the town, but not prominent in office except in the town.

The following, taken from the town records of Stratford, shows his position as first selectman or "townsman" as then called, and also the deed of humanity he was engaged in in finding a good home for a motherless little girl, "Modlin."

"This indenture made the 24th of June 1662, witnesseth that we the townsmen of Stratford upon good and serious considerations moving us therunto, doe bind out one Modlin a little girl about six years of age, that formerly did belong to a Frenchman that was in necessity upon the town of Stratford; we say, to John Minor of Stratford, to him, his heirs and assigns, till the aforesaid girl shall attayne the age of twenty-one years; we say we bind her with her father's consent; and also a lawful apprentice to the aforesaid John Minor till the aforesaid term of tyme shall be fully and completely ended.

"The aforesaid John Minor engages to provide her with apparel and diet and bedding as may be suitable for such an apprentice.

"That this is our act and deed, and witnessed by subscribing the day and date above written.

† Boothe Genealogy and History of Stratford, Ct.

Note 5.—THOMAS HAULEY, No. 5, was an early settler in Roxbury, Mass., but just what year has not been ascertained. His first wife's name was Emma, and she was buried 29 Nov. 1651. Her son Thomas was baptized 8 Oct. 1651, and she died not quite two months afterward. He married 24, 2 Feb. 1652, Dorothy Harbottle, the widow of Thomas Lamb. She was a member of Mr. Eliot's church, and married Mr. Lamb 16 July, 1640, by whom she had two sons (Caleb and Joshua), and he died in 1646. Thomas Hawley was killed by the Indians at the "Sudbury Fight," 21 April, 1676, and Dorothy died 28 Jan., 1699.

About 1645, the Roxbury town records were destroyed by fire, and in 1652, a committee of five were appointed by the town to make a new record of the lands of the town as they were known to have been surveyed to different parties. In the record made by this committee, Thomas Hawley's land was not re-recorded, yet he was an owner then and had been for a number of years. In this land record his name is spelled "Halye" and "Hally," yet this is the same as Rev. John Eliot, the pastor of the Roxbury Church, uses in one instance when he spells the name two ways in the same entry, in the baptisms, as: "Joseph Haly, sonn to Tho. Hawly." Besides, Thomas Halye's land was located close to the mill, under the water-wheels of which Thomas "Hawly's" son passed, as hereinafter seen in the quotations from Mr. Eliot's records.

"Roxbury Land Records, Commissioners of Boston, Copy."

Page 40. Record made 17, 11th, 1652. "Philip Tory in the Nookes next Dorchester, being the first lott five acres and a quarter. And half an acre of salt marsh more or less, being in a Nook near Gravelly Poynt at the end of Thomas Halye's lott."

"Thomas Baker, his house and greound upon which it stands, together with his garden and a parcell of land adjoining, being in all about half an acre more or less, abutting upon the land of Thomas Hally east and south, upon the highway north, and upon land belonging to the mill west."

Thomas Hawley was killed by the Indians in 1676, as hereinafter seen, and after his death we have the following record of land, apparently of his widow:

This last record does not prove that she was living in 1715, but that the land was hers or her heirs'.

The following items are taken from the Roxbury Church Record, made by Rev. John Eliot:

*The Sudbury Fight, in King Philip's War.

"Upon the disbanding of the army under Gen. Winslow, as noted in the first chapter, the Indians began to gather in about the frontier towns in large numbers, evidently elated at the apparent inability and supposed discouragement of the English. Upon April 18th they came upon Marlborough again, and burned the houses they had left in the former attack. They hovered about the town for two days, evidently seeking to draw out the soldiers from the garrisons and away into an ambush, according to their usual mode of warfare. They did not dare to engage the garrisons, however, or to come within the range of the guns; but having invested the town with small parties set in ambush to guard the roads and prevent messengers or relief passing to and fro, they began to creep slowly in about Sudbury upon Thursday, April 20th. In the mean time, according to the best evidence of the best accounts from contemporary sources (always excepting the evident mistake of Mr. Hubbard in regard to the date), Capt. Wadsworth, with a company of some fifty or more men, marched out of Boston towards Marlborough upon the same day, expecting to make up the company to one hundred with the quotas of the Middlesex towns, but did not have over seventy probably on his arrival at Marlborough, which it was the design he should relieve with the company of one hundred men impressed for the purpose; of whom not more than seventy appeared, and these, many of them, were boys. They marched through Sudbury in the evening of the 20th, and without any sign of attack from the great body of Indians lying about the town and its approaches, arrived in Marlborough near midnight, where, learning that the enemy had gone towards Sudbury, Capt. Wadsworth, after a brief stop and slight reorganization of his company, leaving some of the boys that were unable to march at the garrison, and doubtless taking some fitter men in their places, and being joined by Capt. Brocklebank, who apparently started for Boston, being relieved of his charge at the garrison by the coming of Capt. Wadsworth, with his company he marched hastily back towards Sudbury.

"While this company were thus marching to and from Marlborough, the enemy were gathering more closely about Sudbury, as all accounts fully show.

"Of the contemporary accounts of the fight and its consequences, there are several from eminently reliable authorities. Treasurer John Hull wrote a letter on April 29th, 1676, concerning the sad state of affairs in the Colony, giving details of successive casualties, and says: 'On ye 21st, valiant Captains Wadsworth and Brocklebank with about 50 valiant soldiers were slain by ye Indians.'

"The letters of the 'anonymous writer,' published in London, which have been several times referred to above, give a very concise account as follows: 'April 20th, Capt. Wadsworth of Dorchester, being designed with an 100 men to repair to Marlborough to strengthen the garrison, and remove the goods &c. there, did accordingly this evening march with about 70 men from Sudbury, the rest of his men not appearing. The Enemy, who were about 1000 strong, lay near his passage, but kept themselves undiscovered and permitted him to pass them in the night, but in the morning assaulted and burned most of the Houses in Sudbury (save these that were ingarrisoned) The writer goes on to tell that twelve volunteers came down from Concord to lend assistance, and eleven of the number were slain; and that Capt. Wadsworth with his tired troops, that had marched all the day and night before, marched promptly back from Marlborough, being joined by Capt. Brocklebank and a few of the garrison soldiers, making a company of not more than eighty men miserably tired for want of rest and sleep. This company was drawn into ambush and encompassed by many hundred Indians—our authorities say a thousand or more; fought them from a hill for four hours with the loss of only five men, till the Indians set fire to the woods at the windward of them, and thus forced them from their strong position, and in their retreat waylaid and destroyed all but a few of the men, who escaped to a mill, where they defended themselves till night, when rescued by Capt. Prentice's troops, who themselves had just been rescued by Capt. Cowell and his dragoons.

"Rev. Increase Mather, of Boston, who published a history of this Indian war about the same time with Hubbard, writes: 'April 20th, a day of humiliation was observed at Boston. The next day sad tidings came to us. For the enemy set on Sudbury and burnt a great part of the town; and whereas Capt. Wadsworth and his Lieutenant Sharpe, also Capt. Brocklebank (a gently and choice spirited man) was killed at the time.'

"Major Daniel Geokin, the commanding officer of Middlesex forces and superintendent of the 'Praying Indians' in the Colony, writes: 'Upon April 21, about midday, tidings came by many messengers that a great body of the enemy, not less as was judged than fifteen hundred . . . had assaulted a town called Sudbury'. That morning . . . Indeed (thru' God's favor) some small assistance had already been sent from Watertown by Capt. Hugh Masou, which was the next town to Sudbury. These with some of the inhabitants joined and with some others that came in to their help, there was vigorous resistance made and a check given to the enemy. . . . But these particulars were not known when the tidings came to Charlestown.

"Another paper, never before published, gives a new phase of the Sudbury fight. (Mass. Arch., vol. 30, p. 205):

"The deposition of Edward Cowell, aged about . . . years.

"This deponent upon oath testifieth that I being upon the Countries Stearvis in April last and having under my Conduct Eighteen men; Upon our Returning from Marlborough to Boston; and about three Miles From Sudbury We were surprised with divers Hundred of Indians; Where of this Indian Ton was one (—) by a gronbling signe or Noyse that hee made; as in My Judgment was the Cause of our being fiored upon; at which tyne fower of my Company was killed and one Wounded; beside five horses were disenabled they Being Shott upon Capt. "Sworn to before the Council 19 June, 1676.

EDWARD RAWSON, Secretary.'

"All the above accounts are of contemporaries, and all agree in the main particulars and confirm each other in the matter of the date. Rev. Mr. Hubbard, of Ipswich, whose history of this war is most complete, and, in the main, the most reliable, agrees mostly with the others, but seems to have known less of this fight than usual, and less of the details than the others, and in the matter of date was unquestionably wrong.

"From all the above authorities, the true account in brief seems to be, that the English had no suspicion of the great numbers of the Indians that were gathering about Marlborough and Sudbury, or of the vicinity of any, until the morning of the 21st, when several deserted houses were burnt with the evident purpose of drawing out the garrison into an ambuscade. Then Deacon Haines's garrison house was attacked with fury by large numbers, but was successfully defended from six o'clock in the morning until one o'clock P. M., when the assault was abandoned. Twelve volunteers coming from Concord upon the alarm, to aid the garrison, were lured into the river meadow and all slain save one. Mr. Edward Cowell, with a body of eighteen mounted men, coming from Brookfield by way of Marlborough, and by a different way from that taken by Capt. Wadsworth, became sharply engaged with an outlying party of the enemy, and lost four men killed, one wounded, and five of his horses disabled.

"While the attack on Cowell's party was still going on, Capt. Wadsworth and his company came upon the scene, and seeing a small party of Indians, rushed forward with the usual impetuous haste, and were caught in the usual ambuscade, for when within about a mile of Sudbury, they were induced to pursue a body of not more than one hundred, and soon found themselves drawn away about one mile into the woods, where on a sudden they were encompassed by more than five hundred, and forced to a retreating fight towards a hill where they made a brave stand for a while (one authority says four hours), and did heavy execution upon the enemy, until (Mr. Hubbard says) the night coming on and some of the company beginning to scatter from the rest, their fellows were forced to follow them, and thus being encompassed in the chase by numbers, the Captains and most of the company were slain. The anonymous writer above referred to says the Indians set fire to the woods and thus forced the disastrous retreat. Thirteen only out of the company escaped to 'Noye's mill,' and there held the enemy in check. In the mean time Cowell withdrew his party from their dangerous situation, went back and buried their dead comrades, and then rode around into the town by another way in time to rescue Capt. Prentice's troops, and afterwards, with others in company, the men at the mill. It was probably about noon when Capt. Wadsworth became actively engaged with the Indians, and thus withdrew their attention from both Cowell and Haines's garrison. The Watertown company arrived at about the same time, followed the Indians over the river, and made a brave fight to get to the hill where Capt. Wadsworth was engaged in his desperate struggle, but such fearful odds were against them that they were forced to fall back to Goodenow's garrison, 'it being near night.' After dark they went to the mill, probably with the troopers and Cowell's men, and brought off the soldiers there. The troopers sent from Charlestown, with the Indian company under Capt. Hunting, must have arrived quite late in the afternoon.

"These are the main facts, in brief, of the Sudbury fight. The next day the Watertown company, with Capt. Hunting's Indians, buried the dead. The site of the battlefield where Capt. Wadsworth so long held the Indians at bay, is upon what is now called 'Green Hill.' Here, in 1730, fifty-four years after the battle, Rev. Benjamin Wadsworth, fifth son of Capt. Samuel, and at the time president of Harvard College, erected a monument to the memory of his father and those that fell with him. It is to be regretted that President Wadsworth accepted the erroneous date given by Hubbard, which has been perpetuated upon the new monument erected in 1852."

By this record it is seen that Thomas Hawley was in Capt. Cowell's company of dragoons, marching from Brookfield towards Boston, not being aware of the presence either of the Indians or of Capt. Wadsworth; and upon the first attack by the Indians Thomas Hawley and three others were killed, and afterwards were buried where they fell. The accompanying cut represents the monument erected to the memory of Capt. Wadsworth and those who were slain in that battle.

"Rev. Mr. Eliot in the church record says:

"We had no burials at home, but we had many slain in the War, no town for bigness lost so many.' (Roxbury Records.)"

The following is the most complete account found of the number killed, and is taken from the "New England Historical and Genealogical Register" for October, 1886, page 405:

"It is a regret that we are unable to know positively the number of English engaged. The number with Captain Wadsworth upon the 'Hill' was probably near fifty. The most definite statement is that of Major Gookin, who puts the number of those slain, besides the two Captains, at 'about thirty-two private soldiers.' Cowell had eighteen, and the Concord men were twelve. The Watertown Company was not probably over forty, while the garrison of Sudbury amounted to but eighty. Thus about two hundred men were actively engaged with, and holding in play, probably more than a thousand Indians one whole day, and finally defeated their intention of capturing the town, sending them away with fearful loss.

"Unfortunately we are not as yet able to find any list of the names of those killed on that day, and Mr. Hull's accounts do not show any credits referable to that service; only here and there are we able to glean from probate and town and church records a few names of those killed.

"From the Roxbury Records we find that

'Samuel Gardner, son of Pete,	William Cleaves,
Thomas Baker,	Joseph Pepper,
John Roberts,	John Sharpe,
Nathaniel Sever,	Thomas Hopkins,
THOMAS HAWLEY, Sr.,	Lieut. Samuel Gardner, were all slain at Sudbury under Capt. Samuel Wadsworth upon 21 April, 1676.

"Of the Concord men killed in the meadow near 'Hayne's

Garrison,¹ but five bodies were recovered, and but seven names are preserved in the records:

James Hosmer,	Samuel Potter,	John Barnes,
Daniel Comy,	Joseph Buttrick,	Josiah Wheeler.
	William Heywood,

"Three of Cowell's men that were killed are in the Roxbury list above. The fourth was Robert Wales of Dorchester. The Suffolk Probate Records give an additional name, Eliazar Haws of Dorchester. These with Capts. Wadsworth and Brocklebank make in all but twenty-one. It is hoped that a more complete list of those who fell with Capt. Wadsworth may be made."

THE PRESENT SUDBURY MONUMENT.

Note 6.—ROBERT HAULE, No. 6. In Farmer's First Settlers of New England, page 38, he says, under the name of Hauley, which was the frequent spelling then of the Hawley name: "Robert, whose name in the colony records is spelled Haule, was admitted freeman in 1644." This man may have removed to Rhode Island, as tradition intimates, and the family of Samuel Holly, as given on page 423 of this book, may be descended from him.

Note 7.—SAMUEL HAWLEY, SEN., No. 7, son of Joseph the first, was born in 1647-8, and came to Stratford with his parents as early as 1650, where he always resided, except that he probably made his home in the town of Derby, Ct., for a short time. He was a farmer, but dealt largely in real estate, as the town records of Stratford show, and in 1699, according to a certain list of proprietors,¹ he was the largest owner of undivided lands, or "commonage," except three, in that township. He continued to accumulate land until near the close of his life, yet when he made his will he had previously given it all to his children, who apparently were made quite independent; for one son, Ephraim, received at one time, 172 acres, besides other parcels, as good land there was in the town, and as he had eight sons and three daughters to provide for, probably at the same rate, he must have given them about 2,000 acres; land being in those days the best stock in the market. He was also one of the original thirty-six proprietors of the township of Newtown, Ct.†

¹History of Stratford, vol. 1, p. 263, foot note.

† The thirty-six original proprietors of the Township of Newtown, Ct., organized in May, 1708, were nearly all of Stratford, Ct., as follows:

Joseph Curtis,
James Judson,
SAMUEL HAWLEY,
John Reed,
John Burr,
Theophilus Hall,
John Minor,
Benjamin Sherman,
Joseph Curtis,

Daniel Burr, Jr.,
Daniel Curtis,
Richard Hubbell, Jr.,
John Judson,
John Sely, Jr.,
Daniel Beardsley,
Joseph Fairchild,
Benjamin Hurd,
Benjamin Nichols,

Samuel Hawley, Sen., married 1st, Mary, daughter of Thomas Thompson and his wife Ann Welles of Wethersfield and Farmington. This Ann Welles was the daughter of Governor Thomas Welles, who resided for a time in Stratford, Ct.; and while she visited her father's family there, probably Samuel Hawley, although quite young, became acquainted with the daughter, Miss Mary Thompson, and afterwards married her. For further particulars of the connection of the Welles and Hawley families, see Note 12.

Mr. Hawley married 2d, Patience, widow of Lieut. John Hubbell, of a place called "Old Mill," which is now a portion of the eastern part of the city of Bridgeport, Connecticut. This place was at first a highway laid out twenty rods wide by order of the Colony of Connecticut, and hence called the King's Highway, for everything the Colony did was in the name of the King of England. Along this highway Benjamin Franklin, while Colonial Postmaster-General before the Revolutionary War, set up mile-stones, it being on the mail route from Philadelphia to Boston; and one of these stones was placed not far from the site of the house of Patience Hubbell, where she lived a number of years—where it still stands, a peculiar monument of "olden times," and of the locality where Samuel Hawley found his second wife, the mother of his six younger children. A fac-simile of the stone, which rises to a height of five feet, is here given, it being just seventeen miles by the "Old Post-Road" from it to Now Haven.

Samuel Hawley was a prominent citizen, member of the church and officer of the town. The year his father died (1690), he was elected as a Representative of the town to the Colonial Assembly or Legislature, to which office he was afterwards elected seven times, as follows: October, 1695; October, 1697; October, 1700; May, 1708; October, 1708; May, 1711; and June, 1711. His father had been elected to the same office thirty times during the last thirty-three years of his life, then Samuel took it eight times during eighteen years, and before he ceased, his youngest brother John, afterwards Capt. John, was first elected in 1702, and he was re-elected eighteen times before the year 1725. So that during 66 years some member of the Hawley family had been elected to the Assembly 57 times, from Stratford. Also Capt. Joseph Hawley of Farmington, Ct., was sent first to the same Assembly in October, 1710, and afterwards re-elected twelve times down to 1738; thus during 80 years, some member of this family was elected to the same Legislature 70 times, which is a roll of honor worthy to be recorded.

pointed for all men once to die, do make and ordain this, my last will and Testament, ye is to say principally and first of all, I give and recommend (my body) to ye Earth to be buried in Christian decent burial at ye discretion of my Ex^{ors} hereafter named, nothing doubting but at ye General Resurrection I shall receive ye same again by ye mighty power of God. This will was proved 24 Sept., 1734.

Note 8.—JOSEPH HAWLEY, JR., No. 8, second son of Joseph Hawley the first, lived to be forty-one years of age, was the owner of considerable property, but was not married so far as is known. The accompanying cut is the fac-simile of his grave-stone,—a small field stone, rudely engraved, but better than none.

He was the owner of land, June 12, 1671. On Oct. 31, 1687, his father, Joseph, gives certain lands which had been set apart to his son Joseph, then 38 years of age, to Capt. Joseph, son of Samuel, who was then twelve years of age. This would indicate that the elder Joseph was deceased or incapacitated for transacting business, and hence the property designed for the son Joseph was given to the grandson, bearing the same familiar name of Joseph.

Note 9.—ELIZABETH HAWLEY (CHAPMAN), No. 9, daughter of Joseph Hawley the first, married John Chapman of Saybrook, Ct., where they resided until her decease in 1676, fourteen years before her father's death. After her decease John Chapman married, 26 Mar., 1677, Elizabeth, daughter of William Beaman, and she died in October, 1694. He was Captain, and probably while engaged in shipping business between Saybrook and Stratford, became acquainted with the young Miss Hawley, who was nineteen and a half years old when she married. He was a representative to the Assembly from Saybrook and afterwards from Haddam, where his family married with the Selden family.

The Connection of the Hawley with the Chapman Family.

CHAPMAN, ROBERT, of Saybrook, Ct., married, 29 April, 1642, Ann, dau. of Thomas Bliss of Hartford, Ct. Robert Chapman was a Captain, a Representative in 1652 and most of the years to 1673; an Assistant, 1681-5, which was the same as State Senator. His wife died 20 Nov., 1685, and he died 13 Oct., 1687, aged 70 years. Tradition says he came to Boston in 1635, from Hull, Yorkshire, Eng., but perhaps this may in part be confused with the derivation of Ralph, of whom he may have been a brother.

Note 10.—EBENEZER HAWLEY, No. 10, son of Joseph Hawley the first, married Hester (or Esther), daughter of Doct. William and Deborah Ward, of Fairfield, Ct., where they resided. After Doct. William Ward's decease, his widow, Deborah (not his daughter Esther), married a Tappan, of Southampton, L. I., hence she is called "Deborah Ward Teppin" (now Tappan). The marriage agreement between Ebenezer Hawley and Hester Ward is as follows, taken from Fairfield, Ct., Probate Records:

"If hereas: There is a marriage intended and concluded to be solemnized and completed between Ebenezer Hawley, son unto Mr. Joseph Hawley of Stratford, and Hester Ward, dau. of Mrs. Deborah Ward Teppin, of Southampton, upon the consideration of the said marriage the said Ebenezer Hawley doth covenant to and with the said Hester and engage these several articles hereafter mentioned.

"Inprimis. It is agreed by the said Ebenezer, and he doth covenant that the House and all the lands that the said Hester is now possessed of within the bounds of Fairfield, if the said Ebenezer die and leave the said Hester a widow, if there be living issue of her body by him yet she shall enjoy as a jointure all the said Housing and lands during her natural life and the reversion of the said House and lands to be to the said child or children surviving. It is covenanted and agreed that if the said Ebenezer shall die before the said Hester and leave no issue by her surviving, then all the said Housing and lands shall be the proper property of the said Hester and to her heirs forever.

"It is agreed and covenanted that if the said Hester shall die before the said Ebenezer, leaving no issue behind her of hers, then she shall have power to dispose of one half of the above said lands, the buildings and one half an acre of land about the House excepted, and for the full conformation of the premises the said Ebenezer Hawley hath hereunto set his hand this 19th day of April, 1678.

EBENEZER HAWLEY."

"Signed in the presence and witness of

SAMUEL WAKEMAN,
WM. HILL."

This contract or agreement proves the relation of all these parties, notwithstanding all the confusion heretofore made as to them—most of all the "confusion confounded" in the Fairfield History, published in 1889. It was Hester Ward (not a widow) who married Ebenezer Hawley. Her mother was Deborah (Ward) Tappan, of Southampton, L. I. Hester had two children by her husband, Ebenezer Hawley, who died in 1681, and she married 2d, Ensign Ephraim Nichols. They had three children,* and her husband, Ephraim Nichols, died in 1690, and she married 3d, Eliphalet Hill, Nov. 1691, and hence she was properly called in the town records "Esther Nichols the daughter of William Ward," for she was Mrs. Esther Nichols and also the daughter of William Ward. She had two children by Mr. Hill, and he died in 1695. She married 4th, Robert Lord, and by him had four children according to Fairfield Church records†

At the time of his marriage, Ebenezer Hawley received a number of pieces of land from his father, so that the inventory of his estate three years later amounted to £628 16s., besides "the lands in reversion duo from Mr. Hawley [his father] of Stratford, valued at £400."

Note 11.—HANNAH HAWLEY (NICHOLS), No. 11, daughter of Joseph Hawley the first, married Josiah Nichols, son of Isaac, son of Sergt. Francis Nichols, one of the first and most prominent families in Stratford, Ct. Josiah Nichols died about twelve years after marriage, and his widow, Hannah, married John Wolcott, of Windsor, Ct., the Wolcott family being the most prominent of any in that, one of the first towns in the Colony of Connecticut.

The Connection of the Hawley with the Nichols Family.

1 NICHOLS, SERGT. FRANCIS, from England, probably from London, was one of the first fifteen settlers in Stratford, Ct., in 1639, for the General Court directed, October 10, 1639, that "Mr. Governor and Mr. Welles" should go to Stratford and among other things "assign Sergeant Nichols for the present to train the men and exercise them in military discipline." He died in 1650. Francis Nichols was probably a near relative of Col. Richard Nicoll, the first English Governor of New York. In the different spelling of the name there is no special significance, since it is spelled on the Stratford records, often without the h, as Nicolls, Nicols, Nickols. Francis was probably a military man in London before coming to America.

He was a farmer, having received abundance of land from his father, and lived probably in Stratford village. He left no will, but an inventory of his estate is dated 14 May, 1690. After his decease, his widow Sarah married, 19 Oct. 1692, Lieut. Agur Tomlinson. (See Tomlinson Family at the end of the Welles Family below.)

The Connection of the Hawley with the Welles Family.

1 WELLES, GOV. THOMAS, of Connecticut, was born in Essex County, England, in the year 1598, and came from Northamptonshire to America in 1636. "In the English calendar of Colonial State papers is found the following: '1635, Record Commission, State papers; Thomas Welles and Elizabeth his wife, recusant in Rothwell, Northamptonshire.'" As he disappeared from Rothwell in 1635, having lost all his property by confiscation, he doubtless at that time entered the service of Lord Saye and Sele as private secretary, and came to America early in the Spring of 1636.

"Recusant signifies refusal to subscribe to the oath of conformity to the established church of England, which required the acknowledgement of the King as the head of the church, instead of the Pope. The Puritans would not subscribe on oath to either, and hence their emigration."⁹⁸

It is further true, that persons who declared "recusant" because they declined to conform to the orders or requirements of Bishop Laud, which requirements were no part of the directions of the Prayer Book, or the Constitution of the church.

Thomas Welles was chosen a Magistrate of the Colony of Connecticut in 1637, which office he held every successive year until his decease, a period of over twenty-two years. Besides holding other offices, he was elected Deputy Governor in 1654, and Governor of the Connecticut Colony in 1655, and in 1656 and 1657 Deputy Governor; in 1658, Governor, and in 1659 Deputy Governor, which position he held at his decease, Jan. 14, 1659-60.

⁹⁸ History of the Welles Family, pages 98, 122, etc. In this History the family is traced back to Robert de Welles of Ryke Hall, Essex, England, and thence into France to the year 794.

He married his first wife, a Miss Hunt, in England, she being the mother of his children. He married 2d, in Wethersfield, about 1646, Elizabeth Footo, a daughter of John Deming of England. She died July 28, 1683.

Note 13.—CAPT. JOHN HAWLEY, No. 13, son of Joseph the first, was probably married twice. Of Hannah, his first wife, nothing is known except that her name is recorded as a member of the church and the wife of John Hawley. He married 2d, Deborah Pierson, but whose daughter she was is not known. He left a good estate in lands, in Durham, Haddam and Stratford, Ct., amounting to over £3,000, a very nice sum in those days.

He was appointed a Lieutenant to a company of soldiers organized to defend the county of Fairfield, Ct., against the Indians, in 1704. He was made Lieutenant of a militia company of Stratford, in May, 1709, and Captain of the same in October, 1709.

Note 14.—MARY HAWLEY (COE), No. 14, daughter of Joseph Hawley the first, married Capt. John Coe of Stratford, Ct., where they resided. His father died when he was not two years old, and his mother married Nicholas Eisey of New Haven, where John was reared until twenty-one years of age. He then returned to Stratford and apparently took possession of the lands he inherited from his father, and became a prominent citizen and a military captain. Their descendants have been quite numerous.

All, all our anguish hath its period past,
Ere hens we goe; not any joy but mixt.
Racer grace which makes the life of man the best,

No. 14.

Note 15.—SAMUEL HAWLEY, Jr., No. 15, son of Samuel, Sen., married Bethia Booth, daughter of Ephraim. He and his wife were second cousins, resided in Stratford, Ct., and were influential citizens, as were also several of his children. (See Notes 28, 29, 30 and 31.) He gave the following quit-claim deed, which is the last record concerning the land held in England by his grandfather Joseph Hawley, and which had been sold by his father, Samuel, Sen.

"Know all men by these presents that whereas Samuel Hawley of Stratford, in County of Fairfield and Colony of Connecticut in New England, late deceased, did in his life-time sell, alienate and convey a certain Housing and Tenements of land situate on the Island of Great Britain in Old England: Now know ye, that I, Samuel Hawley of Stratford in the County of Fairfield in the Colony of Connecticut aforesaid, eldest son to the said Samuel Hawley deceased, for a consideration of fifteen acres of meadow land, quit claimed to me by my brother Nathaniel Hawley of said Stratford in said county and colony aforesaid, said quit-claim bearing equal date with these presents, which is to my full satisfaction and content. On which consideration I, the said Samuel Hawley, do, for myself, my heirs, &c., . . . quit all claims, challenge and further demands unto the said Nathaniel Hawley, his heirs, &c., . . . all the above alienated lands or tenements, sold by my deceased father Samuel Hawley above said, situated in England on the Island of Great Britain, be the same of what denomination soever, quitting all claim from me, said Samuel, my heirs, &c., unto the said Nathaniel, his heirs, &c., . . . all my right, title, profit or demands in any estate whatever, alienated formerly by my said father Hawley, in his lifetime in Great Britain, and that I, the said Samuel Hawley, my heirs, executors and all other persons whomsoever, by or under me or them, shall, by force or virtue of these presents, be utterly barred from having any lawful claim or demands unto the above quitted premises formerly sold by my said father Hawley, and that the grantor, his heirs, &c., of the said Samuel Hawley, deceased, shall possess and enjoy the quitted premises free from all encumbrance, &c., . . . from me the said Samuel Hawley, my heirs, &c.

"In witness and confirmation of all the premises I hereunto set my hand and seal in Stratford, this 3d day of June, A. D. 1735.

SAMUEL HAWLEY."

The quit-claim deed of Nathaniel Hawley to his brother Samuel, of fifteen acres of meadow to pay for the above claims on money due for the property sold in England, is recorded in the same book as the above, page 195.

It is a matter of history that payments were received from England after Nathaniel Hawley had purchased these claims, and that the last received, as far as known, was in brass kettles.

*Stratford Town Records, Book vi., page 12.

About one hundred years after the last brass kettles were received, the story of the property in England belonging to the Hawley family became exciting, and as repeated from one to another, the amount increased until it was supposed that a very large sum was awaiting American claimants. A gathering of the family was held, money raised and an agent with full authority was sent to England, but no property was found and the matter died quietly.

Samuel Hawley, Jr., was tempered in mind much after the manner of his father and grandfather as to the love of land, and although his father had given him several hundred acres, he was not content, and hence we find the following statement in the Connecticut Colony Records, for October, 1705:

"Whereas there are some persons, namely, William Jones and Samuel Hawley, Jr., of Stratford, and Justus Bush of New York, who have, contrary to the laws of this Colony, lately purchased of the Indians some thousands of acres of land lying on the west side of Stratford^s River, as appears by a deed of said purchase now in the hands of the Court." In consequence of the illegality, which was that the land had been purchased without a permit from the Court, the Court directed the Fairfield County Court to proceed against these persons, which undoubtedly they did, but the matter was so arranged that, in 1708, his father, Samuel, Sen., his uncle John and thirty-four others purchased the whole township where it was located under a grant from the General Assembly.

Probably one reason why the Hawleys purchased so many acres of land and held it for higher price was—they had the money with which to do it—a tolerably good reason. "As rich as the Hawleys," is a saying still in the town of Trumbull, Ct.

Note 16.—CAPT. JOSEPH HAWLEY, No. 16, son of Samuel, Sen., born in Stratford, Ct., in 1675, married there Elizabeth Wilcoxson, in 1697. She joined the Stratford church Apr. 6, 1699; and on 17 Feb., 1701, he deeded his lands, "divided and undivided in Stratford," to his brother John Hawley, he, Joseph, being then of "Farmington, Ct.," where he afterwards resided, a prominent citizen until his decease. He became a large landholder, and a considerable part of the old homestead is still in the family and owned by Mr. Ara Hawley, and the present dwelling, represented by the cut in Note 68, stands about twenty rods from the site of the first house, which locality is still marked by several wells which were used nearly one hundred years by the households residing there.

Joseph Hawley was twenty-five years of age when he settled in Farmington in 1700, and soon rose to political and military prominence in the town and State.

He was made Ensign in the militia company in May, 1716; Lieutenant in May, 1717; and Captain in 1723. He was elected Deputy or Representative to the General Assembly for October, 1719; May, 1720; May, 1721; October, 1721; May, 1722; April, 1724; October, 1724; April, 1725; October, 1726; May, 1727; September, 1727; May, 1729; and May, 1738.

*Hawley's Memorial.

Capt. Hawley was a little "old-fashioned," and perhaps a little facetious or conservative in church enterprises as well as political, as may be seen by the following petition presented by him to the Legislature, when he was a member of that body:

"To the Honorable ye General Assembly at hartford ye 18th of May 1725.

"The memorial of Joseph Hawley one of ye house of Representatives humbly sheweth your Memorialist his father and Grandfather & ye whole Church & people of Farmington have used to worship God by singing psalms to his praise In ye mode called ye Old Way.

NOTE 17.—DEA. THOMAS HAWLEY, No. 17, son of Samuel, Sen., married widow Joanna Sherwood, and daughter of Ephraim Boothe, in 1701. They were second cousins. This marriage was erroneously recorded on the town records 1721, whereas in 1715, six years earlier, Joanna signs a document as widow of Sherwood and wife of Hawley. In 1712, also (vol. ii, p. 199), Land Records, Joanna styles herself wife of Thomas Hawley. John Sherwood, of Fairfield, her first husband, died before 1798, when the inventory of his estate was taken, and as she was in 1701 only 23 years of age, and was certainly Thomas Hawley's first wife, the date of the marriage was 1701.

Thomas Hawley joined the Stratfield, now Bridgeport church, by letter from Stratford, in 1699; was chosen Deacon of the same in 1712; died in 1722, and was buried in the old Stratfield burying-ground.

Like his grandfather, father and brothers, he was a large land-holder.

The accompanying cuts represent the grave-stones and inscriptions of himself and widow.

*Will of Deacon Thomas Hawley.

In the name of God amen. I Thomas Hawley of Stratfield, in the County of Fairfield and Colony of Connecticut, in New England, being sick and weak of body but of perfect mind and memory, knowing that it is appointed for man once to die, and being desirous now to set my house in order, not knowing what may be the issue of my present sickness, do make and ordain this my last will and testament as followeth: I firstly and principally I commend my soul to God that gave it, and my body to decent Christian burial at the discretion of my executors, not doubting but through ye mighty power of God, I shall receive it at the general resurrection and hoping for eternal life by ye merits of Jesus Christ my redeemer. And as touching such temporal estate as it hath pleased God to bless me withall in this life, I will bequeath and dispose of the same as followeth:

Item. My will is that out of my moveable estate, be paid and discharged all my just debts and funeral expenses, the rest of my estate I will bequeath and dispose of as followeth:

Item. I give and bequeath unto my loving wife Joanna, one hundred and ten pounds, and that twenty pounds more be in her hands for extraordinary expenses on my son Thomas, under a sad and dangerous infirmity, provided yet if there [be] no occasion to expend it as above said, what remains of the said twenty pounds to be equally divided among all my children; likewise I bequeath to my said wife, one-third part of all my real estate for her use and improvement during her natural life; likewise I bequeath to my said wife ye use and improvement of all my children's portions, until they come of age to inherit their respective parts, the males at twenty-one, the females at eighteen years of age, that it is so long and no longer than she continues my widow; likewise it is my will that if my wife shall choose to live in the lower house that was once Ferris', it be put into tenable repair out of my estate.

Item. I give and bequeath unto my eldest daughter Elizabeth, ninety pounds.

Item. I give and bequeath unto my daughters Mary, Hannah, Esther and Catherine, to each of them eighty pounds.

Item. I give and bequeath unto my sons Ebenezer, Thomas, Ezra and Samuel all the rest of my real estate and the reversion of their mother's thirds, to be equally divided between them, only my eldest son Ebenezer to have my present mansion house, the buildings near adjoining on the same lot more than and above an equal share with his brethren in the rest in consideration of his birth right, and it is my will if any of my daughters decrease before they are of age to inherit or receive their portion, her or their portion or portions shall be equally divided among my living daughters, and if any of my sons decrease before they are of age to inherit, or if they decrease after such adult age intestate and without heirs of their body, his or their portion or portions shall be equally divided among my surviving sons; provided nevertheless that this be not construed to cut off any widow of such son or sons deceasing as above said from her right of dower according to law. And it is my will that my sons shall not alienate any of their lands before they arrive to the age of thirty years, and that my son Thomas shall never alienate his land without the consent of such person or persons [as] may be hereunto appointed by the Court of Probate; likewise it is my will that all the provisions I now have excepting four bushels of wheat due to Mr. Sullivan and excepting fifteen bushels of Indian corn be for the stores of the family and not applied in my inventory; likewise it is my will that the service of Muttock an Indian whom I have bought for time shall be for the family and not applied in my inventory. Further, it is my will that if there shall be occasion of extraordinary expense on my son Thomas before he comes to the age of twenty-one years over and above the said twenty pounds that then my wife and my eldest son jointly or severally expend for him as necessarily may require till he comes of the age of twenty-one years and that such surplage of expense be answered by my sons in equal proportion and proportionally refundal to my wife and eldest son by any other sons as they come of age.

Further, it is my will that whereas I have herein before given my eldest son as acknowledgment of his birth right my present mansion house and buildings adjoining, my intention is that he shall either have the same in specie or the inventoried value thereof in the buildings and lot that was Ferris' against Charles Burdick's, above an equal part with his brethren at the election and discretion of my executors.

Finally, I make, ordain and constitute my loving wife Johanna and my trusty and well beloved friend and kinsman Joseph Booth executors of this my last will and testament, declaring this and no other to be my last will and testament, in witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this second day of May Anno Domini 1722.

No. 18.

Note 19.—EBENEZER HAWLEY, No. 19, son of Samuel, Sen., was born in 1682, and is reported to have lived in Simsbury, Ct.; but very little has been learned of him besides the names of his children, Nos. 2550, 2551, 2552, and 2553. See Mrs. Elizabeth Hawley on page 427.

There is an entry on the Probate Records, at Hartford, Ct., that administration was granted on the estate of Ebenezer Hawley of Simsbury, Ct., June 7, 1757, and that said Ebenezer "departed this life April 10 (or 15, illegible), 1757." Another entry dated May 3, 1756, says: "A request of the commissioners on the estate" was exhibited, and a list of the movables set out to the widow; and that a son James, a minor, aged 18 years, chose Lieut. John Rice, of Farmington, as his guardian. Hence he did not die before 1717, as stated in the table work of this book at No. 19.

Note 20.—Jehiel Hawley, No. 20, son of Samuel, Sen., born in 1685, was a hatter by trade, and settled in Durham, Ct., where he remained probably only a few years. He married Hope Stowe, of Middletown, Ct., daughter of Ichabod, in 1708, and seems to have remained in Middletown until his decease in 1727. Administration was granted to the widow, Hope Hawley, on the estate of her late husband, Jehiel Hawley, Sept. 5, 1727, and the inventory was exhibited to the Court by her, May 7, 1728; and on April 13, 1730, she was empowered to take the guardianship of her children: Hope, aged ten years; Samuel, seven, and Hannah, four.

The following peculiar memoranda are found on the Records of Middletown, Ct., concerning the widow Hope (Stowe) Hawley:

Middletown, Conn., Town Votes—Vol. 2, p. 151. April 1, 1728.

Note 22.—EPHRAIM HAWLEY, No. 22, son of Samuel, Sen., married in 1711, Sarah Curtis, but whose daughter she was has not been ascertained. In some records her name is written Phoebe.

In 1717 his father deeded him 172 acres of land at "White Plain," which is now in Trumbull, Ct., a rich piece of land, and some portion of it has been occupied by some of the Hawley family until within a few years of the present time. In 1727, he was "of Stratford," but in 1728 he was "of Newtown," Ct., and in 1733 he was "of New Milford," Ct.

In the records of Newtown the following is seen: "October ye 19th, 1727. Then agreed and voted by ye inhabitants of Newtown, that Hugh Stillson, Ephraim Hawley and Jeremiah Northrup should be appointed a committee to erect a school house."

"December 9th, 1728. At a lawful town meeting, Ephraim Hawley is chosen selectman, and Stephen Hawley collector for the year ensuing."

He became a large land-holder in the south-eastern portion of the township of New Milford, that which is now Bridge-water, and he resided there about thirty years or more, and several of his children having removed to Arlington, Vt., he went to that place, where it is said he died in 1771, and if so he was 79 years of age. Where and when his wife died has not been ascertained.

The New Milford town records say of him: "Dec. 9, 1734. Voted that Mr. Joseph Benedict and Mr. Ephraim Hawley shall be freed from paying their minister's rate for four months in the winter season for this year in case they pay to a minister at Shepaug in Woodbury."

These men joined the New Milford church in 1720, by letters from Newtown, and Joseph Benedict's house is spoken of as in Shepaug Neck, near the east branch of Wavescow Brook, and Ephraim Hawley lived near him.

* See letter of John Wolcott, 15 Apr., 1839, in Genes. Register, vol. II, p. 373.

Note 23.—CATHARINE HAWLEY, No. 23, daughter of Samuel, Sen., died according to the inscription in the accompanying cut, which represents a field stone, engraved in a rude manner, and which is one of the four of Hawleys standing midway on the north side of the old cemetery in Stratford, Ct.

No. 23.

Note 24.—STEPHEN HAWLEY, No. 24, Son of Samuel, Sen., married Mary, daughter of David De Forest, of Stratford, a Huguenot family of the very best character and public influence. When Stephen Hawley was twenty-three years of age he engaged in business, as indicated by the following record:

"4 Aug., 1718, agreement between William Lamson and Stephen Hawley . . . being equally interested in a falling mill, dam and utensils belonging thereto, standing by Paquonock River, leased to them by Edmund Lewis for the term of twenty years from the date above, agreeing to carry on the trades of falling, tentering and pressing, in the best way and manner they are capable of," and sharing equally in the profits. (Stratford Records, b. 11, p. 338.)

This falling mill was located about three miles north of the present city of Bridgeport, Ct., and it is probable that Stephen Hawley resided there until 1725, for in 1726 his son Nehemiah was born in Newtown, Ct. In 1727, he had seventy acres of land laid out to him in "New Milford, on the west side of the Great River, on the Still River Neck, on a Hill called Rock Hill." This was near or partly on what is now called "Falls Mountain," in New Milford, just below the Great Falls. This land remained in the Hawley family many years, and it was through this land that "the highway was laid out, 28 Dec., 1749, from New Milford to the Newton line." (See Note 151.) In 1733, Stephen Hawley had deeded to him for the town of New Milford, "in one body or tract, 742 acres of land."⁸

⁸This land to all appearances was a part of the tract secured for the town of New Milford by the following deed:

"To all people to whom these presents shall come, greeting: Know ye that I Cockshure, Indian of an Italian plantation within the township of Woodbury in the County of Fairfield and Colony of Connecticut in New England; for and in consideration of a valuable sum of money in hand received, do by these presents for myself and heirs, unto Stephen Hawley of Newtown in the County of New Haven, and Colony aforesaid, and to their successors forever, demise, release, and forever quitclaim my claim, right, title and interest in and unto a certain tract or parcel of land within the township of New Milford aforesaid, being the whole of that interval or River land, be it more or less, lying and adjoining upon the east side of the Great River, so called, and bounding northward upon y^e brook called Wawwecoos, southward upon Woodbury line, and eastward upon the top of the mountain: To them and their successors y^e above demised premises with all manner of its appurtenances as their own proper estate of inheritance in fee simple: to have, hold, occupy and enjoy forever.

Stephen Hawley removed from Newtown to New Milford, Ct., about 1747, where he was when a petition was made, and the following enactment secured:

"Upon the memorial of Stephen Hawley of New Milford, showing this Assembly that he and his family are situate ten miles distant from the parade of the military company to which they belong in New Milford, and praying to be annexed to the company or trainband under the command of Capt. John Glover of Newtown and praying liberty for one male person to tarry at home on training days, etc.:

"Resolved by this Assembly, that the said Stephen Hawley with the male persons belonging to his family, be hereby dismissed from the company to which he now belongs in said New Milford, and are annexed unto the company under the command of Capt. John Glover, and have liberty of one of his male persons tarrying at home each training day, but not exempt from the view of arms and ammunition. May, 1748." (Conn. Col Rec., vol. ix., 372).

"In 1755, an effort was made to raise a fund for the Newbury Society (now the town of Brookfield, Ct.) by the donation of undivided lands. Stephen Hawley gave thirty acres, Joseph Murray five, and John Noble two and a half, and in 1771, another effort was made, when Stephen Hawley gave seven acres more." (Hist. New Milford, Ct., 254).

The Connection of the Hawley with the De Forest Family.

In the sixteenth century the De Forest family was found first at Le Coteau, and some years later at Avesnes in Hainault, France, which region was then under Spanish domination. In 1578 the Huguenots were given two years in which to leave the country or renounce their religion. Some fled to "Le Coteau," others to Ledau, and others to Leyden in Holland; and of these, in 1606, were living four brothers: Jean (John), Jesse, Michel and Gerard De Forest, and their sister Jeanne (Jane), who had married a Cartier from Columbian, France. Jesse and Gerard De Forest were dyers by trade, and of Jean is only known that he had a daughter, married 15 Dec., 1566, while living at Le Coteau.

Gerard De Forest, born at Avesnes, married in Leyden, 12 Aug., 1611, Hester Le Grange, daughter of Crispin and Agnes Le Grange, who was born in Leyden, her parents being French. He lived forty-five years after his marriage, acquired a good property and saw his children respectfully married in Leyden. Of Michael De Forest nothing is known.

- 1 DE FOREST, JESSE, married probably, Marie du Cloux, and in 1621 corresponded with the English in regard to settling in Virginia. That project failed, and in 1623 he joined an expedition for the conquest of Brazil, but probably came to New England or New York. (See Barl's Huguenot Emigration to America, Vol. 1, 174.) His children were:
- 2 I. JEAN, b. in Ledau.
- 3 II. HENRI, b. in 1606; m. Gertrude Borstra, and died childless 26 July, 1637, in New York.
- 4 III. RACHEL, b. m. Doct. Johannes Mousnier de la Montague.

- 8 VII. PHILIPPE, b. in Leyden, bapt. 13 Sept. 1620.

(The above is taken from the Records of the Walloon Church, and Archives of the City of Leyden, Holland.)

Note 25.—BENJAMIN HAWLEY, No. 25, son of Samuel, Sen., was born in 1695, according to his grave-stone, and died May 8, 1767, in his 73d year, according to the same authority. He married, in 1724, Mary, daughter of Capt. Joseph and Mary (Curtis) Nichols. This Mary (Curtis) Nichols, as widow of Capt. Joseph, married Henry Hawley, Sen. (5070), but she was buried with her first husband in Unity burying-ground in Trumbull, Ct. (See Note 186.) (For the Nichols family, see Note 11.)

Soon after they were married, Benjamin Hawley and his wife started on a journey into the wilderness, on horseback, he in the saddle and she on a pillion behind him. Near the close of the day the wife insisted that they must be at the end of the land, and that she would go no further, and there they ended the day's journey. Hence the place where they located was called "Land's End," and this name continued about one hundred years; then when the railroad was built the place was named Hawleyville, for Benjamin's descendants still lived there; and the school district is still called Land's End district, in Newtown, Ct. The locality was about twenty-five miles from where Benjamin and his wife started on their journey, and over thirty from Stratford.

In 1708, Samuel Hawley, his brother John and thirty-four others became the patentees of the township of Newtown, Ct., and settlers first located there in 1713, and only a few were actual set tlers when Benjamin Hawley and his wife went a day's journey to locate in that township, a considerable of the land was still owned by his father Samuel Hawley, and as it proved they did go almost to the western extremity of the township, or the "end of the land." The descendants of Benjamin Hawley still reside in that place, and that Branch of the family have scattered less than any other Branch of the first Joseph Hawley's descendants, except those of Ebenezer of Simsbury and Jebiel of Durham, of whom but little is known.

They afterwards removed to Ripton, now the town of Huntington, Ct., where they were a prominent family many years, he being a Representative to the Colonial Assembly as follows: October 1735, October 1736, May 1737, May 1738, October 1738, October 1740, October 1741, October 1742, May 1743, October 1743, May 1749. He was also Justice of the Peace for the town of Stratford, in Ripton Society. The following are the inscriptions on the tombstones of himself and wife:

Also of MRS. ANN BLACKLEACH, his wife, who Departed this life March the 20th, A. D. 1771, in the 66th year of her age.

Here lies ye Body of MARY BLACKLEACH, Daut of Joseph Blackleach, Esqr. and Mrs. Ann his Wife, Who Died April ye 11, 1751, in ye 4th Year of Her Age.

The Connection of the Hawley with the Blackleach Family.

1 BLACKLEACH, RICHARD, came to Stratford, Ct., and purchased of John Hurd a house lot, October 20, 1678, which is the first record of him in America so far as ascertained. He seems to have been in company with Daniel Shelton, who appears nearly at the same time in Stratford, and who came it is said from Deptford,* Yorkshire, England. They were both merchants, and in the spring of 1686 received liberty from the town of Stratford "to build each of them a warehouse and wharf," which they seem to have improved, and Mr. Blackleach was one of the foremost men of business in the town for about forty years.

He was Justice of the Peace, and the first to build a box pew in the Stratford meeting house, which he did about 1710, at his own expense, upon permission by the town.†

He married, 8 Dec., 1680, Abigail, daughter of John Hudson, of New Haven, Ct. She died in 1712, aged 60 years. He married 2d, 27 Aug., 1717, widow Elizabeth de la Porte Poisson, who died in July, 1725, aged 69 years. She was daughter, probably, of Gabriel Harris of New London, Ct., born 5 June, 1656, and m. 1st, Samuel Wheeler of Stratford, 29 Mar., 1678; and 2d, in 1703, Hugh Nesbitt; in 1712, Edward de la Porte Poisson, a merchant from West Indies, but settled in Derby, Ct., and in 1717 sho m. Richard Blackleach. He died 4 Sept., 1731, aged 78 years.

Here lies the Body of

RICHARD BLACKLEACH, Esq., Deed. Sept. 4th, 1731, in the 78th year of his Age.

Here lies the Body of MRS. ABIGAIL BLACKLEACH, Wife to Richard Blackleach, Esq., Aged 60 years. Died March ye 10, 1712-13.

- 3 II. RICHARD, JR., later of Huntington, Ct. (5½+)
- 4 III. JOSEPH, later of Huntington, Ct. (7½+)
- 5 IV. ABIGAIL, m. Doct. James Laborie, Jr., of Stratford, Ct., 20 Aug., 1716.

for a time of Guilford, Ct., but then of Stratford. They removed to Ripton, now Huntington, Ct. She was the widow of Doct. Anthony Laborie, physician at Guilford and brother of Doct. James Laborie of Stratford. These two Doctors were the sons of Doct. James Laborie, Sen., a French Huguenot of London, Eng., New York, and afterwards of Fairfield, Conn.

The will of Richard Blackleach, dated 27 Feb., 1747-8, and proved 2 Oct., 1750, is recorded at Fairfield, and in it he gives to his granddaughter Mehetable, daughter of Peleg Burritt, "one silver cup and two silver spoons with all my movable estate, and to Sarah Jessup, wife of Edward Jessup of Fairfield, £5, and to her children £30."

The Inventory of the estate was £777 8s.

- 6 I. MEHETABLE, b. 26 Jan., 1716-17.
7 II. MARY, b. Nov., 1719.

7½ III. JOSEPH, (4-), son of Richard Blackleach, Sen., married ANN HAWLEY, daughter of Samuel, Jr., as shown in the beginning of this note, and in the table work of this RECORD, at No. 29.

Note 29.—OBADIAH HAWLEY, No. 30, son of Samuel Hawley, Jr., married Sarah of Stratford, but whose daughter she was is not known. Note 30.—CAPT. FRANCIS HAWLEY, No. 32, son of Samuel Hawley, Jr., settled in the parish of Ripton, now the town of Huntington, Ct., where he was a prominent citizen and farmer for very many years, for he died 24 Feb., 1793, the day he was eighty-eight years of age. He was made Lieutenant of the Train Band in May, 1752, and Captain in 1754, which office he held a number of years.

Capt. Francis Hawley and his brother Samuel were the first persons of the Hawley name, who removed from Stratford village to the parish of Ripton, now the town of Huntington, and hence the following list of inscriptions in the Huntington cemetery is placed in this note, although the persons were not all his descendants:

Not with a tearful view of the great change,
But contemplative, calm, expressing still Sweeter resignation to a higher will
In confidence a bright eternity.

DEA. DAVID HAWLEY, who after a life of distinguished usefulness, died very suddenly Nov. 26, 1824, aged 66. (777)

By his active exertions, his liberal gifts and still more liberal bequests he was the chief instrument in laying the foundation for the perpetual support of the Gospel Ministry in this place. Generations yet unborn will rise up and call him blessed.

"But O Lord, who art I, and what is my people, that we should be able to offer after this sort? For all things come of thee, and of thine own have we given thee, for we are all strangers before thee, and sojourners as were all our fathers; our days on the earth are as a shadow, and there is none abiding."

O Daughter of Zion your sorrows restrain
Nor mourn that his spirit has quitted his clay:
Soon, soon shall we follow and meet him again
Bright robed as a seraph in mansions of day.

For I am happy now

Note 31.—DOCT. JONATHAN HAWLEY, No. 33, son of Samuel Hawley, Jr., lived in Monroe, Ct., and was married four times. He was a practising physician, and lived to the great age of one hundred years. Two traditions are still told of him, with appearance of good authority. The first is that when a young man he had poor health and was not able to do work like other young men, and it being often remarked that he would live but a short time, he became indignant and declared he would not die, and began to study medicine. In due time he recovered good health and became an influential, honored citizen. The other tradition is that he predicted for many years that he should die on his birthday at the age of one hundred years. He was born on the 12th day of January, 1713, and died 12th day of January, 1813.

Israel, the eldest son of Doct. Jonathan Hawley, lived on the homestead of his father, and all his property went to his two daughters, Olive and Charity, who married Burritts.

PEWS AND OCCUPANTS IN THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH, OF STRATFORD, CT., 1745 TO 1797.

Frederick Hawley's Will.*

"In the name of God, Amen. I, Frederick Hawley, of Stratford in the County of Fairfield and Colony of Connecticut, being weak in body, but of sound mind and memory, blessed be God, do this 16th day of March, A. D. 1774, make and publish this my last Will and Testament in manner following: That it is my wife's desire. After my just debts and funeral charges are satisfied, I give and bequeath to my loving wife Sarah Hawley one-third part of my movable estate to be her own forever, and also the use of my dwelling-house at Cutler's Farm, and half of the barn to be used and improve and the use of one-half part of my lands at said Cutler's Farm, and also a negro man-servant called London, during the time that she shall remain my widow.

"I give to the Church of England in Ripton the sum of twenty pounds lawful money to be paid out of my movable estate within one year after my decease.

"Item. I give and bequeath to my nephew Elisha Blagg Hawley the sum of ten pounds lawful money, to be paid out of my movable estate when he shall arrive at the age of twenty-one years.

"I give and bequeath all the remainder of my estate, both real and personal, to my four brothers, viz: Richard Hawley, Gideon Hawley, Elias Hawley and Matthew Hawley, to be equally divided among them, and I make and ordain my good and trusty friend, Nathaniel Sherman of said Stratford, and my loving wife Sarah Hawley executors of this my last will and testament, in witness whereof I, the said Frederick Hawley have to this my last will and testament set my hand and seal the day and year above-written.

FREDERICK HAWLEY."

This will shows he had a wife, Sarah, whose name, for want of knowledge at the time, is not given in the table work of this book at No 38. In the distribution of his estate, Jan. 20, 1783, his widow, who had married a "Wakeman," received £141 14s. 5d., and each of the four brothers £277 12s. 10d. He attended the Episcopal Church, although his name does not appear as a pew-holder.

Note 34.—GIDEON HAWLEY, LL.D.,† No. 150, son of Gideon Hawley, Sen., was born 26 Sept., 1785, in the parish of Ripton in the town of Stratford, Ct. He worked on his father's farm until 1804, when he was sent to the academy at Ballstou, Saratoga Co., N. Y., to be fitted for college, under the direction of Rev. Dr. Perry. He entered Union College in 1805, and was graduated in 1809, after a highly creditable career of study. The venerable Rev. Dr. Van Vechton, of Schenectady, for many years past one of the trustees of Union College, was his class-mate and room-mate during his college course, and at the funeral of his departed friend spoke of him in warm terms of respect and affection. Mr. Hawley remained at Union College as a tutor for about one year, and during the same time pursued the study of law with Henry Yates of Schenectady. Being, however, destined for the ministry of the Presbyterian Church, he commenced his theological studies under the direction of his family pastor. The Calvinistic doctrines which mark the confession of faith and the catechisms of that Church soon presented themselves, and he freely consulted with his teacher as to his doubts and difficulties in regard to them. The explanations he received were not satisfactory, and with that high moral tone which marked his whole career, he determined not to profess a creed which he could not conscientiously stand by, and he at once abandoned his theological studies and resumed the study of law, in the office of Bleecker & Sedgwick, of Albany—both distinguished members of the Bar of that day—and was admitted to the Supreme Court in 1812.

He was appointed State Superintendent of Common Schools, an office then recently created by the Legislature. The salary attached to that office being small—only $400 per annum—he found it necessary also to enter upon the practice of law, and did so in partnership with Philip S. Parker, Esq., a lawyer highly esteemed in professional and social life, and who subsequently became Recorder of Albany. Mr. Hawley, however, addressed himself with great earnestness to his official work. A system was to be organized; interest in public schools was to be excited; laws were to be drafted and the Legislature to be influenced for their passage; and he proved himself equal to the work; for his sound judgment, incorruptible integrity, and zealous devotion to the cause entrusted to him, secured the confidence of the Legislature to such an extent that, on the consideration of an important law, he was called upon the floor of the Assembly to answer inquiries and explain its provisions. He was emphatically the Father of the Common School System of the State. In accordance with his suggestions, the Legislature enacted the "Amended School Law of 1814," and the "Revised School Act" of 1819.

Mr. Hawley retained his office until in 1821, when by political changes he was superseded, and in a few months the office was abolished. A very proper and appreciative review of Mr. Hawley's successful work as Superintendent of Common Schools was published in Randall's "Digest of Education" in 1844, pages 28, 29.

He was also appointed, and served with much efficiency, as Secretary of the Regents of the State of New York, from 1814 until in 1841, when he resigned. In 1842, he was appointed by the Legislature one of the Regents and continued a member of that Board until his decease.

In 1818, Mr. Hawley was elected one of the Trustees of the Albany Academy, an institution which occupied a very prominent position among the educational institutions of the State. He was also one of the trustees named in the charter of the Albany Female Academy, the first institution of its class in the State, and which was incorporated by the Legislature on the sixteenth day of February, 1821.

On the organization of the State Normal School in 1845, Mr. Hawley was appointed one of the Executive Committee for its care and management; and he remained at his post, the last of the original board, many of them distinguished citizens, in the faithful and zealous discharge of his duties until 1852, when he resigned. He was also, for fifteen years, one of the Regents of the Smithsonian Institute at Washington, D. C., having been appointed to that office by Congress on the organization of that institution in 1846.

Besides the energy and zealous effort given to the foregoing public positions, Mr. Hawley was successful in his law business. In November, 1812, he was appointed, without any request on his part, to the office of Master in Chancery, the business of which at that time was quite limited; but the increase of commerce of the country, and the ability, the learning and the high personal character of the distinguished individual then at the head of the court, Chancellor Kent, commanded the respect and confidence of the public, and the business of the Court rapidly enlarged. Mr. Hawley, by his well-known professional acquirements and his conceded integrity, had secured the full confidence, not only of the Chancellor, but of the members of the Bar generally, and reference of cases pending in Chancery for the purpose of effecting judicial sales of property, for taking accounts and the settlement of estates, came to him from all parts of the State. He was also appointed Injunction and Taxing Master, which added largely to his powers and duties. For several years his Master's business was so considerable, that his income from it much exceeded that of most of his professional brethren who were in full practice. This office he resigned in 1830.

In 1819, he was appointed Secretary of the Old Albany Insurance Company, a corporation formed in 1811, by prominent citizens of Albany, but a business then little understood. This position he retained with success until about the year 1853, when he resigned it.

He was a director at an early day of the Mohawk and Hudson (subsequently called the Albany and Schenectady) Railroad Company, the first railroad company chartered in the State of New York, and he was subsequently for many years the financial officer of the Utica and Schenectady Railroad Company, one of the most successful corporations in the history of many railroad enterprises of the country.

Besides these, other positions of responsibility were conferred upon him, in consequence of his business ability, integrity and signal success.

After much suffering with internal disease for several years, he departed this life in the comfort of a reasonable, religious hope, at peace with God, and in perfect charity with the world,¹⁷ 16 July, 1870.

His mother Sarah was the daughter of Jonathan, Jr., and Eunice (Sumners) Curtis, of Huntington, Ct.

Note 37.—MILTON HAWLEY, No. 362, son of Capt. Francis, married Hepzibah De Forest, about 1758. They resided on their farm in what is now Monroe, Ct., a prominent well-to-do family. (For the De Forest Family, see Note 24.)

Some pleasing reminiscences of Hepzibah (De Forest) Hawley, have been furnished by a great-grand-daughter of hers, and are inserted here with pleasure.

Copy of a Letter.

"Monroe, Ct., Sept. 1, 1826.

"MR. NICHOLS:

"The following verses were inscribed yesterday, verbatim, as they fell from the lips of Mrs. Hepzibah Hawley of Monroe, now in the ninety-third year of her age. They were composed, she says, and arranged in her mind soon after the capture of Burgoyne in 1777, where they have been since stored in her memory.

"They have never been written off, she says, but once, about forty years since, by a brother of hers living at a distance, for his own amusement.

"The old lady remarked that she never went to school but four weeks in her life, and that what little learning she had she picked up in the family of which she was a member, amidst hard work every day."

THE CAPTURE OF BURGUYNE.

European persecution sent
 Our fathers to this Continent;

They left the tyrant with disdain,
 And ventured on the raging main;
 And when they reached the western shore
 The savage monsters round them roar.
 But God diminished them in haste,
 And to their room our Fathers placed.
 Twas God's own hand, we must confess,
 That brought them to this wilderness,
 And made it blossom like the rose
 In spite of all their cruel foes.

But when the anelet stock was dead,
 And others raised up in their stead,
 A British tyrant sought again
 To lead us with his galling chain.
 But our brave sons in freedom born
 Do proud oppressive tyrants scorn;
 Resolved to die, or ever be
 From their tyrannic bondage free.

The fleets and armies that they sent,
 Our peace and quiet to prevent,
 Did burn our towns, inflame our shores;
 (The thundering cannon round us roar).
 At this the Continent rose
 The British tyrants to oppose.
 They in one common cause engage,
 Resolved to quell such cruel rage.

At length the great Burgoyne appears,
 On the south part of our frontiers:
 "I am Burgoyne, the great and strong,
 "With monstrous strides I've marched along,
 "Therefore prepare my way before me,
 "I'm come to raise Old England's glory."

But there is a Power that reigns on high
 That did this great Burgoyne spy;
 And laughed at all his airy dreams
 And spoiled all his airy schemes.
 He sent some force to Bennington,
 Where his defeat was first begun;
 For Starks was there, and nobly stood
 Resolved to do his country good;
 And when the battle it was done,
 Brave General Starks the victory won,
 And caused proud Britaine's sons to yield,
 When left him Master of the field.
 This soon alarmed the states,
 And hastened on brave General Gates,
 Who did surround this great Burgoyne
 And forced his Lordship to resign.

"These verses were copied by Doct. Elijah Middlebrook, from Mrs. Hawley's dictation, although his name was not attached to the letter, and were printed in his Almanac, which he published for many years; they were also printed in the Bridgeport Farmer by Stiles Nichols, who published that paper many years.

"Mrs. Hawley as a little child lived near Stratford, but when she was eight years old her parents removed into what was then almost a wilderness, the frontier back (west) of Monroe or Huntington. Indians were their nearest neighbors, and her mother's grandmother, Harvey, taught her. She had real genius and love of art. She designed patterns for embroidering rugs; she painted her window shades, and braided the roots of different pinks together to variegate the colors. A number of her descendants have developed artistic ability, and consider the gift an heritage from her. At the age of ninety-five she told a gentleman who has died within a few years, that she could repeat hymns from Sunday morning to Saturday night, and that if Watts' Hymns were out of print, she could supply the text for a new edition from memory. As she was born in 1734, she was 'of age' during the Revolution, and with her remarkable memory was 'a mine of wealth' to historians in the early part of this century.*

Note 38.—HANNAH HAWLEY (WHEELER), No. 365, daughter of Capt. Francis Hawley, married Capt. Samuel Wheeler as his second wife, 26 Nov., 1781. Capt. Samuel was a sea captain, residence in Stratford, Ct.

*The Connection of the Hawley with the Wheeler Family.

1 WHEELER, MOSES, was in New Haven as early as 1641, and probably came with that company from London in 1638. He may have been a brother of Thomas Wheeler of New Haven. Moses Wheeler was a ship carpenter, and was in Stratford as early as 1648, when the privilege to establish and maintain a ferry across the Housatonic was granted him by the General Court, and the ferry continued as his property and that of his descendants several generations. He was prosperous and his descendants after him, more than to the "third and fourth generations." He died as indicated by the inscription in the accompanying fac-simile engraving of his gravestone.

Moses Wheeler's wife's name was Miriam, and it has been said that she was the sister of Joseph Hawley the first in Stratford, but of this no certain knowledge is obtained. Their children were:

2 1. ELIZABETH, b. 1 Aug., 1642, in New Haven; m. 1st, Samuel Blakeman, and 2d, Jacob Walker. Her daughter Mercy Walker m. Abraham Wooster, and became the mother of General David Wooster, killed at Danbury, in the Revolutionary War.

Note 39a.—HON. CHARLES HAWLEY, No. 380, son of Capt. Cyrus Hawley, was born in what is now Monroe, Ct. in 1792. He married Mary Stiles, daughter of David Holley of Stamford, 28 Jan., 1821.

"Hon. Charles Hawley was graduated at Yale College in 1816, studied law at Litchfield Law School, was admitted to the bar, and established a law office at Stamford, in 1819. He rose rapidly in his profession, and although he was not a politician, he represented his adopted town in six sessions, 1823, '24, '26, '27, '28 and '29, of the State legislature; and once, in 1830, he represented his Senatorial district in the State Senate. Once, also, he served the State as Lieutenant Governor. But his tastes and aims were pre-eminently professional, and his success, both in professional eminence and in wealth, were very great. His estate was one of the largest ever gathered in the town, and it was as solid as it was large.*

The Holley Family of Stamford.

- 1 "HOLLEY, SAMUEL,† was born in Cambridge, Mass., in 1636, and in his will‡ dated 22 Oct., 1643, and which was proved 5 Dec., 1643, he refers to his wife Elizabeth and his son John without naming either," [but the names of both are found by the records of their land.]
- "HOLLY, JOHN, Stamford 1664, representative in 1670, and for Greenwich, 1673.

* History of Stamford, Ct.

† Savage's Genealogical Dictionary, p. 448. Spelled "Holley" in 1636.

‡ Abstract of the Will of Samuel Holley, in Suffolk Co., Mass., Records, 5 (10) 43 [in the margin].

"Because it is appointed for all men once to dye, & the dayes of men in this world are but like a shadowe ys soone departedh, Therefore I, Samuel Holley, doe make this my last will. Effects to my loving wife, except Tenn acres of land to my soone according to a former writing, and the remaining part of the inclosed tott to goe to my soone and his heirs; to goe after ys decease of my wife, but she to have vs use & possession thereof during her life. To my soone one blue Sutte of apparel, one hatt one p^r of shooes; all other my lands and goods I give to my wife, whom I doe make my sole Execut^r. This 22th day of October 1643.

Witnesses: JOHN JACKSON,
EDWARD JACKSON.

"From the inventory of his effects we learn that he died 'in ys bounds of Cambridge. Amount of estate £15 13s. 2d.' (N. E. Gen. Register, vol. II, 385.)

"ELIZABETH, coide in the ship Blessing, 1635, aged 30."

Such is the record given in Savage's Genealogical Dictionary, and this Elizabeth Holley who came in 1635 aged 30, must have been the wife of Samuel Holley and the widow to whom with his son John he left his estate.

Judge Savage says further: "In the biography of Horace Holly, Yale, 1803, D. D., the eloquent President of Transylvania University, he is derived, but not to genealogical satisfaction, from the celebrated astronomer Halley." Very true, for, in the "Handbook of Biography by Elihu Rich, London Edition, 1863," page 299, is the following: "HALLEY, EDMUND, a celebrated astronomer, was born in London on the 8th November, 1656. His father, who was a soap-boiler, sent him to St. Paul's School." John Holley was a citizen of Stamford in 1647, and therefore was a number of years older than the astronomer Halley, and his father, Samuel Holley, was in Cambridge, Mass., twenty years before the astronomer was born.

2 CAPT. JOHN, son of Samuel Holley, removed from Cambridge, Mass., to Stamford, Ct., where he "purchased land 26, 12th, 1647, and from that date was a noted man and much in the public service.

"In 1779, he gave his house and land to his son Samuel, and land to his son John, reserving to himself and wife half the fruit of the orchard. He also gave land at the same date to his son Increase.

The family number among their ancestry in England, Dr. Lethur Halley, who was born Oct. 29, 1556, in St. Leonard's parish, Shoreditch, London."

John Holly of Stamford dated his will 14th 2d mo. 1681, which was proved June 28, 1681, and recorded in Fairfield, Ct. Probate Records, in which he mentions his wife Mary and the following children:

- 3 I. JOHN. (11½ +)
- 4 II. SAMUEL.
- 5 III. INCREASE.
- 6 IV. ELISHA. (25½ +)
- 7 V. JONATHAN.
- 8 VI. ELIZABETH. m. Turney.
- 9 VII. BETHIA. m. Weed.
- 10 VIII. HANNAH. m. Hoyt.
- 11 IX. ABIGAIL.

11½ I. JOHN, JR., (3—), son of John Holley, Sen., was born, probably in Massachusetts, and, according to Probate Records at Fairfield, Ct., married Susannah, daughter of John Sollick, of Stamford, Ct. He was a cooper, and his will was dated Sept. 18, 1715. The inventory of his estate was dated Feb. 1716-17. In his will he mentions the following children:

- 12 I. JOHN. (17½ +)
- 13 II. NATHANIEL.
- 14 III. HANNAH.
- 15 IV. ELIZABETH.
- 16 V. SARAH.

17½ I. JOHN, 3d, (12—), son of John Holley, Jr., married Abigail. He died April. 1724. In the distribution of his estate as given in Fairfield Probate Records, their children are mentioned as follows:

- 18 I. JOHN.
- 19 II. JOSIAH.
- 20 III. FRANCIS.
- 21 IV. ABIGAIL.
- 22 V. JOANNAH.
- 23 VI. MERCY.
- 24 VII. HANNAH.
- 25 VIII. MARY.

* Stamford History, p. 33; 275.

25% IV. ELISHA, (6—), son of John Holley, Sen., married Martha. His will was dated at Stamford, Ct., Oct. 27, 1719, and was proved Jan. 22, 1719-20. In it he mentions his wife Martha and the following children :

- 26 I. ELISHA.
- 27 II. ELIPHALET.
- 28 III. ELNATHAN.
- 29 IV. ISRAEL.
- 30 V. MARYA, m. Leeds.
- 31 VI. ABIGAIL.
- 32 VII. SARAH.

The connection of Hon. Charles Hawley's wife, Mary Stiles, daughter of David Holley, with the above family has not been obtained, but she belonged to the Stamford family of Holleys. Further accounts of the descendants of the first John Holley at Stamford, have been received from individuals, but they are so conflicting that the whole matter is left for further research.

Note 40.—JANE HAWLEY (DE FOREST), No. 382, daughter of Capt. Cyrus Hawley of Monroe, Ct., married Linsion De Forest. (For the De Forest Family, see Note 24. For the Tomlinson Family, see Note 12.)

Note 41.—JANE DE FOREST SHELTON, No. 402, daughter of Edwin N. and Mary Jane (De Forest) Shelton, is here specially mentioned, because of the cheerful and continued encouragement and assistance she has rendered to the author in the prosecution of this work. Friendly words and cheerful enterprise manifested towards such a work is often of as much value as any help that can be rendered. A few suggestions, as to where to find material, frequently lead to interesting discoveries, as proved in this case, and it is with much pleasure that the author acknowledges his obligations to this lady.

SHELTON MONUMENT AT HUNTINGTON, CT.

Miss Shelton is the author of the "Shelton Memorial," a work containing a "Commemorative Discourse" by the Rev. William Shelton, D. D., of Buffalo, N. Y., delivered June 14, 1877, at the dedication of the Shelton Monument, erected in Huntington, Ct., and represented above; a "Genealogy of the Shelton Family" compiled by herself, "and other papers." In completing the HAWLEY RECORD, reference has frequently been made to the Shelton Genealogy, to good advantage.

The Connection of the Hawley with the Shelton Family.

Note 41½.—REV. WILLIAM HAWLEY, No. 497, son of Joseph Hawley, Jr., of Huntington, Ct., married Susan Cook, daughter of Elisha and Ruth (Beardsley) Beardsley, 11 October, 1848. Ruth was daughter of Thaddeus and Sarah (Cook) Beardsley.

Rev. William Hawley, without a college education, commenced preaching as licentiate in 1855, and in the autumn of 1858 he was ordained pastor and missionary at the Baptist Church in Bloomingdale, N. J., where he remained a year and a half, when a hemorrhage of the lungs compelled him to resign his pastorate. Hence he was a Baptist Clergyman, not a Congregational, and he died of consumption of the lungs, 18 April, 1861. His son Frank James was killed by lightning, with two others, one account says, not nine, while in the schoolhouse at Walnut-tree Hill district in Huntington, Ct., 16 June, 1868, seven years after his father died. For the inscriptions on their tombstones, see Note 30, at No. 32. The following lines were composed by the boy's mother soon after his decease :

Art thou no more, my only son?
 Thy form I do not see
 Amid my household hand so dear
 Where thou wast wont to be.
 Our home is lone and desolate,
 For now thou art not there,
 Whose joyous step and merry voice
 Did lighten every care.
 It was a dread and fiery flash,
 That struck the fatal blow;
 It sealed thine eyelids quick in death,
 And fills my heart with woe.
 For oh! had joy my bosom thrilled
 As I cast eye on thee;
 Whose loving heart and fond caress
 Were more than pearls to me.
 But He who gave thee at the first,
 Did take thee from my sight;
 His ways are just, His counsels wise
 Though they are veiled in night.
 Thy mortal body now is laid
 Within the silent tomb,
 Where it must sleep a dreamless sleep
 Until the general doom.
 But spirits are not made of clay,
 And do not sleep in dust;
 Oh! if thine soared from earth away
 To live among the just,—
 I would not thee again recall
 From the celestial home:
 For there beside the river pure,
 The ransomed ones do roam.

Note 42.—FRANCIS HAWLEY, No. 514, son of Lewis Hawley, of Solon, Cortland County, N. Y., married Anna, Thayer of Truxton, N. Y., whose family it was hoped could be secured so as to make a connection with the first immigrants, but that end has not been accomplished.

Note 43.—CAPT. HIRAM L. HAWLEY, No. 515, son of Lewis, was born in 1813, in the town of Taylor, in the county of Cortland, N. Y., and died in Syracuse, N. Y., March 12, 1879. At the age of thirteen he left his father's house to make his own way in the world, and in a short time after he was engaged as a cabin boy on one of the steamers plying between Cincinnati and New Orleans. He rose rapidly through the different grades, from cabin boy to captain, and from captain to owner, and during his sojourn in the South built nine of the first steamers on the river. Kind and courteous to all, strictly temperate in his habits, his name as the "Temperance Captain" was well known the entire length of the Mississippi. There was no danger he did not share, no hardship that he ever shunned; brave and manly he walked the decks of his vessels as one "born to command." One little incident illustrates his character: A child fell overboard; Mr. Hawley, then only twenty, without a moment's hesitation threw himself into the water and saved the little one.

During his residence in Cincinnati, he won for himself an enviable social position, honored and respected by those who knew his reputation, and loved by those who knew him. In 1855 he came back to his native State and engaged in the manufacture of salt in the town of Salina, in which business he continued until his death. As a business man he had the entire confidence of those with whom he came in contact. Honorable, prompt and energetic, his word was never doubted and his engagements always kept.

As a husband and father his place in the hearts of his wife and children will always remain unfilled, save by his memory, and the vacant chair will always be looked at through the blinding tears, and in the years to come the wish will often find its way from heart to lips "that father could be here." The latter part of his life was spent in unremitting toil for those he should leave behind. In this labor of love, he knew no deprivation, no discomfort. Patient and tender, he stood between those he loved and the world's troubles. But he has gone, and as the impress of the years seemed to have glided noiselessly and imperceptibly from his face as he lay in his last resting-place, so the care and toil of this life have left him forever.

Note 44.—HON. CYRUS MADISON HAWLEY, No. 516, son of Lewis Hawley of Huntington, Ct., and Solon, N. Y., and grandson of Capt. Francis Hawley of Huntington, Ct., was born in 1815.

All the information obtained of him is the fact that he became a lawyer and an Associate Judge of the U. S. Supreme Court of Utah, of decided ability and distinction, which facts are corroborated by a number of his Court decisions which were published in pamphlet form, under the following titles:

- Opinion of the Supreme Court as to the Jurisdiction of Probate Courts in the Territory of Utah. 1870.
- An Important Decision of the United States Supreme Court for the Territory of Utah. 1871.
- Arrest of Militia Officers in Utah Territory. After 1870.

Note 47.—SARAH WHEATON (TANEY), No. 613. It was hoped that a direct connection between this and the original Taney family could be made, but this has not been accomplished. This name by typographical error is printed "Fanny" instead of Taney, on page 43 of this book.

Note 48.—JANE WHEATON (WHEATON), No. 614. The connection with the original Wheaton family has not been secured as was intended.

Note 49.—EPIRAIM HAWLEY, No. 618, son of Doctor Jonathan Hawley, married Ruth Wakeley, and settled as a farmer near Cutler's Farm in the town of Monroe, Ct., where he died 15th Sept, 1833, aged 82 years.

The following is his will, it being a little unusual in the fructiousal method of dividing his estate:

"I Epiraim Hawley, of Monroe, in Fairfield County, do hereby make and declare this to be my last will and testament.

"First. I give and devise to my wife Ruth Hawley, the use of one-third part of my Real Estate during her life, and I do order that the distribution of my entire be such as that such one-third part shall embrace the house in which I now live, and the barn on the opposite side of the Highway. I do further give and bequeath to my said wife two cows, six sheep, one yearling and one two year old, each to be of average value with the stock of the same kind (provided I should leave any other). I do further give and bequeath to my said wife all my household furniture.

"In case the remaining part of my personal estate shall, being sold, be insufficient for the payment of my just debts, funeral charges and expenses incurred in the settlement of my estate, I do order that my Real Estate stand charged for the deficiency, and that a sufficient quantity of it be sold for the purpose of making up such deficiency.

"Secondly. I do give and devise to my son Philo, one-fifth part of all my Real Estate and in addition to such one-fifth part, I do give and devise to my son Philo so much of the remaining part of my Real Estate as shall be estimated to be worth one hundred and sixty-six dollars and sixty-seven cents to be set off to him in the settlement of my estate.

"Thirdly. I do give and devise to my grandchild, Ira Hawley, one-third of one-fourth part of the remainder of my Real Estate, after deducting that above devise to my son Philo.

"Fourthly. I do give and devise to my granddaughter Mariette Hawley, the remaining one-third of such fourth part of the Real Estate, remaining as next above mentioned, provided herein that in ascertaining the rights of my said grandchildren Ira and Mariette, the value of the house occupied by my son Abijah, at the time of his death, and of the piece or lot of land in which such house is situated, shall be estimated and considered as a part of their portion, and such value of said house and lot shall equally diminish the rights of my above named grandchildren to my Real Estate.

"Fifthly. I do give and devise to my grandsons Elbert, Hiram and Carlos Hawley, each two-ninths parts of the second one-fourth part of such remainder of my estate after the right of said son Philo shall have been distributed to him.

"Sixthly. I do give and devise to my granddaughters Susan, Sylvania and Harriet, each one-ninth part of the fourth part last above mentioned, provided however that any charges which I have on my book against my son Cyrus at the time of my death, shall, to the amount of such charges diminish the rights of the said Elbert, Hiram, Charles, Susan, Sylvania and Harriet in my Real Estate, and in the proportion of their several interests in such estate.

"Seventhly. I do give and devise to my daughter Nancy Nichols, the third one-fourth part of such remainder of my Real Estate after the right of my son Philo shall have been distributed to him, during her natural life, remainder [probably remaining] to the lawful children of the said Nancy and the sons among such children of my daughter Nancy, shall in such remainder take two parts while the females take one part.

"Eighthly. I do give and devise to my daughter Martha Burr, the remaining one-fourth part of such remainder of my estate after the right of my said son Philo shall have been distributed to him, during her natural life, remainder [probably remaining] in full to the lawful children of my said daughter Martha.

"I hereby constitute and appoint Philo Hawley, of said Monroe to be the executor of this my last will and testament.

Dated at Monroe the 25th day of January, A. D., 1826.

A niece of his, Mrs. Polly M. Middlebrook (695), wrote as follows in 1880: "I think probably Ballston, of Saratoga Co., must be the wonderful Ballston of my childhood, and probably the Hawleys of Half Moon are descendants of my uncle Jonathan. I remember my father going up to my uncle's, at or near Ballston, to pay him money, on one or two occasions. He bought out Jonathan's interest in grandfather's estate and made yearly payments."

Note 51.—CAPT. ABEL HAWLEY, No. 622, son of Doct. Jonathan, lived at Stepey, Monroe, Ct. He married Sarah Nichols and had a large family, but the record of their descendants is quite incomplete. Note 52.—NANCY HAWLEY (NICHOLS), No. 636, was born in 1791, and married Burton J. Nichols, March 12, 1811. Her father, Ephraim, was the son of Dr. Jonathan Hawley, both prominent families, near "Cutler's Farm," now in the town of Monroe, Ct. The following paper, still preserved, shows the "setting out" the young lady received upon commencing house-keeping, a little over a year after she was married:

"A list of articles of property which I, the subscriber, have this day lent to my daughter, Nancy Nichols, wife of Burton J. Nichols, viz: One bureau, one chest, one cow, five sheep, eleven geese and eleven geese, three beds, eight common chairs, eight Windsor chairs, one stand, one cherry table, one common table, one large looking-glass, one set knives and forks, one large kettle, one porridge-pot, one tea-kettle, one dish-kettle, money for a brass kettle (10 dollars), six pewter plates, twelve earthen plates, one set of china, two sets of tea-cups, two pairs, three candle-sticks, one shovel and tongs, one pair fire-dogs, six milk-pans, four earthen pots, two tea-pots, eighteen sheets, eight blankets, three coverlids, sixteen pillow-beers, nine towels, four diaper table-cloths, one large wheel, one double wheel and one reel, and one hive of bees. All which above articles of property I hereby declare that I have lent to the said Nancy Nichols during my pleasure, with the right of reclaiming any or all of them whenever I shall think proper to call for them.

"Witness my hand at Huntington this 7th day of May, 1812.

EPHRAIM HAWLEY.

"In presence of { ABMAH HAWLEY, BETSEY HAWLEY.

"I hereby acknowledge the foregoing instrument to contain a true list of the articles of property received by my wife, Nancy Nichols, of her father, Ephraim Hawley, on the 7th of May, 1812, upon the terms in said instrument specified.

BURTON J. NICHOLS."

Note 53.—COMFORT BURTON HAWLEY (MIDDLEBROOK), No. 690, daughter of Capt. Abel Hawley, married Doct. Elijah Middlebrook, of Long Hill, in Trumbull, Ct., in 1810. Doct. Middlebrook was a successful physician, and filled, for many years, offices in the County, State and National Medical societies and organizations. He was the editor of the noted "Middlebrook's New England Almanac," which he published more than fifty years, in which the astronomical calculations were made by himself. (History of Stratford, 1247).

POLLY MELISSA HAWLEY, No. 695, sister of the above, married, in 1820, Doct. Stephen Middlebrook, brother of Elijah, above, of Long Hill, in Trumbull, Ct., who was an esteemed physician, but early relinquished his practice and died at Long Hill, 18 Oct., 1850, aged 54 years. The widow, Polly Melissa, was living in Kendallville, Ia., in 1880, and furnished some interesting facts concerning her grandfather, Doct. Jonathan Hawley and his family. In one thing she differs from my record, and that is that he died on his 95th birthday instead of one hundred. She says: "I have always supposed it to be a fact beyond dispute, that he died on his 95th birthday. I remember the event perfectly well. It made an impression on my mind from the fact that for several years before his death he predicted that he should die on his birthday, and he looked for every one to be his last."

Note 53½.—DEA. DAVID HAWLEY, No. 777, son of Matthew Hawley, was born in 1756, and died in 1824, aged 66 years. He married Mary, daughter of Nathan Welles, of Stratford, Ct. She was in a regular line of descent from Gov. Thomas Welles, of Connecticut. Deacon David Hawley was a prominent man in the town of Huntington, Ct., a philanthropic and religious man and citizen. (For Welles family see Note 12.)

The following is found in the land records of the town of Huntington, Vol. I, p. 642:

"This may certify whom it may concern, that I, David Hawley, of Huntington, in the county of Fairfield, have determined to make free my two servants, namely, Philip Phillips, a negro man, and Peg, a negro woman, his wife, and my will and Pleasure is to Immanicate and make free said servants, and I do by these presents fully and freely Declare them both to be Free Persons, and never hereafter to be bond slaves, either to me or my heirs, or to any Person or Persons under me or my heirs. In Confirmation of the above, I have hereunto set my hand and seal.

"Dated, Huntington, December 17, 1792.

DAVID HAWLEY. [Seal.]

"Upon application made to us, the subscribers, by the above named Mr. David Hawley, of Huntington, for a certificate that he had made Free his Servants, namely, Philip Phillips, a negro man, and Peg, a negro woman, his wife; we, having Examined Said negroes as the Law Directs, do find them to be healthy and industrious, prudent and of good Moral Character and very Desirous to be made Free Persons.—Said Phillips is in the 44 year of his ago and Peg is in the 43 year of her age; we therefore certify them both to be within the letter of the Law for Freedom. Dated at Huntington, December 17, A. D. 1792.

Tomestone Inscription in Huntington Cemetery.

DEA. DAVID HAWLEY, who after a life of distinguished usefulness, died very suddenly Nov. 26, 1824, aged 66.

By his active exertions, his liberal gifts and still more liberal requests he was the chief instrument in laying the foundation for the perpetual support of the Gospel Ministry in this place. Generations yet unborn will rise up and call him blessed.

"But O Lord, who art I, and what is my people, that we should be able to offer after this sort? for all things come of thee, and of thine own have we given thee, for we are all strangers before thee, and sojourners as were all our fathers; our days on the earth are as a shadow, and there is none abiding."

O Daughter of Zion your sorrows restrain
Nor mourn that his spirit has quitted his clay:
Soon, soon shall we follow and meet him again
Bright robes to us as a seraph in mansions of day.

Note 54.—TIMOTHY HAWLEY, No. 864, son of Capt. Joseph Hawley, was born in Farmington, Ct., 1704, and resided in Farmington some years, perhaps until the latter part of his life, when he settled in Granby, Ct., where he died in 1785. His will was dated Nov. 9, 1781, and proved Aug. 4, 1788, and in it he mentions his wife Rachel, sons Timothy and Rufus, daughters Abigail and Deborah, and a grandson, Timothy Ruggles Hawley. His son Thomas signed the settlement of the estate in Granby, the others in Farmington.

He married into two good families, Thompson and Forward, but the immediate connection of these two persons with those families has not been obtained.

Note 55.—HANNAH HAWLEY (ROOT), No. 865, daughter of Captain Joseph Hawley, married, probably, 1st, Thomas Norton (or Morton) of Farmington, but earlier of Lebanon, Ct. He died 24 May, 1734, aged 29 years, and she married 2d, Thomas Root, and her granddaughter, Huldah, daughter of her son, Eleazer Root, married ICHABOD HAWLEY. She was first cousin, once removed, to her husband. (For the Root Family see Note 68.)

Note 55.—SAMUEL HAWLEY, No. 866, son of Capt. Joseph Hawley, was born in Farmington, Ct., in 1709, settled in Northampton, an Ecclesiastical Society in the western part of the town of Farmington, now the town of Avon. But little information has been obtained concerning his descendants.

Samuel Hawley's will was dated 30 May, 1765, and probated 1st October, 1765, and distribution of the estate was ordered by the Court 7 June, 1768. On 23 March, 1769, John, the eldest son, was appointed by the Court guardian of Jesse, the youngest, whose age was eleven years.

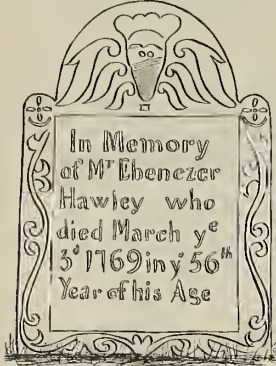

In this will Samuel Hawley gives to his wife "Elizabeth, my looms and all loom tackling, reeds, &c., and to my son Samuel my shoemaker's tools." He mentions his sons Elijah and Elisha and "my beloved little son Jesse Hawley." He mentions his daughter Elizabeth and his youngest daughters Rhoda and Lydia; and appoints his "brother Ebenezer Hawley, of Farmington, and my son John" as executors of his will.

This abstract of this will has been obtained since the table-work in this book was prepared for the printer, and it is probable that the record there (page 60) of two wives for this Samuel is incorrect, yet this Elizabeth may have been a second wife of the same name as the first. Also the record there of Samuel, Junior, being dead, is incorrect, since the will says he was living and received his portion with the rest.

Note 57.—EBENEZER HAWLEY, No. 868, son of Capt. Joseph Hawley, of Farmington, Ct., married 1st, Mary, daughter of Hawkins Hart, of Wallingford, Ct. She died at the age of 37 years. He married 2d, Keziah, daughter of Dea James Smith. She died 2 Jan., 1802, at the age of 74 years. The name of this second wife is erroneously printed in the table work, page 61, "Hezekiah;" it should have been Keziah.

The accompanying illustrations are fac-similes of the grave-stones and inscriptions, at the graves of Ebenezer and Mary (Hart) Hawley. (For the inscriptions of all the grave-stones to Hawley names in Farmington, Ct., see Note 16.)

Note 58.—ENS. ABEL HAWLEY, No. 869, youngest son of Capt. Joseph Hawley, was born in Farmington, Ct., in 1716. He married 1st Mary Gridley 1 July, 1741, by whom he had four children, (which should have been so designated in the table work of this book), viz: Elisha, Ruth, Josiah, and Abel, Jr. She died in 1753, and he married 2d, in 1755, Abigail Root, the widow of Ebenezer Rice (or Roice). By her first husband she had five children, one of whom, a son by the name of Samuel, was the father of Abby Rice, afterwards Mrs. Humphrey, who lived in 1854 with Judge D. M. McMaster at Bath, Steuben Co., N. Y. The children of Abigail Rice by her first husband were: I. Hannah, b. Jan. 5, 1743, lived to old age; II. Huldah, b. Jan. 16, 1745, died May 10, 1746; III. Olive, or Oliver, b. March 1, 1747, m. and died shortly afterwards; IV. Samuel, b. Oct. 23, 1749, m. Feb. 15, 1776, died Aug. 13, 1834, the father of Mrs. Abby (Rice) Humphrey, who was my informant.

Ensign Abel Hawley removed to Meriden, Ct., but at what time has not been learned. He was there in March, 1771, when he with others signed money with which to purchase a burying-ground.

Note 59.—MARY HAWLEY (GOODWIN), No. 872, daughter of Joseph Hawley Jr., was born in 1730, and married Morgan Goodwin in 1773. They resided at West Hartford, Ct., but no account of their family has been obtained except the names of six children.

Note 60.—REV. RUFUS HAWLEY, No. 1015, son of Timothy Hawley of Granby, Ct., married Deborah Kent, daughter of Dudley Kent who married Ruth, daughter of the Rev. Benjamin Ruggles, pastor at Suffield, Ct. Samuel Ruggles was one of the first company of Missionaries sent to the Sandwich, now Hawaiian Islands, in October, 1819, and his sister Lucia, who married Thomas Holman, M. D., with her husband were members of the same company. These two persons were the son and daughter of Samuel Ruggles, the son of Capt. Joseph, who was the son of the Rev. Benjamin Ruggles; and hence the two Missionaries were first cousins, once removed, to Mrs. Deborah (Kent) Hawley.*

Rufus Hawley was graduated at Yale College in 1767, and settled as pastor in the parish of Northington, in the town of Farmington, but it is now the town of Avon, Ct., where he remained until his decease in 1826. The parish secured an assistant from 1820 to 1822, and again from 1824 to his decease. His pastorate, therefore, continued fifty-seven years, and he died in his eighty-fifth year.

"Mr. Hawley in preaching spoke from short notes, and made use of a conversational style. Professor Silliman, in his volume of travels, speaks of him as a practical teacher, not caring much for balanced nicety of phrase, but giving his flock wholesome food and sound doctrine in plain speech. His prayers had that detail of petition, that specific application both of public and private concerns, and that directness of allusion to the momentous political events of the day, and their apparent bearing upon his people, which was common among our ancestors, and especially among the first ministers who brought with them the fervor of the times, when they emigrated from England."⁴

An Unusual Case of Conscience.

The author met on the cars at Hartford, Ct., June 18, 1847, Rev. S. Bartlett of East Windsor, who on the way from Hartford to Windsor related to him an anecdote of Rev. Rufus Hawley, whose grandson Orestes Kent Hawley had married the narrator's niece Julia, daughter of Rev. John Bartlett, 2d successor of Rev. Rufus Hawley, and brother of said Rev. S. Bartlett.

It seems that some of the family of Rev. Rufus had emigrated to the West, and he wished to make them a visit. Taking his wife in his private carriage he started, having his trunk strapped on the rack behind. Having reached the then lonely sand plain covered with pines between Albany and Schenectady about dusk, and feeling somewhat insecure, he occasionally peered out between the curtains of the carriage-top to see if all was safe with the trunk. Once on looking he thought he discovered the trunk move but said nothing. Looking again it was gone. Quick as thought he threw the reins to his wife and leaped out and saw a robber dragging his trunk into the wood. Instantly raising his whip he exclaimed in a commanding tone: "Drop it, you scoundrel, or I'll fire." The frightened robber fled in marvelous haste, leaving the property, which the owner took and went on his journey. But the incident left an unpleasant impression on the good man's mind. He conversed with his wife on the subject, and finally, on his return home, brought the matter before the Association as a case of conscience. He was far from being at ease because he had implied to the gentleman robber that he had fire-arms, when in fact he had nothing but a loaded whip. The Association, however, did not think he had very much exceeded the bounds of propriety in view of the short time he had to consider what course he should take or what language he should use, and passed the case as one on which action was quite unnecessary, and the Rev. Father was relieved of the burden on his conscience for having retained property by false pretence.

Note 61.—ZERAH HAWLEY, M. D., No. 1221, son of Rev. Rufus Hawley, was born in Avon, Ct., about the year 1781, and died in 1856. He was graduated from Yale College in 1803, studied medicine and was a practicing physician in New Haven and at Avon, Ct.

Note 62.—REV. ZERAH KENT HAWLEY, No. 1258, son of Rufus F. Hawley, married ascen in this "Record." He was graduated at Yale College in 1833, studied at the New Haven Theological Seminary and at Cincinnati, O.; was licensed to preach in 1836, by the New Haven West Association in Connecticut. He was settled pastor in South Norwalk, Ct., from April, 1844, until May, 1848. He served some years as missionary from the Missionary Society of Ct., in Illinois, and became pastor of the First Congregational Church at Macomb, Ill., and was there in 1861.

Note 63.—REV. JAMES AUGUSTUS HAWLEY, No. 1261, was born in Farmington, Ct., June 1, 1813, and died in Vicksburg, Miss., Aug. 20, 1868. He was pastor of the Congregational Churches in Farmington, Ill., Ridgely, Ct., Augusta, Ill., Jackson, Mich., and Bipton, Wis.; subsequently chaplain in the late war; Superintendent of Colored Schools for the district of Vicksburg, and afterwards commissioner of the Freedmen's Bureau. Note 63.—ELEAZER HAWLEY, No. 1393, son of Elisha Hawley, married Lavinia Fox, and in 1811, settled in that part of Winchester, Ct., called Canada; but sometime afterwards he removed to Winsted in the same town, where, says the Winchester History, "he lived and raised a family in a now-abandoned house at the top of the hill, above the Woodruff tannery, near the crossing of the old Country and North Main Street roads. He died April 1, 1839, aged 47, leaving, among other children, Romulus and George, none of whom remain in the town."

Eleazer Hawley in 1817, and his brother Norman C. Hawley in 1819, united with the Masonic Lodge in Newfield, in the town of Torrington, Ct. This was before Eleazer removed to Winsted, or his brother Norman C. went West.

Note 64.—LAURA HAWLEY (THURSTON), No. 1403, daughter of Earl P. Hawley, of Norfolk, Ct., where she was born Dec. 20, 1812. Her opportunities for education in childhood were limited to the common school of her native town; but afterwards she became a pupil in the Hartford Female Seminary, under the charge of John P. Brace, and pursued its complete course of study with much credit to herself.

"After leaving the Seminary, Miss Hawley was engaged some time as a teacher in New Milford, Ct., and afterwards in the city of Philadelphia. She was subsequently employed as an assistant in the institution where she was educated, at Hartford, until, by the recommendation of Mr. Brace, she was invited to take charge of a female school at New Albany, in Indiana, which she accepted and removed to her new home, where she continued her school with much success. She married Franklin Thurston, a merchant of New Albany, where she continued to reside until her decease, July 21, 1842.

"Mrs. Thurston was a talented writer. She contributed a number of poetical articles to the periodicals, over the signature of 'Viola,' some of which obtained an extensive circulation. They are of a high order of merit, and 'The Green Hills of My Father Land,' would alone entitle her to a place among the poets of New England. This song of exile has been justly said to form a fit counterpart to the beautiful and poetic 'Good Night' of the lamented Peters."* Also the following is of equal merit, and appropriate to the scattering of the Hawley family:

THE PATHS OF LIFE.†

Go forth! the world is very wide,
And many paths before ye lie;
Devious and dangerous, and untrod,
Go forth with wary eye!
Go! with a heart by grief unswayed!
Go! ere a shadow or a cloud
Hath dimmed the laughing sky!
But, lest your wandering footsteps stray,
Choose ye the strait and narrow way.

Go forth! the world is very fair,
Through the dim distance as ye gaze
And mark, in long perspective, there,
The scenes of coming days.
Orbs of bright radiance gem the sky,
And fields of glorious beauty lie
Beneath their orient rays;
Yet, ere their altered light grows dim
Seek ye the star of Bethlehem.

Go forth! within your distant homes
There are fond hearts that mourn your stay;
There are sweet voices bid you come—
Go! ye must hence, away!
No more within the woodland bowers
Your hands may wreath the summer flowers,
No more your footsteps stray;
To hail the hush, and grove, and glen,
Oh, when will ye return again!
Not when the summer leaves shall fade,
As now they fade from shrub and tree,

† An Address to a Class of Girls about leaving School, in Indiana.

When autumn winds, through grove and glade,
Make mournful melody;
The long, bright, silent, autumn days,
The sunset, with its glorious blaze,
These shall return, but ye,
Though time may all beside restore,
Ye may come back to us no more.

Go! ye have dreamed a fairy dream,
Of cloudless skies and fadeless flowers,
Of days whose sunny lapse shall seem
A life mid festal hours!

But of the change, the fear, the strife,
The gathering clouds, the storms of life,
The light of autumn showers,
Ye have no vision; these must be Unveiled by stern reality.

Ye yet must wake, (for time and care
Have ever wandered side by side)
To find earth false, as well as fair,
And weary too, as wide.

Ye yet must wake, to find the glow
Hath faded from the things below,
The glory and the pride!
To bind the willow on the brow,
Wreathed with the laurel garland now.

But wherefore shall I break the spell
That makes the future seem so bright?
Why to the young glad spirit tell
Of withering and blight?

'Twere better, when the meteor dies,
A stender, holier light shall rise,
Cheering the gloomy night:
A light when others fade away,
Still shining on to perfect day.

Go, then! and when no more are seen
The faces that ye now behold,
When years, long years, shall intervene,
Sadly and darkly told;
When time, with stealthy hand shall trace
His mystic lines on every face
Oh, may his touch unfold
The promise of that better part,
The unfolding springtime of the heart.

Note 65.—REV. JOHN P. HAWLEY, No. 1449. Nothing has been learned of him except that he preached for a time in Connecticut and afterwards in Rhode Island.

Note 66.—DEA. EBENEZER HAWLEY, No. 1501, was born at Scott's Swamp, in Farmington, Ct., Feb. 11, 1747, and died Feb. 22, 1827. He joined the Congregational Church of Farmington, with his wife, in 1770, but the date of his withdrawal from it is not given, the records only stating that he and his wife had "joined the Baptists," neither is it known what time he began to give attention to the mode of baptism. He was said to be very positive and persistent in whatever views he accepted. "He was a deeply pious man, and his conscience was of the Puritan stamp. He had faults but they were not sins. His family altar was based on principle, and he was truly honest in all his relations and dealings, and therefore was an honor to the office of a Deacon."*

When Dr. Noah Porter settled in Farmington in 1806, Dea. Hawley frequently visited him to argue the question of baptism, but finally abandoned the effort to convert him to his views. Persons still living, remember his public comment upon the Doctor: "Mr. Porter is a good man and has learning, but he don't know much about baptism."

Dea. Hawley attended church at Redstone Hill, and was there elected to his office. In all church duties he was faithful, although sometimes at variance with his brethren because of his strong will, yet all believed him to be a godly man.

Mchitable Rich, his wife, was a woman of remarkable traits, being endowed with superior natural gifts, sanctified by the Holy Ghost, and thereby accomplished much for the church. Her prayers and exhortations seemed at times inspired. The Rev. David Wright, in speaking of his recollections as her pastor, remarks :

"Our aged sister Hawley, who had been in darkness between four and five years, in the latter part of Feb., 1818, was blessed with a renewed manifestation of divine things, and had a new conversion. She never forsook the church nor the ordinances, and was punctual at covenant meetings, often confessing that she was a very great sinner, and that Christ was a great Savior, but did not enjoy satisfactory evidence of her interest in Him. Her relief came while hearkening to the reading of Flavel on Keeping the Heart, when she was led to a fresh view of Christ as the Babe of Bethlehem, and thence she traced his life to the cross and to glory. Her bands were loosed at once; her heart was enlarged and filled with joy and confidence through faith. Every cloud was gone and every doubt had fled. A little more than a year after her revival, she left us and joined the church triumphant." (Sketches of Southington, Ct., 335.)

Amos Hawley

Was born at Farmington, Ct., Feb. 11, 1732; removed to Moreau, N. Y., Feb. 18, 1793; and died at Moreau, N. Y., Aug. 25, 1805.

Note 67.—AMOS HAWLEY, Esq., No. 1505, son of Ebenezer, was born in Farmington, Ct., in 1755. He married, in 1777, Aelsah, daughter of Elisha and Sarah (Lewis) Strong. In 1793 he removed to Moreau, Saratoga Co., N. Y., and purchased a farm on the right bank of the Hudson River, two miles below Fort Edward.

Items from Land Records of Saratoga Co., N. Y.

SOUTH FARM.

Amos Hawley purchased, for £270, the northern half of lots 1 and 3, in the division made between Albert Vandervater and Nicholas Fonda, lying and being in the County of Saratoga, being lot No. 9, in the twelfth allotment of the General Partition of the Patent of Raydorsoros, about 90 acres. Deed dated 24th July, 1795.

SOUTH FARM.

Amos Hawley bought, for consideration of $1,500, 76 acres and a half, bounded east by the Hudson River, south by John Bixby, the west road acting as boundary to both portions, showing it was even then a highway. Deed dated 6 Nov., 1797.

Soon after this Amos Hawley gave a church lot on the southeast corner of the north farm, fronting the river, but ten or fifteen rods back from the shore, on which was erected a very fine church for that day.

The following is in the handwriting of my grandfather, Amos Hawley, in his scrap of a Family Register, kept on the back leaves of an old account book given to me by my father, Seth, and by me rebound in his old Bible :

"I moved my family from Farmington in Connecticut, Feb. 19, 1793, and arrived at Saratoga, near Fort Edward, York State, Feb. 23, 1793.

"My grandfather's name was Joseph Hawley, my grandmother's name was Elizabeth Wilcox,* esine from Stratford to Farmington, where they brought up a large family, and in their old age lived with my father and died at his house, both of them."

June 30, 1844, my father, Seth, being in Buffalo, N. Y., went with me to church at the First Presbyterian Church, on his sixty-third birthday. He then told me he arrived in Moreau from Farmington, Ct., upon the very spot where his house now stands, the 23d February, 1793, aged twelve years, and lived with his father's folks in a hewed timber house, where his front yard now is. (See engraving of house in Note 75.)

Memoirandum : My mother, Susan, died in the "old south house," in the south front room, just six months after my birth.

E. S. H., June 8, 1845.

Amos Hawley was in the Revolutionary War a considerable time, for he was in Washington's retreat from Long Island, August 22, 1776, wintered at Peckskill the following winter, and was at the battle of Saratoga and surrender of General Burgoyne, October 17, 1777; and on that battlefield picked up a gun, which is now the property of Elias S. Hawley.

Tradition says: When Amos Hawley left his home as a soldier to go to Saratoga in the autumn of 1777, the company of which he was a member, or a considerable part of it, assembled at his house (the house represented in the above engraving), in order to march together on their journey. With them came also their wives, sweethearts and friends, to see them start; and while much lamentation was being made about the separation and apprehensions of calamity and death, Achsah, Amos's wife, spoke with a cheerful exclamation:

"Amos, don't get shot in the back!"

This created some merriment in the whole company, and all joined in a cheerful good-bye.

The Connection of the Hawley with the Strong Family.

1 STRONG,* ELDER JOHN, was born in Taunton, Eng., in 1605, whence he removed to London and thence to Plymouth. Having strong Puritan sympathies, he sailed from Plymouth for the new world, March 20, 1630, in company with 140 persons, among them Revs John Warham and John Maverick and Messrs. John Mason and Roger Clapp, in the ship Mary and John (Capt. Squib), and arrived at Nantasket, Mass., about twelve miles south of Boston, after a passage of more than seventy days, on Sunday, May 30, 1630. They settled first at Dorchester, Mass., and he removed to Hingham, Mass, thence to Taunton, Mass., and thence to Windsor, Conn.

In 1659 he removed to Northampton, Mass., where he was for forty years a leading man in the town and the church. He was a tanner by trade, and very prosperous in business.

Note 67½.—ICHABOD HAWLEY, No. 1506, son of Ebenezer Hawley, was born, lived and died in Farmington, Ct. He was a farmer, and married Huldah, daughter of Eleazer Root. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary War with his two brothers. (See list of soldiers in Note 67. For Root Family, see Note 68.)

Note 68.—ASA HAWLEY, No. 1520, son of Dea. Ebenezer Hawley, Jr. (Note 66), married, in 1802, Diadama, daughter of Capt. Hezekiah Root of Southington, Ct. They resided in Farmington, Ct., where he died 23 April, 1858, aged 82 years; and she died 13 July, 1876, aged 95 years and 8 months. They were the parents of the Rev. David Hawley, City Missionary in Hartford, Ct. (Note 70), and grandparents of Gen'l Joseph R. Hawley, of Hartford Ct. (Note 72.)

The following is taken from the Press of Bristol, Ct., published soon after the death of Mrs. Hawley:

"Mrs. Diadama (Root) Hawley was born in the year 1780, near what is now known as the Bradley farms, on the mountain east of Plainville. At the age of seventeen she united with the Congregational Church in Southington. Becoming acquainted with Mr. Asa Hawley, who was then the country schoolmaster at the old red schoolhouse on the Great Plains, they were married in 1802; and she transferred her church connection to the First Church at Farmington, thus becoming a listener to the Rev. Mr. Washburne's preaching for six years previous to the ordination and settlement of the venerable Dr. Porter, now nearly seventy years ago; and their daughter Esther, wife of the late Dea. George Hart, was the first child baptized by the reverend doctor. Her husband, Asa Hawley, died eighteen years ago at the good old age of eighty-two years. They had seven children, all of whom lived to grow up to be an honor to their parents, to their country, and to themselves, to wit: the Rev. Francis Hawley of Westfield, Mass., the father of General Hawley, president of the Centennial commission, who of late has done himself so much credit in the position he has taken upon the Sunday question; Naomi, wife of the late Roger Newell, the parents of our esteemed townsman and attorney, Samuel P. Newell; Esther, wife of the late Deacon George Hart of this place, who for so many years were pioneers in what was then—nearly fifty years ago—a wilderness, Chautauque county, N. Y.; Rev. David Hawley, known far and wide as the late lamented city missionary of Hartford; the late Doct. Roswell Hawley, our esteemed fellow citizen; Martha, wife of the late Charles Richards, and mother of Mrs. Martha Sparks of Milford; Ara Hawley, the present occupant of the old homestead, which has been in possession of the family now for five generations."

Note 69.—REV. FRANCIS HAWLEY, No. 1548, son of Asa Hawley, of Farmington, Ct., was married twice in the RECORD, his second wife being a widow Merrill. The following notice of him appeared in the Hartford Courant the day after his decease:

"The Rev. Francis Hawley of Westfield, Mass., died in Hartford, Jan. 2, 1884. He was born in Farmington, Ct., upon the farm where his ancestors had lived for many generations. His youth was of the New England kind—a Christian home, hard work and attendance a part of the year at the district school. At the age of twenty-one he went southward to seek his fortune. He married in North Carolina, Mary McLeod, a lady whose name discloses her Highland Scotch descent. After a few years of mercantile life in South Carolina, he became an agent of the Bible and Tract Societies in North Carolina, and soon entered the Baptist ministry. His dislike of slavery became so strong that in 1837 he returned to Connecticut with his wife and three children, and remained in the State until 1842, preaching in Bristol, Colebrook and Wallingford, and for a time devoting himself entirely to lecturing against slavery. After residing for a short time in Hartford, Ct., he removed, in 1842, to Cazenovia, in Madison Co., N. Y., giving to his children the benefits of the seminary at that place, and for himself securing the strong anti-slavery sentiment of that region. He was for several years the pastor of an independent, anti-slavery Congregational Church, retaining his opinions on baptism, but objecting to 'close communion.' He was a genuine anti-slavery man, yet, while he would not join a church apologizing for slavery, he thought the Garrisonian abolitionists greatly in error in their violent assaults upon the churches, and equally wrong in refusing to vote for or support the constitution of the nation.

"He was one of a few thousand who organized the original Liberty party, and voted for Birney in 1840, and he gave his hearty allegiance to the Free-soilers in 1848, and the Republicans in 1855. For a time he was the pastor of the church in Peterboro, Madison County, N. Y., which the Hon. Gerrit Smith chiefly supported, maintaining his orthodoxy vigorously, while Mr. Smith diverged considerably, yet they were very warm personal friends. Understanding the spirit and institutions of the South, he supported the war for the Union with all his efforts and energies, and when it had victoriously ended he devoted himself largely to the temperance cause which had always engrossed much of his heart.

"In 1859 his wife died. In 1871 he married again an estimable lady, Mrs. Lydia Merrill, an acquaintance of his boyhood days, and removed to Westfield, Mass., where he lived happily and quietly, preaching occasionally as opportunity offered and strength allowed.

"Two children survive him, Gen. Joseph R. Hawley of Hartford, and Mrs. Mary A. Pettibone of Vernon Centre, Oncida County, N. Y."

Note 70.—REV. DAVID HAWLEY, No. 1551, son of Asa Hawley of Farmington, Ct., was born in 1809, married Adeline Rich of Bristol, Ct., and was a farmer until forty-two years of age, when he was sought out and employed by the Young Men's City Missionary Society of Hartford, Ct. "He had been bred a farmer, with only the educational advantages of the district school, in its winter sessions. He had for a time driven a team between a Bristol clock factory and Hartford. His experience in public speaking and in evangelistic labors, up to the time of engaging in city work, were limited to the part he had taken in neighborhood prayer-meetings and in going from house to house in the country in times of religious revival.

"It was in October, 1851, that Mr. Hawley began his work in Hartford, and he quickly made himself acquainted with his new field and its necessities, and as quickly planned and acted in behalf of those whom he found in want. He soon organized three Sunday Schools, and a great amount of other work in behalf of the poorer classes was organized. Before long Mr. Hawley's work was felt everywhere in Hartford. Churches of all denominations made new efforts in the line of his successful labors. Christian activities were no longer limited to one street, but mission schools and preaching stations dotted the city borders. Those who did not seek the churches were sought by the churches, and Hartford became recognized as in advance of other cities in its efforts at home evangelization. Mr. Hawley during several years was again and again invited to other important fields to do a similar work to that which he had inaugurated in Hartford, but he declined them all and kept on his even course until he had trained a generation of skilled workers in mission school service, and had been largely instrumental in bringing an entire change in the policy and modes of work in the Hartford churches as to the poor and non-church-going classes of the city. All this was prior to the time when Mr. Hawley gave himself so largely to that personal ministry to the physical necessities of the poor of Hartford, in which he was very widely known and loved during the last ten years of his life, and by which he is chiefly remembered. An illustration or two of this work is here given.

"Brightness was a marked quality of Mr. Hawley's mind. There was a sententious pithiness in his sayings, with an accompanying humor, which is almost inseparable from true tenderness of feeling. This made more effective the striking contrasts of light and shade by which he brought into relief the pictures of his mission work, when presenting his always notable annual reports to the public. Many remember his mention of the poor garret home where he found dinner cooking over an old stove propped up with a brick and with no door, the scanty fire being made of the legs of the last chair from the dreary room. 'I lifted the pot cover,' he said, 'and there I saw a bare bone that had been cooked over and over again; and above it two small potatoes and an onion were chasing one another around looking for meat.'

"One hundred tons of coal given out during the year,' he said, in making another report. 'Just think how many little fires have been made with that; how many little feet and hands have been warmed by it; how many scanty meals it has cooked. You can't imagine it, but I can.'

"Describing one of the pitiless funerals, he said in his peculiar phrase, 'As I found myself minister, undertaker and funeral procession, I didn't at first know what position I ought to take in the line; but as I had all the mourners with me, for the widow was in my wagon, I concluded it was right to follow the hearse.'

"The demand for ministrations to the physical necessities of the poor grew with the growth of the city, and so David Hawley, 'a man full of faith and the Holy Ghost,' was appointed 'over the business.' When he left Hartford for Syracuse, after ten years of labor, he reported that in all that period, he had received some 20,000 calls for charity, and made 30,500 missionary visits. After he returned to Hartford, he reported for a single year 25,000 calls on him for aid, and 2,500 visits made by him.

"To the last he was faithful to the line of his mission, a man greatly approved and sustained and honored by the City of Hartford. His latest strength was spent for others, and he was glad to have it so."—Extracts from the funeral sermon by the Rev. Henry Clay Trumbull; Hartford "Courant," March 13, 1876.

Note 71.—ROSWELL HAWLEY, M. D., No. 1552, son of Asa Hawley, and brother of the Rev. Francis and the Rev. David Hawley, was born in Farmington, Ct., and married Mary Crane of Hartford, in 1842. In 1851 he was residing at New Britain, and was appointed as a committee to inform Rev. Horace Winslow of his call to become the pastor of the Congregational Church of that place. He had also been in the list of Superintendents in the Sunday-school of that church for many years.

In 1855 he was elected Superintendent of the Connecticut State Reform School at Meriden, Ct. He removed from New Britain to West Meriden, where he was living in 1858, as a practicing physician.

Note 72.—GEN. JOSEPH ROSWELL HAWLEY, LL. D., No. 1555, son of the Rev. Francis Hawley, was born in Stewartsville, Richmond County, N. C., in 1826, and came to Connecticut with his parents in 1837. He was fitted for college at the Cazenovia Seminary, Madison Co., N. Y., and was graduated at Hamilton College, N. Y., in 1847, and of which he was made a Trustee in 1875. He entered the bar at Hartford, Ct., in 1850, and devoted himself to his profession until 1857, when he became an editor of the Hartford Evening Press, which was afterwards consolidated with the Hartford Courant, of which he is still editor.

When the war broke out he was the first citizen of Connecticut to offer his services to the government, and was made first a Lieutenant and then a Captain of Connecticut troops on April 15, 1861. He went to the war, and remained at the front until its end. When he was mustered out of the service in January, 1866, he held the rank of Brigadier-General, and the brevet rank of Major-General. He was a good soldier, brave and conscientious, with the alertness and enthusiasm which have always characterized him. He was at the battle of Bull Run, and in September, 1861, was made Lieutenant-Colonel of the Seventh Connecticut Infantry, the regiment which was commanded by General Terry, the first command of that State that volunteered. When General Terry was promoted to be Brigadier-General in 1862, Lieutenant-Colonel Hawley was made Colonel, and was placed in command of the regiment. When his old chief was given a division, Colonel Hawley became a Brigadier-General, and commanded the second Brigade of the Division. Subsequently he was General Terry's Chief of Staff. He was at the capture of Fort Fisher, for which achievement General Terry was made Major-General of Volunteers and Brigadier-General of the regular army, and received the thanks of Congress. In September, 1865, General Hawley received the brevet rank which he had when he quitted the service.

General Hawley was made Governor of the State of Connecticut three months after he was mustered out of the military service, and his term of office (1866-7) was served under great popular favor and honor, and his administration gave him a national reputation, and he was made Chairman of the Republican Convention held at Chicago in 1868, when General Grant was first nominated for the Presidency.

In 1873 he was elected to the House of Representatives in Congress, and served four years, and was then out of Congress one term, and returned to the House in 1879. While serving this term he was elected in January, 1881, by the Connecticut Legislature, to the Senate of the United States for six years, and before that term had expired, he was re-elected to the same honorable position for another term.

"Mr. Hawley's administration as Governor gave him a national reputation, and he was made Chairman of the Republican Convention which was held at Chicago in 1868, when General Grant was first nominated for the Presidency. In the Convention of 1872, he was Secretary of the Committee on Resolutions and helped to make the sound money platform, which, notwithstanding a slight digression toward inflation after the panic of 1873, has even since been the tenet of the majority of the Republican party. In this year he was first elected to Congress, and served from 1873 to 1877. He was out of Congress during one term, and returned to the House in 1879. It was while he was serving as a member of the House of Representatives, in 1876, that he was President of the Centennial Commission. He attended to the duties of this office in the enthusiasm with which he enters upon all work in which he feels an interest.

"In the Senate Mr. Hawley has made a larger figure than in the House. Although he has taken advanced ground on many questions, he has been always a very strict party man. Once in the House he described himself as 'a Republican of the blackest dye, who believes in making the Federal law respected everywhere, at all times, and at all hazards.' He was always that, but on questions on which his party has divided, he has taken sides with the section of the country from which he came.

"The measure with which he has been principally identified since he has been a Senator, is the civil service reform law. The bill came from a Civil Service Reform Association, and was introduced into the Senate by Mr. Pendleton. The committee, however, to which it was referred, and which adopted and reported it, was Republican. Senator Hawley was the member of the committee who was selected to manage it on the floor, and this he did with all the skill and enthusiasm of which he is possessed, and the law went through the Senate substantially in the form in which it came from the committee, owing to Mr. Hawley's zealous care and watchfulness.

"In his social and domestic life Mr. Hawley is a plain man with a beauteous manner. His first wife, who died a few years ago, was a Miss Foote, a woman of very high character and of considerable distinction. During the war she went to the front and served in the hospital. She had some intellectual interests which brought to her home a society that was distinguished rather than fashionable. Not long ago Mr. Hawley married a second time, and again he chose for his wife a woman who had done active benevolent work." (Harper's Weekly for 1888, p. 302.)

GENERAL JOSEPH R. HAWLEY

Note 73.—BENJAMIN F. HAWLEY, M.D., No. 1604, son of Benjamin F. Hawley, was born in 1858, probably in Bristol, Ct., and married in 1878, Helen Amanda Ely, of Springfield, Mass. Some further account of him was received or found, but very much to my regret is not at hand at the time of printing these notes.

Note 74.—REV. MARVIN HAWLEY, No. 1615, son of James Hawley, was a clergyman in Cumberland County, Md., and it was believed that some further account of him could be obtained; but up to the time of printing this all efforts in the enquiry have failed.

S. Hawley

THE HOUSE AT BLACK ROCK, BUFFALO, N. Y., BUILT ABOUT 1816 BY MR. JOSEPH SILL, AND WAS THE HOME FIRST OCCUPIED BY SETH HAWLEY WHEN HE REMOVED FROM SARATOGA CO. TO BLACK ROCK IN 1823.

Note 75.—SETH HAWLEY, No. 1630, son of Amos Hawley, Esq., was born in Farmington, Ct., in 1781; removed with his father's family to Moreau, Saratoga Co., N. Y., in 1803, where he worked on his father's farm until twenty-one, attending public school a few seasons as was the custom. He married Susan, daughter of Giles and Lucy (Gould) Sill, in 1805; and after her decease in 1813, he married Lucy, sister of his first wife, and widow of his brother Fern Hawley, in 1815. She died in 1841, and he died in 1869, aged 88 years.

Three years after his marriage he engaged in paper manufacturing, according to the following extract from Joel Munsell's "Chronology of the Origin and Progress of Paper and Paper-Making," Albany, 1876.

"In 1808, S. & A. Hawley & Co. erected a mill at Moreau, near Fort Edward, N. Y., and their appeal to the ladies for their rags was larded with these forcible and unique blandishments :

"See Your Rags! This exclamation is particularly addressed to the ladies, both young and old, and middle-aged, throughout the northern part of this state, by the subscribers, who have erected a paper mill in the town of Moreau, near Fort Edward; nor is it thought that this appeal to our fair country-women will prove unavailing when they reflect that without their assistance they cannot be supplied with the useful article of paper. If the necessary stock is denied the paper mills, young maidens must languish in vain for tender epistles from their respective swains; bachelors may be reduced to the necessity of a personal attendance upon the fair ones, when a written communication would be an excellent substitute.

"For clean cotton and linen rags of every color and description, matrons can be furnished with bibles, spectacles, and snuff; mothers with grammars, spelling books and primers for their children; and young misses may be supplied with bonnets, ribbons and ear-rings for the decoration of their persons (by means of which they may obtain husbands), or by sending them to the said mill they may receive the cash."

In the autumn of 1823, Seth Hawley removed with his family to Black Rock, which is now a part of the city of Buffalo, N. Y., where he resided nearly two years, and then in 1825 returned to Moreau. His father died in August of that year.

In the distribution of his father's estate, the old homestead fell to him, as part of his portion, and upon it he built a house, in 1830, which is represented in the engraving on the preceding page. It was beautifully located on the west bank of the Hudson river, two miles below Fort Edward, and in it he resided the remainder of his life.

In about 1829, Seth Hawley and his brother Alpheus Hawley joined with Judge Benjamin Chamberlain, of Cattaraugus County, N. Y., and Judge Hall of Warren, Pa., in purchasing from the State of New York all that tract of land lying between the north line of Pennsylvania and the bend of the Alleghany river, except the Indian Reservation along the left bank of the river—in all 104,600 acres, I think at 28 cents an acre.

GENEALOGICAL NOTES.

Note 76.—FENN HAWLEY, No. 1631, son of Amos Hawley, Esq., Farmington, Ct., in 1784, and went with his father's family in 1793, to Moreau, Saratoga Co., N. Y., where he married Lucy, daughter of Giles and Lucy (Gould) Sill, in 1805. They had two children, Eliza Almira and Martha Fenn. (See Note 92.)

Note 77.—COL. ALPHEUS HAWLEY, No. 1632, son of Amos Hawley, Esq., was born in Farmington, Ct., in 1785, and died in Jamestown, Chautauqua County, N. Y., in 1844. He removed with his father's family, in 1793, to Moreau, N. Y., where he grew up on his father's farm with the advantages such a position furnished in those days, of work and common school education.

In 1808, he and his elder brother Seth formed a company as merchants, at Moreau, under the title of the S. & A. Hawley Co., and also erected a paper mill (see Note 75) near Fort Edward. This company continued about twenty years, having much of the time three stores.

In 1811 Col. Alpheus Hawley married Keziah, daughter of Col. John M. Berry, and about 1827 removed to New York City, where he kept a grocery store in Broome Street a short time. He then removed to Warren, Pa., and a year or two later thence to Jamestown, N. Y. At the last place he engaged as a dry goods merchant, being the senior partner of the firm of Hawley & Dean, and afterwards of A. Hawley & Son, the son being John B. He resided on the corner of Main and Fifth Streets, subsequently the residence of Adolphus Fletcher. He also owned the store and lot at the southwest corner of Main and Third Streets, afterward owned by his son, Alpheus Fenn Hawley, and since by Col. William Hall. He was at one time estimated to be quite wealthy.

His widow, Keziah, married on June 2, 1851, at Ellicottville, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., Gen. Thomas W. Harvey, of New York, and says her son Amos P., "was journeying with him to his place of business, on the New York and New Haven Railroad, when the train of cars was precipitated into the river at Norwalk, Ct., May 6th, 1853, being taken from the ruins of the cars very much bruised and nearly drowned. She lived in much suffering, though with a tranquil mind, until the morning of May 11th (five days), when she also became one of the fifty who lost their lives by that awful catastrophe." Her husband, who sat by her side, escaped without serious injury.

Col. Alpheus Hawley's granddaughter, Mary Breed, daughter of John B. Hawley, married Charles E. Meyers, an aeronaut and manufacturer of the best balloons and apparatus then in use. His wife, also, under the name of Carlotta, became celebrated as an aeronaut. She made upwards of three hundred ascensions.

The Connection of the Hawley with the Berry Family.

- 1 BERRY. This name was early in this country, and in various localities in New England. (See Savage.) From which of the many names mentioned, this family was descended, I do not know. Keziah and Catharine's grandfather was Col. Sidney Berry, of New Jersey, who was a Major under Washington, in the Revolutionary Army. (See Keziah's letter.) He had two sons, Sidney and John Mahelm; what other children, if any, I do not know.
- 2 SIDNEY BERRY, son of Col. Sidney Berry, married 21st December, 1812, Elizabeth, daughter of John Folsom, of Glen's Falls, N. Y. She was born 8 January, 1785, and died 29 April, 1865. They had three children:
 - 3 I. ELIZABETH F., b. in 1819; m. in 1838, Rev. D. C. Pratt, and had four children.
 - 4 II. FRANCES E., b. in 1823.
 - 5 III. ALEINA MCCREA, b. in 1825; m. in 1843, M. U. Perrine, a lawyer.

5½ COL. JOHN MAHELM, son of Col. Sidney Berry, m. Eunice Payne.

- 0 I. KEZIAH, m. COL. ALPHEUS HAWLEY, (1632).
- 7 II. ELIZA, b. in 1708; m. Joseph Sill. (See Sill Book).
- 8 III. EUNICE, m. Josiah Hall.
- 9 IV. JOHN, m. Harriet Goodrich.

Note 78.—ELIAS HAWLEY, Esq., No. 1634, son of Amos Hawley, was born in Farmington, Ct., in 1789, and removed with his father's family, in 1793, to Moreau, Saratoga County, N. Y. He married in 1818, Catharine, daughter of Col. John M. Berry, and resided at Glen's Falls a time, then removed to Fort Edward. He married 2d, in 1830, Adaline, daughter of Major Martin Hawley (2066).

A deed on the Saratoga county land records says: "January 1, 1825, Elias Hawley of Fort Edward, Josiah L. Arms and Alpheus Hawley of Queensbury purchased of John Folsom and his wife Elizabeth, half the Cotton Factory, water power, island and toll-bridge" at Glen's Falls, for the consideration of $9000. Afterwards Elias Hawley purchased the rights of the other partners and owned the whole property.*

In 1833 he removed from Glen's Falls to Binghamton, N. Y., and from that place he removed to Baltimore, Md., in 1850, but returned to Binghamton in 1856. While in Binghamton he purchased a considerable tract of white pine timber land in Bradford County, Pa., built a mill and manufactured lumber, running it to market in rafts and arks on the Susquehanna river.

He was a prominent member of the Presbyterian Church, and an office-bearer, as Elder, for many years.

He was a well-known anti-slavery man, and says his son, "one of my earliest recollections is, attending an anti-slavery meeting with him and being pelted with eggs and stones." He did not leave his principles behind him when he removed to Baltimore, for there he was the first president of the first Republican association, when the meetings were held stealthily in private houses for fear of the attacks of the people, for then slavery was still in existence in that State and city, and slave-pens flourished on the prominent streets, gathering together their convoys of human beings and shipping them to the markets of the South.

He could never get accustomed to the ways of Southern society. He was not contented in it. He liked free air and free speech too well, so that he finally returned to free soil to end his days in peace.

Y., became a farmer and also carried on his trade. They both died at that place.

Note 79½.—NAOMI ROGERS (LEAVENS), No. 1638, daughter of Sarah (Hawley) Rogers, born in Glen's Falls, N. Y., married Joshua B. Leavens, and had one daughter, Helen Naomi Rogers, born 29 July, 1821, and the mother died a few weeks after the birth of this daughter. The daughter having married and being Mrs. Helen Naomi Butler, was living in Mobile, Ala., in 1888.

Note 80.—GEORGE GAY HAWLEY, No. 1641, son of Seth Hawley, was born in Moreau, Saratoga Co., N. Y., in 1806, and married Eliza Glorianna, daughter of Solomon Porter Goodrich of Moreau, 30 Sept., 1832. He died at his home, "Park Place," in Glen's Falls, March 2, 1882. He had been unwell for a year, but confined to his room only about a week.

In the year 1823 he removed with his father's family to Black Rock, now Buffalo, N. Y.; they remained about two years and then returned to their homestead in Moreau. In 1832 George G. became a clerk in a general merchandise store at Glen's Falls, of which his father, Seth Hawley, and his two uncles, Alpheus and Elias Hawley, were proprietors, and in the same year he married Eliza G., daughter of Solomon P. and Ann (Folsom) Goodrich, the alliance being with two families of noted integrity and rectitude of character, the line of their ancestry being given below.

Mr. Hawley had witnessed the growth of Glen's Falls from an obscure little hamlet to a prosperous, thriving little city, having done his part toward the accomplishment of the same. He was a highly respected citizen; was a devout member of the Presbyterian Church and served in the capacity of superintendent of the Sunday-school of that congregation for thirty years. He left a wife and three children.

The accompanying engraving represents his home at Glen's Falls; the house, which he built many years ago, and now occupied by his son, George Kimberly Hawley. It stands on the bluff on the left bank of the Hudson, overlooking the river and the falls at that place.

Alonzo Hawley

Note 81.—HON. ALONZO HAWLEY, No. 1642, son of Seth Hawley, was born at Moreau, N. Y., in 1807, and died at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. McVey, in Chillicothe, Missouri, Nov. 17, 1886, but his remains were returned to Hinsdale, N. Y., where he resided many years, and were there buried.

His education was in the common school of his native town, and he was for a term or two at Cambridge Academy, under the tuition of Rev. N. S. Prime, D. D., at the same time with his brothers Seth C. and Elias S. His favorite study was mathematics, with special reference to that practical application thereof which he afterwards made in building, in measurement of timber and in surveying.

At about the age of twenty-one he went to Little Valley, Cattaraugus Co., as the representative of his father in the land purchase named in a former note, and became the manager of the Land Company at Chamberlain, of the Hawleys and Hall. In that capacity he superintended the erecting and running of lumber mills on the Tunnawaug Creek and the Allegheny—running the products to market at Pittsburgh and Cincinnati. He married at Little Valley, Eliza, the only daughter of Hon. Judge Chamberlain.

“Mr. Hawley was a prominent citizen of Hinsdale in Cattaraugus County for half a century or more, being engaged in mercantile and lumbering trade. He was a member of the Legislature in the sessions of 1841 and 1843, and a member of the Constitutional Convention in 1846, and delivered an able address which was published in pamphlet form; and was treasurer of Cattaraugus County in 1878.

"He was a man of great physical strength and dignity of bearing, and possessed a logical mind and much ability in many directions. He was deeply versed in subjects pertaining to government and statesmanship, and enjoyed discussing such subjects. He possessed much knowledge of philosophic and mechanical subjects, but this was rather by intuition and independent thought.

"He was a man of integrity, and enjoyed the respect of his neighbors and the public generally, and although he was ambitious for political preferment, he was not the man to mingle with many persons, and gain a wide acquaintance and great personal popularity among all classes of men by easy, suave and oily manners."⁹⁶

While a member of the Constitutional Convention he distinguished himself as a parliamentary debater.

The settlement was legally incorporated as the town of Sandwich. Note 82.—HON. SETH C. HAWLEY, No. 1643, son of Seth, was born on the 10th of February, 1810, in the town of Moreau, Saratoga County, N. Y. He was the third of four sons of Seth Hawley by his first wife, Susan Sill. The immediate spot of his birth-place was one of exceeding beauty, and at that time, and for many years after, was the center of a wide-spread farming community. The church where the neighboring population gathered for Sabbath worship, and the school house where public meetings were often held, were located on his father's farm, the sites for their purposes having been early given by his grandfather, Amos Hawley, Esq. The lad had, therefore, opportunities not usually enjoyed by farmer boys, for observing the characteristics of the inhabitants of the town, and of forming opinions of people generally, which upon occasion he was not backward in expressing. His criticisms were in the main just, always shrewd, not infrequently sarcastic, and sometimes funny in the extreme.

Mr. Hawley's childhood and youth were passed upon his father's farm, and there he was very early initiated into the mysteries of hard work. With his older brothers he was foremost in work, and, at proper times, also in athletic sports.

In childhood he attended the district school at his native place, the teachers of which were usually young men from Connecticut, who rarely taught more than one term. The "singing master," in those early days a very great personage, was Thomas Cotton, after whom he was given his second name. He also attended the academy at Castleton, Vt. Solomon Foote, afterwards U. S. Senator, was Principal. He subsequently became a student at the academy at Cambridge, Washington County, N. Y., the Rev. Nathaniel S. Prime, D. D., Principal; and from there went to Saratoga Springs, and studied law with William L. F. Warren; and in 1831, went to Buffalo, N. Y., where he continued the study of the law in the office of Joseph Clary, and was admitted to the bar at the city of Albany, at the age of twenty-one years.

Previous to this, however, he formed a partnership with Elisha Ford, and after that became the partner of Thomas Sherwood, and later formed a partnership with Hon. George P. Barker, under the name of Barker & Hawley, and finally associated himself with Edward Norton, who afterwards became a Judge in California.

He was admitted, at New York City, as counsellor in the United States Supreme Courts.

During the cholera epidemic in Buffalo, in 1832 and 1833, when most of the local authorities failed to meet the emergency, he, with other young men, organized a volunteer hospital service which did much good in checking the plague.

He was one of the organizers of the Young Men's Association (now Buffalo Library), in 1836, and was its first president, holding the office for two terms; and had he lived one year longer, would probably have attended the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the society. This was his oft-expressed intention. He took great interest in the welfare and success of the society, and frequently referred with pleasure to the reception tendered him as first president, by Mr. S. S. Jewett, of Buffalo, some years ago.

During the Patriot War, in 1837, he was one of the celebrated Committee of Thirteen, and when General Winfield Scott took command of military affairs, on that occasion, the General placed him on his staff, with the rank of Major. He was afterward selected by Gov. William H. Seward as one of the counsel to conduct the famous McLeod trial, which was an outgrowth of the recriminations along the St. Lawrence River after the war.

He was always interested in politics, and was one of the most popular campaign speakers in the State, and stumped the State for William H. Seward with great success and victory. He was elected to the State Legislature, serving two terms, in 1840 and '41, and was the youngest member, and a Whig. He then purchased a half interest in the Buffalo Morning Express, and was the chief and only editor. He was a vigorous and terse writer, and brought the paper to a high standard of excellence, second only to the Albany Evening Journal, edited by Thurlow Weed, and the New York Tribune, under the editorship and management of Horace Greeley.

At the end of two years he sold his interest in the paper and engaged his services to H. C. Seymour & Co., railroad builders and contractors, as legal adviser. With them he remained two years, when he formed a partnership with D. C. McCullum and Mark T. Seymour, under the firm name of McCullum, Seymour & Hawley, railroad bridge builders, which firm continued until the panic in 1857.

In 1856, he removed his residence to New York City.

In 1857 and 1858, he was made Secretary to the Commissioners for the removal of the quarantine from Staten Island, and held the position until July, 1860, when he was appointed Chief Clerk of the Metropolitan Police District, comprising New York, Kings, Queens and Richmond counties.

In 1860 and 1861, during the first years of the Rebellion, he was appointed by the Secretary of State, William H. Seward, as Confidential Agent to investigate the claims of political prisoners confined in the fortresses in the harbors of New York and Boston, the Board of Police having granted him leave of absence for that purpose.

During the Rebellion, he was again given leave of absence by the Board of Police, at the request of the United States Government, and spent the winter of 1862 and 1863 at Nassau, N. P., Bahama Islands, the principal port of the blockade runners, as United States Consul, where he rendered the Federal Government valuable service in capturing blockade runners and otherwise, and to a large extent checked the illicit intercourse carried on between the rebels and English ports.

Again, at the special request of the Federal Government, the Police Board granted him leave of absence, and he was appointed on the staff of General James Bowen, as Acting Assistant Adjutant-General with the rank of Captain, and during the winter of 1863 and 1864 he was in active service at New Orleans, La. General James Bowen was Provost Marshal General of the Department, General N. P. Banks being the Department Commander, succeeding Gen. Benjamin F. Butler.

He married Lavinia Porter Steele, the youngest sister of the late Oliver G. Steele of Buffalo, in that city, on the morning of the 11th of November, 1834, and his children were making arrangements to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the wedding of their beloved and honored parents, which would have taken place the day following his death.

He was taken ill on the evening of Wednesday, the 5th of November, and died at six minutes before one o'clock in the afternoon of Monday, November 10, 1884, at his residence, corner of One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street and the Grand Boulevard, New York City, aged seventy-four years and nine months, his family being at his bedside when he died. He passed away quietly. His complete resignation to the will of God with which he contemplated the great change, was beautifully expressed in his last words, as he looked intently at an inscription over his chamber mantel, "The Lord will provide."

The New York Commercial Advertiser said: "Mr. Seth C. Hawley was one of the best known men in the city, and what he did not know of the Police Department, was not of much value. He had served the public in many capacities, and in every instance acceptably. He was a lawyer by profession, an editor—and a vigorous one—for some years, and was trusted with grave affairs by General Scott, during the Patriotic War of 1837, and by Secretary Seward in the Rebellion. He has passed away with the respect of all men, for in whatever position he was placed in the course of a long and industrious life, he bore himself with honor."

Mr. Hawley's will directed that his genealogical descent should be inscribed on his monument, which was done.

HAWLEY MONUMENT, IN TRINITY CHURCH CEMETERY, ADJOINING AUDUBON PARK, NEW YORK CITY.

*Proceedings of the Young Men's Association of the City of Buffalo, N. Y.,
New the Buffalo Library.*

At the forty-ninth annual meeting of the Young Men's Association of the City of Buffalo, N. Y., held on Monday, February 23, 1885, President Edward B. Smith in the chair, the President in his annual address, among other things said:

"It lacks but a single year of half a century since this Association was formed. Its first regular meeting was held on the evening of Tuesday, the 22d of March, 1836, and its first president, Seth C. Hawley, delivered on that occasion an eloquent address, in which his courageous faith anticipated what we are so fully realizing now.

"Our association," said Mr. Hawley "at this, its first regular meeting, is composed of about three hundred young men, the pride of our city. Already are we liberally endowed through the munificent public spirit of our elder citizens, who, in their countenance of our efforts, have shown themselves worthy of the reputation for public spirit for which they are so remarkable.

"Our constitution is upon a broad and liberal plan, opening its doors to every reputable member of society. Why, then, shall we not found an institution where the pursuits of useful knowledge will be a pleasure, and pleasure will be a source of knowledge; an institution whose salutary influence shall be felt in years to come, when all of us, its members, shall be gathered to our fathers? If we deserve success, we shall probably secure it."

"Only a few months ago Mr. Hawley died, closing a long and honorable life. He has watched, without doubt, from his later home in another city, the steady, strong growth to its maturity of the institution at whose cradle he presided with hopes so confident and with a foresight so wise. If he might have been spared a little longer and permitted to be with us next year, when the association, God willing, shall enter into the possession of its permanent new abode, how happily in his presence that meeting of fifty years ago would have pictured itself to our imaginations. To Mr. Hawley and those who labored with him those first years of this association, we owe a great part of the fruitage of prosperity we are now gathering. Certainly, 'they builded better than they knew,' and probably nothing that we can now do with our accumulated means, and the resources of a great city behind us, can compare with their achievement in laying the foundations of this institution. Therefore, it seems eminently proper that the records of this association should bear witness to the respect that is entertained for the one who bore such a conspicuous and honorable part in its early history."

Resolved, That the recent death of the first President of this Association, Seth C. Hawley, whose eloquent and inspiring address delivered at the first regular meeting, held March 22, 1836, must have given a great impetus to the movement by which the association was started on its prosperous career, calls for an expression of the gratitude and the honor in which we hold his memory, and which we extend to all who labored with him in the different laying of the foundations of an institution which is now their splendid monument.

"Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the family of Mr. Hawley and that it be published with the proceedings of this meeting."

Resolutions of the Board of Police.

At a meeting of the Board of Police of New York City, held on November 11th, 1884, the following, among other proceedings, were had:

"This Department deeply regrets the death of Seth C. Hawley, Chief Clerk, on the 10th day of November, 1884, after the faithful service of a quarter of a century.

"Resolved, That the long service of Mr. Hawley was marked by earnestness and fidelity, and that to his advice and constant care is to be attributed, in a great measure, the success and usefulness of the Metropolitan Police organization during its continuance; that to his wise counsel and indefatigable labor, is greatly due the present admirable police system of the City of New York; that his character was known for strict integrity in the discharge of all obligations as a public servant, and for marked ability in the performance of every public duty intrusted to him.

"Resolved, That to the widow and children of the deceased, we tender our sincere sympathy in the irreparable loss they have sustained, so deeply deplored by ourselves and every member of this Department.

"Resolved, That the foregoing be suitably engrossed."

The Albany Journal said: "Mr. Hawley's only daughter was engaged to marry George W. Vanderbilt, the favorite son of Commodore Vanderbilt. George died of a pulmonary complaint, contracted while he was serving in the Federal Army, and to his brother William H. were given the Commodore's millions. To Miss Hawley, who has remained single, Commodore Vanderbilt gave the house and grounds at One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street and West Boulevard, New York City, which the Hawley family have since occupied."

Lucian Hawley

Note 84.—LUCIAN HAWLEY, No. 1646, son of Soth Hawley, was born in Moreau, Saratoga County, N. Y., Nov. 8, 1818, and after he was ten years old attended district school until sixteen. Then for two years off and on was a clerk in a general store at Glen's Falls. When eighteen years of age he went to Buffalo, N. Y., and on April 1st, 1837, engaged as clerk on the dock, but the great financial troubles of that year broke up this engagement, and in August of that same year he commenced the study of law in the office of Barker, Hawley & Sill, where he stayed for three years.

In 1840, he changed to the office of Fillmore & Haven as student and managing clerk, and continued until the November term of the New York Supreme Court in 1844, when he was admitted to the bar as an attorney.

He then continued the practice of law until 1849, when he was appointed Deputy Collector of Customs, from which he resigned in 1852, and went into the law office of Hon. John Ganston.

In 1855 he was appointed Secretary of the Daily Commercial Advertiser Company, and in 1857 that Company went to the wall with many other unfortunates, and he was then employed by Messrs. Pratt & Company to go to the Western States and collect or secure claims for them for goods previously sold.

He returned in November, 1858, and took the Secretaryship of the Buffalo Agricultural Machine Works, until January, 1865. In April, 1865, he was appointed Inspector in the Internal Revenue Department of the Government, and for twelve years continued in that service, working in all parts of the United States, from Boston to San Francisco.

During that time he was legislated out of office twice and resigned twice, but was each time induced, without solicitation on his part, but by advanced pay and position, to return to the service.

Three years, from 1873 to 1876, he was one of the ten Supervisors of the Internal Revenue in the United States, and was most of the time in charge of the New York district, which included the whole State, with his office at 83 Cedar Street, New York City.

In 1875, being detailed to go to St. Louis, in charge of that branch of a general whiskey raid, made by the Treasury department in the West, he seized in one day all the distilleries and large rectifying establishments in that place. He took with him fifty armed men and put into their keeping the large amounts of property seized, which was afterward confiscated to the Government, and a score, more or less, of delinquents and participating Government officers sent to the penitentiary.

In September, 1875, he was sent on a like whiskey raid to the Pacific coast, where he remained until the next May, when he resigned and returned home, and since that time has practised his profession in the city of Buffalo, N. Y.

Note 84½.—NAOMI HAWLEY (HOLMES), No. 1647. The following notice appeared in the New York Independent soon after her decease:

"Died in Kingsbury, Washington Co., N. Y., on the 13th of August, 1853, Naomi Hawley, wife of Lemuel C. Holmes, in the 33d year of her age.

"The deceased was a daughter of Soth Hawley, Esq., of Moreau, Saratoga County, N. Y. In 1841 she became a hopeful subject of Divine grace, and made a public profession of her faith in Christ in connection with the Congregational Church of Moreau. Her subsequent life was that of an humble and exemplary Christian. During her last sickness she bore all her sufferings without a murmur. The night before she died, she appeared perfectly conscious of her approaching end, and after conversing freely in relation to her departure from earth, and praying audibly for those around her and for her absent friends, requested an interest in their prayers and resigned herself to the will of her heavenly Father. The next morning she revived; her mind was clear and her hopes bright, and after singing a verse of the hymn, she soon sank rapidly into the arms of death, and at 7 o'clock her spirit fled from the clayey tabernacle to rest in the presence of her Redeemer."

'Jesus can make a dying bed
Seem soft as downy pillows are,'

Of her a sister writes: "So passed my beloved sister from this world of sin and sorrow. Dear sainted spirit, let not these fast falling tears make thee sad. Look in pitying love on the torn and bleeding hearts of loved ones thou has left behind in this sinful world, and with dear mother and sister Charlotte, be kind and ministering angels unto us, in our sorrows and darkness, until we meet where there is no mere darkness nor sorrow, but light and joy forever and ever. Amen."

Note 86.—EDWARD HAWLEY, No. 1648, son of Seth Hawley, married Charlotte R., daughter of George and Eliza (Robinson) Payne, in 1852, and resided in Moreau on the old homestead, his father living with him many years until his decease in 1869.

In the distribution of the estate his father gave him the old "South Farm," on which he resided until about 1883, when he sold it and removed to Ferris, Edmunds Co., Dakota, where he still resides.

Note 86.—ELLEN HAWLEY (TREADWELL), No. 1649, youngest child of Seth Hawley, married the Rev. Charles W. Treadwell in July, 1851, and died December 17, 1853.

The Rev. Charles W. Treadwell was born in Salem, Mass., June 25, 1816; fitted for college at the Salem Grammar School, and afterward graduated at Andover Theological Seminary. He was stated supply of the Presbyterian church at Moreau, N. Y., from 1841 to 1851; then filled the same position at Theresa, N. Y., from 1851 to 1853; and in 1854, he removed to Wheatland, Iowa, and after that he filled the pulpit of the Presbyterian churches of Wheatland and Clarence, of the same State, much of the time until his decease, residing at the latter place.

He married on the 15th of July, 1851, Miss Ellen Hawley as above, who, after a little more than two years of married life with him who was the choice of her heart, was called home to the heavenly rest, December, 1853.

Mr. Treadwell married, second, Miss C. E. Suits, of Plessis, N. Y., who preceded him to the future unending home about eight years. Mr. Treadwell died suddenly of some difficulty of the heart, July 4, 1888.

Note 89.—EDWARD SELDEN HAWLEY, No. 1682, son of Elias S. and Lavinia H. (Selden) Hawley, is engaged in business as an underwriter in Buffalo, N. Y., where he resides.

Note 90.—DELIA AUSTIN HAWLEY (BRUSH), No. 1684, daughter of Elias S. and Lavinia H. (Selden) Hawley, married Edward N. Brush, M. D., new physician in charge of the male department of the Penn Hospital for the Insane at Philadelphia. For further notice of his professional career, see sketch at the end of the Notes in this book.

Geo. R. Hawley

Note 91.—GEORGE RUSSELL HAWLEY, No. 1678, son of Elias S. and Lavinia H. (Selden) Hawley, was a young man of good ability as an accountant, and of a cheerful, correct social life.

During his last illness and while he was yet able to travel, he went to Aiken, South Carolina, with his eldest sister and under the special care of Dr. Jocelyn, a kind and skillful physician, and spent the winter in hope of beneficial results. Not long before his decease, his brother-in-law, Doctor Brush of Philadelphia, went to Aiken, and on consultation with Doctor Jocelyn concluded to remove the patient to Philadelphia, where in the home of his sister he had all possible comforts, and the most skillful medical advice, Doctor Jocelyn remaining with him to the last.

He early united with the North Presbyterian Church of Buffalo, and was an attentive and active member of the same.

The lifetime we thought lay before him,
Already was rounded and whole,
In dainty completeness of body,
And wondrous perfection of soul.

He was brave in the night of endurance,
Was patient, and who can say more?
He brought us a pride and a pleasure,
He left us a pathos of tears;
A dream of impossible futures,
A glimpse of uncalendared years.

Note 91½.—MARY ELIZA HAWLEY, No. 1701, daughter of Edward Hawley, was born in Moreau, Saratoga County, N. Y., and died at the residence of his sister, Mrs. Rozelle, on Wednesday, September 27, 1882. She had been a teacher for two years in the graded school at Whitehall, where she had made many friends and established an enviable reputation. She was prevented from returning to enter upon the fall term of 1881, by ill health, and from that time her decline was rapid. She bore her suffering with great patience, and evinced through all of them the sweetness of the Christian spirit, and the strength and sincerity of her faith. Her departure was calm and triumphant, and the large circle of loved ones and friends, to whom she had endeared herself most warmly by her many noble traits of character, by her gentleness and sweetness of disposition, her unobtrusive piety, do not sorrow "as they that are without hope."

Note 92.—ELIZA ALMIRA HAWLEY (KIMBERLY), No. 1703, daughter of Fenn Hawley (No. 1631), married John Liberty Kimberly in 1826. Their residence was in Buffalo, N. Y., where he died in 1834, aged 85 years.

Note 93.—REV. AMOS PAYNE HAWLEY, No. 1719, Son of Col. Alpheus Hawley, was born at Glen's Falls, N. Y.; was fitted for college at Cambridge, N. Y., under Rev. Nathaniel S. Prime, D.D., and entered Middlebury College in 1829 or 30, where he was graduated four years afterwards. He studied for the ministry, was licensed to preach the Gospel and was ordained pastor of the Presbyterian Church, at Springville, Erie Co., N. Y. Not long after this his congregation made what was called "a bee" to provide wood for the parsonage for the winter. Mr. Hawley going with them, and being an athletic, strong man, cut down a tree, which in falling struck another tree and glancing in an unexpected manner, struck Mr. Hawley in such a manner as to injure one of his lungs so as to cause a long illness, and the final loss of that part of his lungs, and partially of his voice. This caused him to abandon his profession and seek other employment.

He was for a long time occupied in a responsible position in the New York Custom House, being a strong Republican, where he was efficient as an accurate business clerk. "I think," says the informant, "he held this position till his decease." He died Feb. 28, 1876, in the 63d year of his age.

The following record was made by the joint meeting of the Session and Board of Trustees of the Second Presbyterian Church of Jersey City, N. J., Feb. 28, 1876, of which church he was a member for many years:

"It hath pleased Him who hath taught us His ways aright to remove our beloved brother, A. P. Hawley, by death. This providence to us is a sore affliction. For many years he has been identified with this church, adorning the doctrine of God, our Savior, in all things. Although physically unable to undertake the active duties of the ministry, he was still a workman that needed not to be ashamed. His scholarly attainments, his biblical knowledge and his experience of Divine things were perfected in a remarkable degree. Not even his necessary separation from the work upon which the hopes and labors of his early years had been expended, had been allowed to stop the thoroughness of his intellectual or spiritual culture. With deep convictions of his own, he was yet generous toward the opinions of others and entirely free from the prejudice which ignorance so commonly begets. For the church of Christ he had a passionate love. Nothing but the hand of God prevented him from being in his place, in her courts or at her ordinances. He loved the Sunday-school and its work, and the place of prayer was continually his delight. He entered heartily into all the plans of the church for the increase of her usefulness. We lose by his death a wise counselor and the prayers of a righteous man. He was thoroughly informed of the church's work at home and abroad. While, therefore, we bow submissively to the will of our Heavenly Father, we take this method of expressing our sense of the great loss we have sustained, and hereby extend to the widow and friends our cordial and prayerful sympathy.

"Resolved, That a copy of the foregoing minutes be furnished the widow of the deceased, the Evening Journal and Observer, of this city, and the Evangelist and Observer, of New York."

HARVEY PAYNE HAWLEY, son of the Rev. Amos Payne Hawley, was killed in the war for the Union, June 2, 1862, aged 23 years.

GENEALOGICAL NOTES.

Note 94.—ELIZABETH LOUISE HAWLEY (EDDY), No. 1721, daughter of Col. Alpheus Hawley, married Rev. Hiram S. Eddy, a Congregational clergyman, who was ordained in 1854 and installed pastor of the North Church in Canaan, Ct., and dismissed in 1860(?). He was appointed Chaplain in the beginning of the late war, was taken prisoner in the first Bull Run battle; but a further account of him has not been obtained. He had a brother, Zachary Eddy, D. D., a Congregational clergyman, who preached in Connecticut a while, then was pastor at Atlanta, Ga., for some years, and returned to Springfield, Mass. Both these clergymen were the sons of the Rev. Isaac Eddy of Warren, Pa.

RESIDENCE OF RAVAUD K. HAWLEY, CLEVELAND, OHIO.

Note 96.—RAVAUD KEARNEY HAWLEY, No. 1755, son of Elias Hawley, resides in Cleveland, Ohio, in the dwelling represented by the accompanying engraving. It is proper here to state that through the liberality and encouragement of this gentleman, the publication of this RECORD became financially possible; for without solicitation, the placing in book form of the material collected through so many years, was conceived and proposed by him, and in the opinion of the writer the obligations of the family in general are due to him for this voluntary favor. His portrait may be found in the front of this book, and the sketch of his business career at the end of these Notes.

Note 95.—ALPHEUS FENN HAWLEY, No. 1722, son of Col. Alpheus Hawley, was born at Moreau, N. Y., in 1821, and with his father's family settled in Jamestown, Chautauqua county, N. Y., when he was about ten years of age, where he grew up and married, in 1843, Lucy, daughter of Adolphus Fletcher, and where he resided for a time.

He was an active, enterprising man, and transacted business on a large scale. He was elected sheriff of Chautauqua county in 1852, while yet a young man, and made a very efficient officer. Removing to Mankato, Minn., he became an extensive merchant, in which business he continued several years.

After the barbarities perpetrated by the Winnebago Indians upon the early settlers in Minnesota had been punished by hanging twenty-five or thirty of their prominent chiefs, the government employed Mr. Hawley to remove the entire tribe west of the Missouri river, which he did successfully. Soon after this he was appointed an Indian agent or trader, by President Lincoln, to the various tribes on the Missouri river, including Fort Benton.

He was one of a company of four—Messrs. Bates, Smith, Hawley and Hubbell, called the Northwest Fur Company—who purchased the entire interest of Pierre Chouteau, of St. Louis, in the goods and forts on the Missouri river, from Fort Rapidall to Fort Benton, at a cost of several hundred thousand dollars.

Mr. Hawley was a very popular man among the Indians of the Northwest, and was made a chief of one or more of the tribes. He was known to the Indians by the name of "Big Voice." He became quite familiar with the dialect of the Sioux, and could talk readily with nearly all of the tribes. He received many curious and valuable presents from various chiefs.

For several seasons he was captain of a steamer belonging to the Northwest Fur Company, running between St. Louis and Fort Benton, a distance of about three thousand miles. One of their steamboats, just loaded and ready to sail for the mountains, was burned in St. Louis, taking fire from other burning steamers lying at the levee above her.

During the war this boat was several times pressed into the service of the Government for the transportation of troops and provisions.

After the war Mr. Hawley abandoned the river and Indian trade, and settled in Chicago, where he built a house and for several years lived comparatively at ease and leisure, occasionally taking up some temporary business.

About three years before he died he had a stroke of paralysis, followed by two or three more in the course of a year or two, making him a confirmed invalid until he died in 1877.

A newspaper sketch of his life says: "The genial, hearty characteristics of 'Fenn' Hawley will always be remembered. His old enthusiasm for fishing and hunting, and the many adventures in which he took an active part, will be told over and over again by the few companions left, who in the old time used to take their expeditions with him. Nothing gave him so much pleasure as to talk over those days with friends who visited him."

Mrs. Lucy (Fletcher) Hawley, wife of A. Fenn Hawley, died at Arcola, Ill., January 20, 1878, aged 53 years and 7 months. The following is from the Sentinel of Centralia, Ill.:

"Mrs. Hawley has been in feeble health for many years, and confined to her room since August, 1877. Her health broke down in consequence of the long-continued care and close attention to her invalid husband, who was stricken with paralysis two or three years ago. He gradually grew worse in body and mind, until it was found necessary to take him to the Illinois Southern Hospital, at Anna, where he died four weeks ago.

"No higher eulogy could be bestowed upon the character of Mrs. Hawley than a perfectly true history of her life, as a child, girl, wife and mother.

"Of an amiable, cheerful disposition, with an easy habit of self-denial; a high culture, the result of careful study with close observation, and a great traveler, her society was courted and appreciated by all who came within her influence, the poor and ignorant as well as the wealthy and refined. She possessed a high order of intellect and was a writer of prose and poetry of no small merit. Around her memory is clustered nothing but what is pure and lovely, and our sad loss is her great gain."

Note 96.—MARTIN HAWLEY, A. B., No. 1758, son of Elias Hawley, was born in Binghamton, N. Y., 30 October, 1830; prepared for college at the Binghamton Academy, and was graduated at Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y., in the class of 1851. The same year he engaged in the lumber business in Baltimore, Md., with his brother, Ravaud K. Hawley, now of Cleveland, O. He was one of the founders of the Congregational Church at Baltimore in 1855, and "his wisdom helped to mould the policy that has never harbored a debt, has maintained free sittings, encouraged the young of the church to recognize their duties and meet them promptly, and made all its members feel that Christian obligation touches the weakest point in public and private life. He devised liberal things."

He married in 1860, Mary R. Webb, of Wilmington, Del., who survives him. He founded, in 1865, the Martin Hawley Fund for scholarship medals, in Hamilton College. He died in Baltimore, July 10, 1888, and the remains were buried in Greenmountain Cemetery in Baltimore.

Note 97.—LIEUT. ELISHA HAWLEY, No. 1851, son of Ensign Abel Hawley, was born in Meriden, Ct. He first settled in Windsor, Vt. (not Connecticut as in the table work of this book), in 1765, where he built the first sawmill. About 1795 he removed to Cambridge, Lamoille County, Vt. and settled on the Lamoille River, where the place was known afterwards for many years as the Hawley neighborhood, and at that place "the old burial ground," says one of his descendants, Mrs. Jerusha Hawley, in a recent letter, "is nearly filled with unburied, that tell too plainly where are our 'buried affections.'"

Lt. Hawley was in the Revolution in a militia regiment, as Quartermaster Jan. 4, 1776, and Lieutenant Oct. 10, 1776. He is the same as on page 425, bottom of right-hand column.

Note 98.—EDWARD HAWLEY, No. 2009, son of Emmor Hawley, was a furniture dealer at Kalamazoo, Mich. He enlisted in the war for the Union, in Company L, 5th Michigan Regiment, but further information has not been received.

Note 99.—MAJOR MARTIN HAWLEY, No. 2066, son of Abel Hawley, Jr., was born in Meriden, Ct., Jan. 25, 1776. He married Jan. 3, 1803, Sarah Stanton, of Paris, N. Y., and in 1818 settled in Binghamton, N. Y., where after the decease of his first wife, May 15, 1846, he married second, Joanna Cotter, of Binghamton, in 1847.

The following notice of him is from the daily Republican of that city, for July 22, 1853:

"Died on Thursday, July 21, 1853, at his residence at Hawleyton, Major Martin Hawley, in the 87th year of his age. The friends and acquaintances of the family are requested to attend his funeral at the Presbyterian church in this village, Saturday the 23d inst., at 3 o'clock P. M.

"Major Hawley was one of the old residents of Binghamton, having removed to this village in 1818. During the early part of his residence here, he was an active and enterprising citizen. He purchased at different times large quantities of real estate in and about the village, and did much to give the home of his adoption a prosperous start.

"He was for a long time afflicted with a dangerous, and as was generally supposed fatal sickness, which left him in feeble health, and prevented him from engaging in very active pursuits. Though always careful in his expenditures, he had not the cold parsimony of the mere man of money, and we may mention, as an honorable illustration, that several years ago he presented to the Presbyterian church a new and costly organ.

"He was possessed of a vigorous intellect, sound judgment and extensive information, and has left a large fortune as the fruit of his sagacity, energy and prudence."

Note 100.—JAMES STANTON HAWLEY, No. 2085, son of Maj. Martin Hawley, was a civil engineer residing at Binghamton a time, then removed to Philadelphia, Pa., where he died 4th Nov., 1873, aged 64 years. The remains were returned to Binghamton for burial.

Note 101.—CHRISTOPHER E. HAWLEY, No. 2087, son of James S. Hawley, married in Wilkesbarre, Pa., Mary Elizabeth, daughter of Hon. Hendrick B. Wright, and was a mining engineer by profession. He afterwards removed to Washington, D. C., where he built his present residence. He has taken considerable interest in this Record.

Note 102.—MARY ANN WILLIAMS, No. 2104, daughter of Nancy (Hawley) Williams, married 18th May, 1826, Edwin S. Mott, of Waterville, N. Y., who died 29 January, 1832. She married second, Horatio N. Loomis, M. D., 6th June, 1833. Dr. Loomis died March 22, 1881. The following sketch of him appeared in the Buffalo daily papers at the time:

"Doct. Horatio N. Loomis was born in Franklin, New London Co., Ct., March 25, 1807, and had therefore very nearly completed his seventy-fourth year.

"In the spring of 1813, his father removed to and settled in Sangerfield, Oneida Co., N. Y., where his son resided until April, 1828. He began the study of medicine in 1824, and attended four full courses of lectures at the Fairfield Medical College in Herkimer Co., N. Y., graduating in January, 1828.

"During 1826, he assisted Dr. Bishop in his practice at Sauquoit, township of Paris, Oneida County, N. Y. In the summer of the year following, he took charge of Doct. Freeman's practice at Vernon, in the same county, while that gentleman was spending the season in the East.

"April 28th, 1828, Dr. Loomis began the regular practice of his profession, at Palmyra, Wayne Co., N. Y., in partnership with Doct. Gain Robinson and the latter's son who had been his classmate in college. Afterwards when the Robinsons removed west, he was for five years associated with Prof. John DeCarmarter, until 1836, when Dr. Loomis removed with his family to Buffalo, and that city was his home until his decease, and in it he early secured an honorable place among the practitioners of medicine. Although he attended almost entirely to the duties of his profession, he was in one sense at least a public man, for he was known to a great many of the people, and did a very large amount of work in behalf of the poor, for which he gained no earthly reward. All who know him will speak quickly of his genial disposition, the pleasantry of his manner and his native kindness of heart.

"As a physician, his ability and intelligence were acknowledged by the implicit confidence which was given to his judgment by very many who sought his services in time of sickness, his practice being widely extended.

"In social private life he was a valued friend, an affectionate husband, and an indulgent father.

"Doctor Loomis leaves a widow, a son, Mr. Charles Loomis, and three daughters, Mrs. Doct. Brown, Mrs. W. C. Cornwell, and Miss Charlotte B. Loomis."

Note 102½.—EBENEZER HAWLEY, No. 2200, son of Dea. Thomas Hawley, was born in 1703, and it is quite peculiar that but little has been learned concerning him, more than the names of six of his children. In 1733 there was an Ebenezer Hawley on record as a "householder," in the Stratfield Society, living probably within the limits of the present city of Bridgeport, and it was probably this Ebenezer.

Note 103.—ELLEN HAWLEY (WALKER), No. 2201, daughter of Dea. Thomas Hawley, married Peter, son of Deacon Zechariah Walker, and resided in Woodbury, Ct. Her last child died 3 April, 1740, and she died the day following. Deacon Zechariah was the son of Rev. Zechariah Walker.

These dates are not given on pages 164 and 165, because they were not known when those pages were printed.

The distribution of Samuel Hawley's estate is recorded on Fairfield Probate Records, and given as follows, Feb. 9, 1757: "To the widow one-third part, £1479 15; to Molly the daughter, her part, £2968 3 4," and therefore she was probably the richest girl in her own right, only nine years of age, there was in the county, if not in the State of Connecticut, at that time. But she died eight years afterwards. In 1753, the widow, Sarah Hawley, married the Rev. Robert Ross, pastor of the Congregational church at Stratfield, which is now the First Congregational church of Bridgeport. She died Oct. 10, 1772, leaving one daughter, Sarah, who married Eliphalet Jennings, and her descendants are still living; a son older than Sarah, while a lad, fell into his father's well and was drowned.

Note 114.—CAPT. ABIJAH HAWLEY, No. 2233, son of Thomas Hawley, was born in Bridgeport, Ct., in 1769. In early life he was captain of different vessels, sailing in the Boston coasting trade, but afterwards became a prominent merchant of Bridgeport, Ct.

The Stratford and Bridgeport histories say of him, p. 606; "The firm of Abijah Hawley and Company was composed of Abijah, Aaron, (4880) and Captain Wilson (2334) Hawley. They carried on the Boston coasting grain business, and West India trade. Their coaster was called the Three Sisters, probably from the wives of the partners, who were all daughters of Capt. Stephen Sumners; and their New York packet was the sloop Caroline, and they were very successful for many years. Their store and wharf were on Water street, and a little south of State street, the grain elevator of Mr. John Hurd now occupying about the same site. Abijah was the fifth generation from Joseph Hawley, the first settler of the name in Stratford, through Samuel, Sen., Dea. THOMAS, Capt. Ezra, and Thomas of Bridgeport. The last, the father of Abijah, had his residence on the west side of Water street,* corner of Thomas. Of the children of Abijah Hawley, George and Abijah followed the water for many years; his son Thomas was a merchant, the founder of the well-known hardware house of T. Hawley & Company; his daughter Emeline married Dea. George Sterling, and his son Munson has been a successful merchant, but in later years has given himself to banking business, and has been for many years the efficient president of the Bridgeport National Bank.

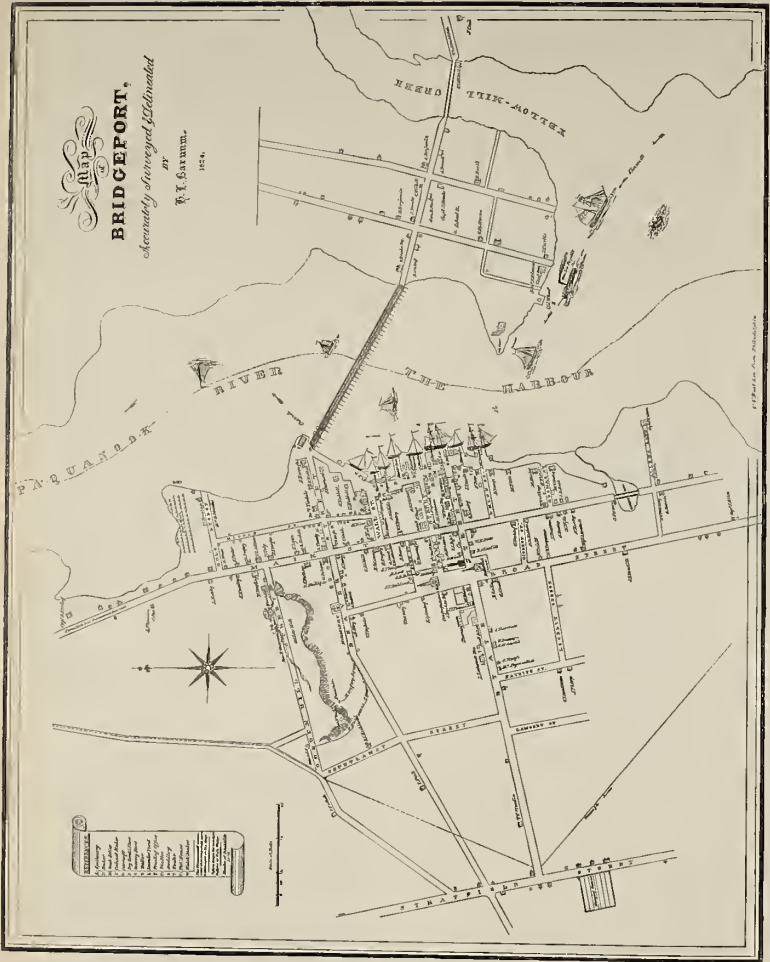

The Map on next page represents Bridgeport in 1824, but which is now grown to be a city of about 40,000 inhabitants, a city of very large manufacturing firms, and of much wealth.

The Hawley family have at different times, beginning with the first lay-out of the land, owned most of the land on the east side of Main Street from Thomas Street to the Salt Works, including also a considerable strip on the west side, much of the distance from Gilbert Street to above Gold Street. The original lay-out to Joseph Hawley, most of which remained in the family for more than a hundred years, included the territory from the harbor to Broad Street, nearly, and from above Beaver Street down to about Union Street or Thomas street. See also the map in Note 177.

Note 115.—REV. RANSOM HAWLEY, No. 2237, son of Capt. Ebenezer Hawley, was born in 1802, at Bridgeport, Ct., in the house in which his father and grandfather lived, now Park Place, Bridgeport. (See Note 177, Map No. 133.) He and his wife united with the Congregational Church at Bridgeport in 1822, under the pastoral care of Rev. Elijah Waterman. He studied theology at Auburn Theological Seminary, N. Y.; was licensed to preach by the Fairfield Association East, in April, 1827; removed to Washington, Iowa, in October of the same year, under the patronage of the A. H. M. Society, being the second missionary of that Society in that State. He resided about five and a half years in Washington, seven and a half in Bloomington, and more than twelve in Putnamville, Iowa.

Note 115½.—LEVY HAWLEY, No. 2238, son of Capt. Ebenezer, was born in Bridgeport, Ct., in 1805, and apprenticed for several years to learn the saddler's trade, to Smith & Wright, and Fairchild, Lyon & Co., completing his time of service July 15, 1826, with a credit for over-work of $670, after deducting over $500 cash drawn during his apprenticeship.

About 1830 he started business for himself in Columbia, S. C., which he pursued successfully, in his quiet way, until about 1860, when he retired to Ashville, N. C.*

Note 116.—MARIA HAWLEY (BROOKS), No. 2269, daughter of Zalmou Hawley, was born in 1797, and married Capt. John Brooks, a sea-captain, of Bridgeport, Ct., where they resided most of the time. The captain ran boats from Bridgeport to New York a large proportion of the time of his business life. They accumulated a considerable property, and their children having died, much of their property was given to the Presbyterian Church of that city.

Note 117.—ABIJAH HAWLEY, JR., No. 2276, son of Abijah Hawley, Sen., married 1st, Betsey Amelia, daughter of Stiles Nichols, of Bridgeport, Ct., and 2d, Sally Matilda, daughter of Col. Asa Benjamin, of Stratford, Ct. (For the Nichols Family, see Note 11).

Note 118.—MUNSON HAWLEY, No. 2278, son of Capt. Abijah Hawley, was born in Bridgeport, Ct., in 1803, and received his education in public and private schools. While young his physical strength was equal to any of his companions in athletic sports. When about seventeen years of age he entered as clerk, the dry goods and grocery store of Jesse Stirling, who was also the postmaster of the Borough of Bridgeport, where it was the clerk's duty, upon the arrival of the mail each day, to read publicly the addresses on the letters, in order that persons present might know if there were letters for them.

Before he was twenty-one years of age he bought the store of his employer, and a little later he bought a second store of goods in the same line, of John Burr, and employed his brother Thomas as clerk. About 1828 he gave up the dry goods business, and was for two years engaged in the coasting trade between Bridgeport, New York and Boston, with the late Isaac De Forest.

In 1830, he engaged again in the mercantile business, with a partner, with a branch store in Columbus, Ga. This continued until 1839, when he started a store of his own and continued the grocery and shipping business until 1865, with a fair measure of success. During this period he was part owner of many vessels, in the coasting and whaling trade. Then for about four years he was connected with the Pequotnoek National Bank, most of the time as President. In 1869 he was elected to the Presidency of the Bridgeport National Bank, which position he still holds, attending regularly to its duties.

He was Mayor of Bridgeport for the years 1866, 1867 and 1869, having previously served a number of years in the Common Council and in the Fire Department.

Note 120.—CAPT. WILSON HAWLEY, No. 2334, son of Ezra Hawley, Jr., was born at Bridgeport, Ct., in 1776, and married Charity Summers in 1799. He was a sea captain and merchant. In Note 122, will found some account of his life, pleasantly presented.

By a correspondent the following description of Capt. Wilson Hawley's dwelling and home is secured:

"The house is located on North Avenue, a short distance east of Main Street, and in a good state of preservation for its age. When built it stood on the main road out of Newfield (now Bridgeport) north towards Newtown. When the town turnpike was made the course was changed a few rods west of this point. The old road remains, and the house still stands on the corner as in the picture.

"It is occupied by Mr. James Porter, who married two of the daughters of the old proprietor, viz: Mary and Ruth Ably; the latter is still living with her husband on the place. Mr. Porter appears in the picture at the front gate."

Note 121.—CAPT. BRONSON HAWLEY, No. 2348, son of Capt. Wilson Hawley, was born at Bridgeport, Ct., Sept. 27, 1800, and was a farmer and a sea-captain. His early education was obtained in the common school, but afterwards he attended the Staples school, now the Easton Academy. His mother was a woman of most exemplary Christian character, which was deeply impressed upon her children.

At the age of sixteen, young Bronson went to Catskill to live with his uncle Ezra Hawley, where he attended school and also assisted in the store of Ezra and George Hawley. Afterwards he was employed as clerk, and still later placed on board the packet running between Catskill, New York and Boston, being intrusted with the care of the cargo. At the age of twenty years he had become captain of a vessel sailing from New York to Boston and the West Indies, for the firm of A. and W. Hawley of which his father, Wilson, was one. One of the vessels he commanded was the Brig Nestor, which had a local celebrity in Bridgeport, where the captain and his father resided.

He continued to follow the sea until about the year 1836, when, wishing to be more at home with his family, he entered the flour and grain business in company with his brother-in-law James Porter and Philip L. Smith, under the name of Porter, Hawley & Smith, their store standing on Water Street, Bridgeport, Ct. They owned and run the Berkshire Mills, one on each bank of the stream, and were starting out with fine prospects, when a freshet, having broken through the dam at the Pequonnock Mills above, swept the Berkshire dam and the mill on the east bank entirely away, damaging also the other mill. They built and started again, and once more the floods came and swept all away.

Discouraged in the mill business, Capt. Hawley determined to try the sea again, and was successfully engaged in vessels owned in connection with the firms of Hawley, Thorp & Co., Niles, Thorp & Co., and Munson Hawley, trading between Bridgeport, Demarara, and the West Indies, carrying cargoes of flour, grain, butter, lard, and live stock, as horses, mules, cows, returning with sugar, molasses and fruits.

He continued thus employed, mainly on the brig Gipsey, up to 1850, with a fair measure of success, and with his retirement was closed the direct trade between Bridgeport and the West Indies.

In 1850, Captain Hawley entered upon a new line of business, in connection with the firm of J. Mott & Company, carriage manufacturers, wherein he continued, being the oldest man in active business in the town at his decease, 12 February, 1880.

Captain Hawley united with the Congregational church of Bridgeport in 1828, and thus continued through life.

Captain Hawley married, 7th May, 1826, Rebecca, daughter of Amos Burr, whose residence was on North Avenue at the corner of Black Rock road, in Bridgeport, with whom he lived nearly fifty-four years in the house in which he died, on Main Street at the corner of Franklin Street. Their golden wedding was celebrated in a very interesting manner.*

Note 122 —EDMUND SUMMERS HAWLEY, No. 2354 son of Captain Wilson and Charity (Summers) Hawley, was born in Bridgeport, Ct., June 15th, 1813. He is of English descent, the family tracing their lineage back to the first settlers in Stratford, Ct., through Wilson, Ezra, Capt. Ezra, Deacon Thomas, Samuel and Joseph Hawley; the last named came from Derbyshire, England, about 1639, and died in Stratford in 1690, aged 87 years.

At the age of eighteen Mr. Hawley united with the Second Congregational Church of Bridgeport, then under the pastoral charge of Rev. Nathaniel Hewit, D. D.

When about twenty-one years of age he removed to Catskill, N. Y., where he remained in business about six years. While there he was elected a director in the Catskill Bank, which office he held until his return to his native city in 1840. After his return he was engaged in the dry goods and clothing business, and was one of the first to start the ready-made clothing trade in Bridgeport, there being at that time but one small store of that kind in the city.

He was married in 1842, to Lucy S., daughter of Thomas C. Wordin, and has two children, Mary W. and Charles W. Lucy S., wife of Edmund S., died October 30th, 1883.

His son Charles W. was married April 17th, 1884, to Katherine A. Beardsley, daughter of Frederick J. and Margaret (Edmund) Beardsley of Stratford, Ct. They have one daughter, Marguerite W.

In 1849, Edmund S. with his father-in-law, Mr. Thomas C. Wordin, Sherwood Sterling and Munson Hawley, was extensively engaged in the California trade, and they were among the first to ship goods to that new country, which resulted in establishing the very large and successful business which has since been and is now conducted by the sons of Mr. Thomas Hawley in that great and prosperous state.

In 1852 he was appointed a Director of the Bridgeport Bank, and held that position until 1859, when he was chosen President of the Farmers' Bank (now First National), which office he has held for twenty-nine years, and which position he still holds.

In 1851 he was elected Trustee of the Bridgeport Savings Bank, and held that position until 1870, when he was appointed Vice-President, and in 1875 was chosen President, which office he still holds, having been connected with that bank for thirty-seven years.

About the year 1859, he sold his mercantile business, and devoted his time and energies to banking, and has been connected with different banks as Director, Trustee or President, almost continuously for nearly half a century. Although not active in politics, he has always been a staunch Republican.

Captain Wilson Hawley, father of Edmund S., was born April 15th, 1776, and for many years was member of the firm of Abijah Hawley & Co.

The firm was composed of Abijah, Aaron and Wilson Hawley. They were engaged in the West India trade and carried on the Boston coasting, grain and lumber business.

Wilson Hawley was a man of some property and exerted a large influence in the affairs of the town and church. While still in the prime of life, he retired from active business, and owning considerable land, he cultivated it, and lived in the house now owned and occupied by his son-in-law Mr. James Porter, where he died Oct. 30, 1846, at the age of seventy years.

Charity (Summers) Hawley, mother of Edmund S., was a woman of most exemplary Christian character, a living witness and example of the power of that religion which she lived, and which she commended to all in her house; her religious life and godly conversation deeply impressed her children and grand children, and she lived to see all her children brought into the church, and died Aug. 30, 1844, at the age of sixty-nine.

Captain Wilson and Charity (Summers) Hawley had nine children: Bronson, Mary, Catharine, Cornelia, Ruth Abby, Francis W., Edmund S., Eusebin M. and Charles F. All lived to mature age except Eusebin, who died in infancy.

There are still living: Cornelia, wife of the late Dr. James Baldwin, of Danbury, Ct.; Ruth Abby, wife of Mr. James Porter of Bridgeport, Ct.; and Edmund S.

Note 123.—HARRIET THOMPSON HAWLEY (HUBBELL), No. 2414, daughter of Ezra Hawley 3d, and sister of Rev. Charles Hawley, D. D., married in 1859, the Rev. Stephen Hubbell, a Congregational clergyman of Connecticut. He was graduated at Yale College in 1827, studied theology at New Haven, and was ordained pastor at Mt. Carmel, May 18, 1830, where he remained six years. He afterwards preached two years at Wolcottville, twelve years at East Avon, seventeen years at North Stouthington, Ct. He then preached a time at Long Ridge in Stamford, Ct., and retired to Mt. Carmel, where he built him a comfortable home.

He married for his first wife, Oct. 30, 1832, Martha, daughter of Noah Stone, M. D., of Oxford, Ct. She was a finely educated woman, and after a few years as a pastor's wife, wrote the book called The Shady Side, which made a great commotion throughout New England, and resulted in more good to the ministers and churches of that region than any work of the kind, stirring up the people to take better care of their ministers and of their churches in financial methods and usages.

Their son, the Rev. William Stone Hubbell, was graduated at Yale College in 1858; studied theology at Andover, Mass.; served as 2d Lieutenant through the war, preached a number of years at Somerville, Mass., and is now pastor of the North Presbyterian Church in Buffalo, N. Y.

Charles Hawley, D.D.

Note 124.—REV. CHARLES HAWLEY, D. D., No. 2417, son of Ezra Hawley, 3d, was born at Catskill, N. Y., in 1819, and died at Auburn, N. Y., Nov. 26, 1885. He united with the Presbyterian Church in Catskill, in 1831; was graduated from Williams College in 1840, and from Union Theological Seminary in 1844.

He was ordained and installed as pastor of the Presbyterian church at New Rochelle by the Second Presbytery of New York, in December, 1844, where he remained until 1848. From 1848 to 1859, he was pastor at Lyons, Wayne County, N. Y. where he married Miss Mary Hubbell of that place, September 10, 1850.

From Lyons he went to Auburn, N. Y., and was installed pastor of the First Presbyterian church of that city, Thursday evening, November 5, 1857, where, in 1882, he delivered a sermon on the twenty-fifth anniversary of his settlement there, and where he continued to preach until his decease. During his ministry in this church, the present Gothic stone house of worship was erected at a cost of over one hundred thousand dollars.

In 1861, he received the degree of D. D. from Hamilton College.

Of Dr. Hawley's writings, there were published in pamphlet form: "A Sermon preached in the Presbyterian Church at Lyons, N. Y., December 2, 1849, on 'The Advantages of the Present Age,'" "A History of the First Presbyterian Church, Auburn, N. Y., March 7, 1869, on leaving the old church previous to its removal to give place to the new edifice," "A Sermon 'In memoriam of James S. Seymour,'" in the First Presbyterian Church, Auburn, January 24, 1876; and an annual "Address before the Cayuga County Historical Society, in 1881, and 1882, as President of that Society, of which he was the founder in 1881, which office he held until his death.

Also he published in book form, "Jesuit Missions," in 1876, and "Early Chapters of Cayuga History," in 1879.

Dr. Hawley was Trustee of the Auburn Theological Seminary from 1876 to the time of his decease.

Note 125.—GEORGE BENJAMIN HAWLEY, M. D., No. 2434, son of Abraham Hawley, was born in Bridgeport, Ct., in 1812, and died in Hartford, Ct., in 1883. The following is taken from a Hartford newspaper, published immediately after Docter Hawley's death:

"George Benjamin Hawley was born in Bridgeport, in February, 1812, which makes him 71 years old. When six months of age his parents removed to Watertown, Ct., where he received a common-school education, and at the age of fourteen he was placed in an academy at Goshon. He entered Yale College in 1829, and was graduated in 1833. Immediately he began the study of medicine, and attended the medical lectures at Yale during the winters of 1833, 1834 and 1835. In the last year he passed as a demonstrator of anatomy in the same institution. This showed him to be qualified to give instruction in anatomy. Later he studied under Docter Pierson, of Windsor, and Docter Jonathan Knight of New Haven.

"In 1836, he was appointed assistant physician at the Connecticut Retreat for the Insane in this city. His experience here was of much value to him when he began the practice of medicine, which he did four years later, in 1840, establishing himself in Hartford, where he successfully practiced for over forty years.

"In his early struggles he was encouraged and assisted by the counsels of Docter Fuller, an eminent practitioner in those days. Dr. Hawley's first wife was Docter Fuller's daughter, and this union speedily placed the young Docter on the road to success, and during all his professional career he had an extensive practice.

"But it was perhaps outside of his profession that his greatest work was done. Large-hearted, benevolent and sympathetic, his indomitable energy could not be confined to the limits of his chosen occupation. He was emphatically a philanthropist. He early saw the necessity of providing accommodations for the sick and for the injured, and his desire found vent in agitating the project for a great Hospital. That was his first, and perhaps his greatest public work, and to it he devoted himself with an untiring assiduity which interfered with his own individual affairs and personal interests in almost every way but the interrupting or slighting of his professional work; that he never would permit. He probably injured his own health by his free and long continued expenditure of nervous energy in raising contributions for that and other institutions, and in vigorously driving such plans to a successful completion. Ten years ago he was talking up a plan for an Old People's Home, and he lived almost long enough to see the completion of the spacious, costly and beautiful structure, on Jefferson Street, that is to be devoted to that purpose. He was also actively interested in the establishment of the Inebriate Asylum at Walnut Hill.

"But it was in the Hartford Hospital that he was interested. That finely appointed and beneficent establishment, which has cost a quarter of a million dollars and has long been one of the most creditable institutions of Hartford, owes its inception and origin more to Dr. Hawley than to any other man. It was chartered in 1854, and dedicated in May, 1859, the address being delivered by Mayor Deming. Dr. Hawley was very properly the Vice-President. He knew the advantages of the Hospital, and professed to spend there the last years of his life. He leaves a widow and a son, the latter, Dr. George F. Hawley, now [1883] studying in London.

"Dr. Hawley made a peculiarly profitable investment in the stock of the Hartford woven-wire spring bed company. He also invested early and largely in the Hartford type-setting machine, which has now, after twenty years of work and experiment in the hands of inventors, at last been brought to a surprising state of efficiency.

"Dr. Hawley was a good, kind and respected man. He will be remembered kindly by thousands for many years to come."

He settled with his father about 1732, in the southeastern part of New Milford, now Bridgewater, Ct., where he resided about thirty-two years, and then removed to Arlington, Vt. He was a farmer, and also an enterprising man in public matters. In 1760, he, with Roger Sherman, signer of the Declaration of Independence, organized a company to settle a township, "about twelve miles square, lying eastward of Fort Edward upon Wood Creek" in the colony of New York. Forty men signed this compact, among them Jehiel Hawley, heading the list, and four of his sons, namely, Matthew Hawley, Andrew Hawley, Abel Hawley, and Gideon Hawley. This was done in a response to a published invitation of the Lieut. Governor of the New York Colony, but the proposition did not succeed.

In 1761, a petition was presented to the Connecticut Legislature for authority to raise money by lottery, for the purpose of clearing obstructions in the Housatonic river and making it navigable, and Jehiel Hawley, with six others, was appointed a committee to sell the tickets, raise and appropriate the money to accomplish the object. After considerable money was raised and in the hands of William Tamer, of Cornwall, one of the committee, he became sick and died, and the money could not be found nor obtained from any property of his. This involved the whole committee, and report says Jehiel Hawley and his father, who had become security, lost much money by this undertaking.

In 1764, Jehiel Hawley, his brother Josiah Hawley and their father, Ephraim Hawley, then about 72 years of age, removed to Arlington, Vt., where they became leading land-holders of the township, three other men only having preceded them in 1763, in the commencement of the settlement of the town.

The following account of Mr. Hawley was published in the Churchman's Magazine in 1805:

"Jehiel Hawley was Captain of the militia; several years a representative in the General Assembly of Connecticut, from the town of New Milford; and was annually chosen Reader of the Episcopal Church in Roxbury, Ct., for the space of twelve years. But having a large family, and favorable prospects inviting him, he removed to Arlington, in the State of Vermont, whither several of his friends followed him, by which the church in Roxbury was much diminished.

"Although much cumbersome with many things in making provisions for a numerous family, Captain Hawley did not forget the one thing needful, but with unremitting zeal for his Master's glory and the salvation of his fellow men, he commenced the worship of the Church at Arlington upon his settling there, and with the blessing of God upon his unremitting and pious labors, he so spread the doctrines of the Church, that until the time of the Revolution, almost the whole town consisted of Episcopalians.

"Soon after the settlement of Captain Hawley in the State of Vermont, a dispute arose between the State of New York (then a colony) and Vermont, concerning certain titles and claims to lands comprehended in the boundaries of the latter, the right to which could not be ascertained but by sending agents for both States to England. Vermont sent two,* of whom Captain Hawley was one. To blacken the character of the Vermont agents, and thereby invalidate their agency, some people in New York were very active, but their efforts did not succeed. In England he was treated with the most flattering marks of respect by some of the first characters, and by the Earl of Dartmouth in particular; and such was the estimation in which his judgment and prudence were held by the copartners of the agency that they would not act without his co-operation, and by his means chiefly were the Vermont claims substantiated.

"After his return from England he continued Reader of the church in Arlington, but for the heinous crime of loyalty to his sovereign he was apprehended and committed to Litchfield jail; from which, through the mediation of his friends and the fairness of his character, having obtained his liberty, and not knowing any asylum where he could be safe, necessity obliged him to join the army of General Burgoyne, who was then on this side of Lake Champlain, and who appointed him president of a Board of Examiners to ascertain who were and who were not loyalists among his prisoners. Before this Board persons frequently were brought who were not loyalists, to whom Mr. Hawley was always wont to show every indulgence compatible with his office, even when his coadjutors were of a different opinion. His language used to be, 'Man is a free agent. The question between America and the mother country is not decided. Each party has a right of thinking as he pleases. To-day these men are in our power, to-morrow we may be in theirs. That mercy we would receive from our enemies is certainly due to such as are in our hands. Let it be known that we are Christians, whose duty it is to be merciful and to forgive our enemies.'

"Such had been his conduct that after the capture of Burgoyne (one of the articles of capitulation being that those who had not taken up arms might go to Canada), those very people who had so much abused and persecuted him before, now invited him to return with them to Arlington. But firm to his purpose he undertook the journey to Canada, but he died on his way at Shelburne, Vermont.

"Thus ended the life of this truly great and good man, a man to whom Daniel's character may not improperly be applied, that 'his enemies could find no fault in him, except they found it concerning his God.'"

Note 131.—ABEL HAWLEY, No. 2665, son of Ephraim Hawley, was born in Stratford in 1720, removed with his father to Newtown and New Milford, Ct., and thence to Arlington, Vt. One of his kindred writes: "He was a very good man. To this Ethan Allen testified as well as tradition. He undertook to reprove Allen for his skepticism and unchristian life, to which Allen replied, 'You may well be anxious about me, but we all know, unless Abel, that you are just as safe as if you were now in Abraham's bosom.' This is more than legend, it is history."

Abel Hawley removed to Fair Haven, Vt., before 1784, and after his own family was broken up he lived with his son Agur and daughter, Mrs. Stafford. He died at Fair Haven, Oct. 16, 1797, aged 77 years. His tombstone is yet standing, having been removed with Mr. Stafford's to the new grave-yard on the north side of West Street.

Jehiel, where they were among the first settlers of that town; and his father-in-law, Doct. Benjamin Warner, with his family, including his son, afterwards Col. In the Vermont Gazetteer, page 138, under the head of the town of Williston, it is said, "Thomas Chittenden was the father of this town. He came here in 1774, and was a member of the convention which, in 1777, declared Vermont an independent State, and was active in procuring its admission into the Union. When the Vermont Constitution was established, in 1778, Mr. Chittenden was chosen as a candidate for Governor, to which office he was annually elected, with the exception of one year, till his death in 1797."

Thomas H. Canfield became a merchant in Burlington, Vt., and was a partner in the firm of Bradley & Canfield, wholesale dealers, when, about 1852, he became interested in the project of building the Northern Pacific Railroad. He is now a resident of Lake Park, Minnesota, although, on account of extensive interests in Burlington, Vt., much of his time is spent at the latter place.

A history of his life is, to a great extent, a history of the inception and inauguration of that great enterprise, the Northern Pacific Railroad, as he was one of the founders, and to him more than to any other one man was due its organization and getting it into some practical form and system in its early days. He has therefore been closely identified with the growth and development of the North-West, and his name is indissolubly associated with the history of both State and Nation. He is a man of broad ideas, wonderful vitality and energy, unconquerable will and indefatigable perseverance, and the history of the gigantic enterprises which he has inaugurated and placed in shape for successful consummation, demonstrate the characteristics of the man.

He is of the strictest integrity, kind and courteous, of extensive reading and observation, together with keen foresight and great executive ability, he has inconspicuously impressed his individuality upon the history of the great undertakings with which he has been connected. (Life of Thomas Hawley Canfield, 1889.)

Dr. H. Campbell

ONE OF THE EARLIEST AND MOST ACTIVE PROMOTERS OF THE
NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD.

MARtha H. CANFIELD, his daughter, has taken much interest and rendered advantageous assistance in collecting material for this work, concerning the Hawley families of Arlington, Vt., and the author herein expresses his great pleasure in the cheerful and continued aid she has rendered during the progress of the work. Friendly words with cheerful research, combine to help on a workman where the difficulties often seem to be without limit. A few suggestions, a wild guess as at first it may appear, frequently lead to unimagined records or long neglected grave-stones, whereby impenetrable mysteries are definitely explained. In such a long research as for this book has been, every such cheerful helper appears now as a guiding star over the pathway, as the journey is ended and the past reviewed.

Note 142.—SARAH HAWLEY (BUCK), No. 2915. For the Buck Family, see Note 129.

Note 143.—REV. FLECHER J. HAWLEY, C. E. B. N. S., D. He entered Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., in the Sophomore Class in 1837, and graduated in July, 1840, and the next October entered the General Theological Seminary of the Protestant Episcopal Church, New York City, and graduated in June, 1843. He was ordained deacon in St. Stephen's Church, New York City, July, 1843, and priest in St. John's Church, Hartford, Ct., in 1845. His diaconate was passed at Canton, St. Lawrence Co., N. Y., and at St. Lukes Church, New York City; his priesthood from 1845 to 1859, in Santa Cruz, West Indies; from 1859 to 1862, at Trinity Church, New Orleans, Trinity Church, Chicago, Grace Church, Brooklyn Heights, N. He was Dean of the Northern Convention, and delegate to the General Convention at Philadelphia, in 1883. He lost his health in 1887, and retired to Connynead Farm in December, 1887. His post office is Lake Park, Becker Co., Minn., where he is residing in 1889.

He built a new stone church at Santa Cruz, W. I., also at Danbury, Ct., and another at Stafford Springs, and is now engaged in building a boulder stone church at Lake Park.

He was appointed first crown member of Danish Colonial Council, and received the degree of Doctor of Divinity from Norwich University, Vt., in 1854. He visited Europe for his health in 1844, travelling seven months in Spain, Italy, France, England, Ireland and Scotland.

He married 2d Nov., 1853, Marion, daughter of Samuel and Mary Ann (Hawley) Canfield, of Arlington, Vt. His two children were born in the island of Santa Cruz, W. I.: Thomas Canfield, 8th August, 1854, and Marion Elizabeth Chittenden, 1st July, 1858. The daughter was married 8th Nov., 1888, to Rev. George E. Swan, Dean of Grace Cathedral, Indianapolis, Indiana. (See portrait facing page 480.)

Note 144.—DAVID HAWLEY, JR., No. 3180, son of David Hawley, Sen., was born at Arlington, Bennington Co., Vt., April 14th, 1820. He remained on his father's farm, attending the district school, until nearly twenty years of age. He then commenced his preparation for college at Burr Seminary, Manchester, Vt., under the instruction of Rev. Joseph Wickham,

D. D., now (1888), the oldest living graduate of Yale College. After about eighteen months' study, he entered Yale College in 1841. At the end of Freshman year, sickness compelled him to leave college and he spent a year reading law with Harmon Canfield, Esq., in his native town. He returned to New Haven again the following summer, joining the Sophomore class of 1846, and graduated with that class. He was an editor of the Yale Literary Magazine, and a member of the Psi Upsilon and the Skull and Bones societies. In the spring before his graduation, he commenced studying law in the office of Orsamus Bushnell, Esq., in New York City, and was admitted to the Bar in 1848.

In May, 1850, he formed a partnership for the practice of the law in New York, with John H. Glover, who had been a classmate of his at Yale. This partnership continued about twelve years, the firm doing a successful business and having charge of some important trust estates. After the dissolution of the firm of Hawley and Glover, Mr. Hawley continued the practice of the law, mostly alone, and having become counsel for Isaac M. Singer, the sewing machine inventor, he went to Paris in 1870, at his request, to draw his will. He was in Paris when war was declared between France and Germany, and witnessed much of the commotion and excitement caused by the event on the boulevards of that city.

In 1873 he relinquished the general practice of law to take charge of Mr. Singer's large business interests in this country, representing him as Director in the Singer Manufacturing Company. Mr. Hawley was again called to England in 1875, on account of the severe illness of Mr. Singer, to advise and assist in the arrangement of his affairs, and was present at his death and funeral in July of that year. He had made Mr. Hawley one of the Trustees of his estate in England, and one of the executors of his will as to the English property, and left him sole surviving executor of his American will. The will also made him testamentary guardian and trustee of the minor children, and his time has since been devoted largely to the management of their estates, which have more than doubled while in his hands.

In 1851 Mr. Hawley married Miss Maria Louisa Whiteside of Cambridge, N. Y., who died in 1860, and in 1861 he married Miss Catharine Ann Brown, of New York. He has a son and daughter living. Mr. Hawley has always declined public office, except the positions of Water Commissioner and School Trustee in the city where he resides. During six trips abroad, he has visited most of the countries of Europe, and now makes his home at "Maplehurst," Yonkers, N. Y., on the banks of the Hudson. (See portrait and house facing page 516.)

Note 145.—ELIZA M. HAWLEY (GOODMAN), No. 3265, daughter of Ransom Hawley, was born in 1828, and married Horatio N. Goodman, of New Haven, Ct., in 1852. He was by trade a manufacturer of organs, and resided in New Haven, Ct., Cambridge, N. Y., Syracuse, N. Y., and afterwards removed to Glens Falls, N. Y., where he engaged in the manufacture of shirts for a short time. He died, but the date has not been obtained, and his remains were buried at Cambridge, Washington Co., N. Y. They left no children.

Note 145½.—MAJOR JOHN ASAHIEL HAWLEY, No. 3563, son of John Hawley, was born in 1841, married Abigail Cutter in 1873, and resided at Nutt's Corners, Province of Quebec, Canada, where he is a farmer and Justice of the Peace, Director in the M. & R. Mutual Fire Insurance Co., and Postmaster. He is Major of the 60th Battalion.

I cheerfully acknowledge my indebtedness to him for much labor, careful and persistent research in gathering a considerable number of families belonging to the Arlington, Vt., line, who were residing in Canada and in the Western States; also quite a number of names and dates of the descendants of Matthew Hawley of Huntington, Ct., resident in Nova Scotia. His collections form a considerable addition to the branch of Ephraim, who removed with his son, Capt. Jehiel, and others from New Milford, Ct., to Arlington, Vt., and some of the descendants, thence into Canada.

Note 146.—HENRY ASAHIEL HAWLEY, M. D., No. 3577, son of Asahel Hawley, read medicine with Dr. C. L. Allen, in 1860 and 1861; attended two courses of lectures, and soon after graduated at the Medical University, Ann Arbor, Mich.; was two or three years in the Medical Department of the U. S. army; had some years of practice at the West, and at Sandy Hill, N. Y. In 1879 he was residing at Carleton, Vt.

Note 147.—REV. WILLIAM HAWLEY, No. 3643, son of Jabez Hawley, was Rector of St. John's Church, Washington, D. C. A pamphlet has been obtained purporting to be a memorial sermon of this Rev. William Hawley, delivered, it is supposed, soon after his decease; but there is no mention in it of whether he had a father or mother, or whether he was ever born, nor does it even state when he died. The sermon was preached by the Rev. James Laurie, D. D., of Washington, D. C., Feb. 2, 1845.

The Rev. Wm. Hawley was Rector of St. John's Church quite a number of years. In 1832, he preached a memorial sermon of Mrs. Marcia Van Ness, of Washington, D. C., which was published, he being then rector of St. John's.

Note 148.—AGUR HAWLEY, No. 3750, son of Abel Hawley, was born in 1745, probably in New Milford, Ct., and removed with his father's family to Arlington, Vt., where he married Sarah Chipman. The history of Fair Haven, Vt., says of him:

"Agur Hawley, son of Abel, came with his brother-in-law, Silas Safford, from Arlington, in the year 1782, and made the first settlement in the village, and built the first gristmill in town in 1783. Col. Matthew Lyon and Hawley, having agreed to build the mill in partnership, Hawley to have one-third, came to Fair Haven, camping on their arrival, the first night, in their covered wagon, near the river, and built the mill either that season or the following spring, on the south side of the Lower Falls, a little below the present site of the paper mill. In building the gristmill, Mr. Hawley received bodily injuries from falling on the frozen water-wheel while attempting to cut away the ice, which caused his death about eighteen months afterward. All the widow received from his interest in the property was the use of it two days in every seven, on which days her son Asa, then fourteen years old, acted as miller, and the inhabitants generally patronized him in preference to Col. Lyon's employe.

"Widow Hawley married Derrick Carrier, one of the proprietors of the township, whose name appears in the charter, and who was said by some to have been the first miller in town. He removed with his family to Hampton Corners, in 1779-80, where he appears to have resided previously, and thence to Underhill, Vt., where he and his wife died.

"ASA HAWLEY, who was miller in town when a boy in 1785, and again in 1812 and '13, married Clara Brooks, of Hampton, Feb. 19, 1794. He resided in Pawlet in 1803, but afterward in Whitehall."

Note 149.—GIDEON HAWLEY, No. 3830, son of Josiah Hawley, of Arlington, Vt., married at Brattleboro, Vt., in 1812, and removed at same time to Worthington, Ohio. Further account of him was hoped for but not received.

Note 150.—AMOS GALE HAWLEY, No. 3859, son of Gideon Hawley, was born at Danbury, Union Co., Ohio, Aug. 18, 1814. His mother, Rebecca Gale Townsend, was a descendant of Hugh Welles, of Essex Co., England, who emigrated to America in 1835, and was among the first settlers of Connecticut. After the death of his father, Dr. Gideon Hawley, in 1821, he returned with his mother to friends in Canada, where he spent his boyhood days, receiving much of his education from his uncle, an Episcopal clergyman. At the age of eighteen he returned to Ohio, and became a clerk in a store, and after two years his employer took him into partnership, it being a small store fourteen miles from Massillon. While there he became acquainted with and married Helen M., daughter of Jabez Brown, of Haverhill, N. H. His health failing, he gave up business, rested a time, then he engaged in teaching, and after that in book-keeping; then studied and practiced Dentistry for ten years, and in 1858 was elected Secretary of the Ohio Farmers Insurance Company.

In 1862 his wife died, leaving two sons, and in 1864 he married a second time. He remained Secretary eight years, and in the office fourteen. At the close of eight years he resigned his secretaryship in favor of his son, Amos H. Hawley, who has held the position over twenty-three years. His eldest son, Townsend H. Hawley, was agent for said company twenty-five years, until his decease.

In 1872 Amos G. Hawley removed with his family to Seville, where he took charge of the Seville Times, and continued to control the same until Dec. 31, 1874. He was appointed Postmaster sometime in September, 1873, which position he held at the time of his death, which occurred at Wyoming, Iowa, June 31, 1878, while on a visit to that place.

Note 151.—BENJAMIN HAWLEY, No. 3899, son of Stephen, was born in 1728, in Stratford, settled with his father in Newbury Society, in the town of New Milford, where he was a farmer, and where he died in 1790, his will being dated in 1788, when he was very ill, but he survived over two years.

A part of his land lay adjoining the Housatonic river, on the west side, just below the "Great Falls" in that river; the locality at the time, and for many years, was called "The Fishing Place," because shad used to ascend the river to that point, where they stopped because the falls prevented their going further up the river.

On the west side of the river was a small level piece of ground, convenient for fishing, back of which the rocky bluff rose about one hundred feet high. This high bluff continuing north and northeast across the river, a gorge being cut through it by the river, is called "Falls Mountain" and forms an unusually picturesque locality. It is represented by the accompanying engraving, in which the view is up the river, northward, through the gorge; and at the left hand, just at the foot of the bill, was the piece of land rented by Benjamin Hawley for the purpose of catching fish, as seen in a lease made by him, recorded in New Milford, Ct., in which he leased this strip of land to a company, for 999 years, the 11th day of August, 1773. upon the condition that they should "deliver to him, the said Benjamin Hawley, and his heirs, every thirteenth fish they or their heirs should catch at that place." This was an income of some value, for at that time, and many years after, shad were sold by the dozen and hundred at one penny apiece.

The Ecclesiastical Society of Newbury was organized on the 25th September, 1757, and it was made a town in 1788, and in the assessment list of that part of the society contained in the town of New Milford, for 1787, the names of the Hawleys occur as follows: Liverius Hawley, Benjamin Hawley, Nehemiah Hawley, Isaac Hawley, and Isaac Hawley, Jr.

*Will of Benjamin Hawley.

New Milford, Feb. 25, 1788.

In the name of God, Amen. I, Benjamin Hawley, of New Milford, in Litchfield County, in the State of Connecticut, in New England, in America, being at present very weak and in a low state of bodily health, but of sound and perfect mind and memory, thank be given unto God therefor, and calling to mind the mortality of my body, and knowing it is appointed for all men once to die, and after death the judgement, do make and ordain this my last will and testament, that is to say:

Principally and first of all, I give and recommend my soul into the hands of Almighty God that gave it, and my body I recommend to the earth to be buried in a decent Christian Burial, at the discretion of my executors, nothing doubting but at the general resurrection I shall receive the same again by the mighty power of God; and touching such worldly estate wherewith it has pleased God to bless me with in this life, I give, devise and dispose of the same in the following manner and form:

First I give and bequeath unto my dearly beloved wife, Jeditah Hawley, two thirds of all my household furniture, and that she, the said Jeditah, shall have her choice of the whole of a red furniture; and also I give to the said Jeditah, one cow and my best riding horse and woman's saddle, and six good sheep, and four swine, and a suit of mourning apparel, and the use of one-third of my dwelling house and the use of one-half of my barn; and also after my just debts and funeral charges are paid, I give my above said wife, the use and improvement of one-third of the lands belonging to my homestead, containing as I suppose one hundred and twenty acres, during the term of her the said Jeditah's natural life.

Also I give unto my beloved daughter, Martha Nichols, wife to William Nichols, twelve shillings, money out of my estate.

Also I give unto my well-beloved son, Liverius Hawley, the whole of two certain pieces of land lying in said New Milford, in the Parish of Newbury, said land lying on Hop Brook, so called.

Also I give to my beloved daughter, Lucy Bennett, wife to John Bennett, one looking-glass, and three old sitting chairs, and I give two acres of land lying east side of Sleepy Hollow Brook, so called, the north-west side of the highway that leads towards the Great River—the above described land I give to the heirs of the aforesaid Lucy Bennett, to be set off to them by my executors.

Also I give to my beloved daughter, Hannah Dunning, wife of Edmund Dunning, five pounds lawful money, out of my estate, to be paid to her, the said Hannah, in any kind of country produce at the market price.

Also I give to my well-beloved daughter Ann Booth, wife to James Booth, sixteen pounds, lawful money, in land out of my estate.

Also I give to my well-beloved daughter Esther Hawley, forty-one pounds two shillings, lawful money, in lands out of my estate.

Also my will is that after my just debts and funeral expenses are paid, the whole of my estate that remains, to be equally divided between my two sons, David and Salmon Hawley, when they shall arrive at lawful age, and at the decease of my wife Jeditah Hawley, my will is that the whole that I have given to be during her life, shall be divided equally between my sons David and Salmon.

And I do hereby appoint and constitute my beloved wife, Jeditah Hawley and Samuel Ruggles and my son Liverius Hawley, to be sole executors and executrix of this my last will and testament, and I do hereby disallow, disannul and revoke all former wills and testaments by me made, and declare this to be my last will by me made, in witness and confirmation whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal, this twenty-eighth day of February, 1788, in the 12th year of American Independence.

BENJAMIN HAWLEY.

Signed, sealed and pronounced, and declared by the said Benjamin Hawley, to be his last will and testament, in the presence of us who are here present in the presence of each other, have hereunto subscribed our names.

SAMUEL RUGGLES,
ANDREW NORTHROP,
CLARA NORTHROP.

Note 162.—REV. STEPHEN HAWLEY, JR., A. M., No. 3901, son of Stephen, Sen., was born in 1738, and was graduated at Yale College in 1759. He was licensed to preach the gospel by the New Haven East Association in 1761, and was ordained first pastor of the Congregational Church in Bethany, New Haven county, Ct., in October, 1763, where he continued to preach until his decease in 1804.

From the published account of the Centennial Celebration at

* New Milford Probate Records, vol. 1, pages 26, 27, 28 and 29.

Bethany, Ct., October 12, 1863, the following record of the settlement of Stephen Hawley is taken; the Ecclesiastical Society having been organized in 1762:

"In June, 1763, Mr. Isaac Becker and Mr. Samuel Downs were appointed 'to apply unto Mr. Hawley,' and it was voted that the time of probation should be for the space of three months. The next August the society invited Mr. Hawley to become their pastor, offering him two hundred pounds settlement, and proposing to give him fifty-five pounds salary the first year, and then raise the amount with the tax list, year after year, until it should become seventy pounds a year, and there stop.

"Mr. Hawley's Reply to the People of Bethany.

"BETHANY, Sept. 12, 1763.

"Hoping that love and unanimity, and the grace of our common Lord Jesus Christ, may be multiplied among you, I have taken into consideration your public votes and desires that I would settle among you in the arduous employment of the gospel ministry, and also the settlement you have offered me, together with the salary for my yearly maintenance. I think that what you have done for me, in these respects, is both generous and honorable, and I return you my hearty thanks for your Christian good-will. I firmly rely upon it that you will not see me in indigent circumstances, and turn off your bowels of tenderness and relief. I depend upon it you will conduct towards me as an ambassador and servant of Christ, and yet as a treasure in an earthen vessel, and subject to many infirmities. Upon these conditions I accept your proposals, and am willing to settle among you, unless something very material happens before the ordination.

"May the God of truth guide our hearts into all truth, and by the grace of God may we so behave as that our neighbor societies may see how beautiful it is for brethren to dwell together in unity.

STEPHEN HAWLEY."

"The ordination was performed on the second Wednesday in October of that year, and tradition says in the open air, in a field near the fork of the roads, below the residence of Mrs. Bradley. The ordination sermon was delivered by that eminent divine, the Rev. Dr. Bellamy, of Bethelton, Ct., from 1 Cor. xi. 2. About one year previous Mr. Hawley had married Mary Bellamy, who was most probably a sister of Dr. Bellamy. It is probable that he studied theology with Dr. Bellamy, and he resided for a time in Stratford, where his eldest child was born.

"The first meeting-house was erected in 1769, and in January, 1770, meeting was held for the first time in the meeting-house.

"Mr. Hawley became so infirm at about the age of sixty, as to be unable to preach constantly, especially in the winter months, but he continued to officiate more or less until 1803, the year before his decease. Some now living remember him as a trembling old man with white locks. He was often led to the church and assisted into the pulpit, and sometimes was able to deliver only a part of his discourse. It is remembered that on one occasion he fell in the pulpit, and was carried home. He was tall and very spare, and his appearance made a deep impression on the young.

"He was very useful to his people during his ministry, and was sincerely beloved by his flock, who in his visitations, as well as ministrations in the sanctuary, beheld his face as it had been the face of an angel, for he was conversant among them with gravity, prudence, modesty, humility, candor, wisdom and benevolence.

"Mr. Hawley's first wife was Mary Bellamy of Hamden. She had three children. The second wife was Mehetable, daughter of Dea. Joel Hotchkiss. She removed to New Haven in 1806 with her three children, and resided there until her death in 1827. Two of her sons were graduated at Yale College.

"Two of Mr. Hawley's New Year Sermons were printed—those of 1769 and 1771. They give the reader a most favorable impression in regard to the activity of his intellect, and his solemnity and earnestness as a preacher. They are certainly the productions of a man above mediocrity. They show that he was himself deeply serious, and that he possessed uncommon ability to set forth his thoughts in an impressive manner. There is remarkable vividness of style, and even something of imaginative brilliancy, but all is deeply solemn. The statements of evangelical truth are clear and scriptural; and the appeals to his hearers are forcible and affecting."

Note 154.—DAVID HAWLEY, No. 39204, son of Benjamin Hawley of New Milford, Ct., married 1st, Joanna Jackson. She died and he married Betsey Jessup, who was the widow of John Feen. According to several deeds recorded in New Milford, Ct., David Hawley was "of Canaan, Litchfield Co., Ct.," January 25, 1802; then "of New Milford," May 22, 1826, previous to which he had married his second wife; and in April, 1827, he and his wife, being "of Delaware County, N. Y.," sold land in New Milford to Varensselaer Feen.

In 1803 Salmon Hawley, brother of David, was living in Canaan, Ct., and sold land in New Milford which fell to him from his father Benjamin Hawley.

ALONZO HAWLEY, No. 3936, son of David, above, was a teacher, farmer and merchant, residing in Franklin, Delaware Co., N. Y. He married Betsey Maria Green, who died in New Milford, Pa., Feb. 26, 1879, aged 82 years.

The following items are gathered from a newspaper notice of her at her decease:

"Mrs. Hawley was the last of a large family of children, the most of whom lived to a good old age. Her father, Timothy Green, was a descendant of General Nathaniel Green, of the Revolutionary War. For more than forty years of her life she had been an invalid, the result, in part, of the hardships endured in her younger days, when with her husband she went into the woods to contend with the privations and difficulties incident to a pioneer life.

"She was a woman of more than ordinary ability, possessing a large and active brain, and throughout her whole life she took a keen interest in the affairs of the world. She was a firm believer of the truths of Christianity, having been a consistent member of the Baptist Church from her girlhood. Fortunate indeed are the children who have before them the life and example, and the love of such a mother."

Note 154½.—JOEL EDWIN HAWLEY, No. 4011, son of Rev. Stephen Hawley, A. M., died in July or August, 1859. The following notice of him is taken from a Geneva, N. Y., newspaper:

"We have been pained in noticing in the last Ithaca Journal and Advertiser, the decease of Dr. J. E. Hawley, then residing in that village. Dr. Hawley was born in Bethany, Ct., and was 57 years of age at the time of his death. He was graduated at Yale College, in 1829, in the Medical Department, and afterwards entered the military school at West Point. After this he studied medicine under Dr. Reed, of Charlotte County, Va., and Prof. Ives, of New Haven, Ct., and after further attendance on lectures in the Medical Department of Yale College he was graduated with great honor.

"He was chosen life member of the New York Medical Society; was also appointed Curator of the University of Buffalo, and elected a member of the Medical Faculty. He was delegate to the meetings of the American Medical Association held at Boston in 1849, and in St. Louis in 1854.

"Dr. Hawley for a term held the chair of Professor of Surgery in the Medical College of Geneva, N. Y., where his brother Isaac A. Hawley and family resided.

"His last illness was protracted a little over three months, and attributed to that most painful disease, erysipelas. Eulogy of his character is in vain. Unusually gentlemanly in his manners, courteous and affable, and a heart overrunning with warmth of feeling, he was universally respected and beloved by all who knew him."

Note 155.—GLOVER HAWLEY, No. 4146, son of Joseph Hawley, was born at Hawleyville, in Newtown, Ct., in 1803, and died there Sept. 22, 1881. He was a farmer with unusual genius for constructing farming implements. In 1849 he went to California by way of Cape Horn, for gold, and returned at the end of about two years, across the Isthmus, having somewhat improved his fortune.

He devoted considerable time and effort to collecting the history of the Hawley family; and a considerably large family gathering was held at Hawleyville, when measures were adopted and money raised to send an agent to England to secure a large estate which was supposed to be there, waiting to be claimed by descendants in America, but nothing of the kind was obtained or found. An invitation to that meeting was extended to the writer and declined, but he takes pleasure in acknowledging his obligations to Glover Hawley and his daughter Martha C., for many favors, growing out of their interest in the genealogy of the family and the consequent copying of records in several towns, the use of which was cheerfully granted in the preparation of this RECORD.

Note 155½.—HON. JOHN B. HAWLEY, No. 4148, son of William C. Hawley, was born in 1830; married Mary F., daughter of Frederick W. Symonds; was a lawyer and resided at Rock Island, Ill. A local newspaper of that place has the following statements made in 1877:

"John B. Hawley, of Rock Island, Illinois, just appointed Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, vice Governor McCormick resigned, was born in Fairfield Co., Ct., in 1831. He was a Colonel in the Union army, and severely wounded at Fort Donelson. He served three terms in Congress—from 1869 to 1875, and the last two years was chairman of the committee on claims. He also served on the military committee, and the committee on public lands. He was considered especially well informed as to public lands and claims, and his zeal, legal knowledge, integrity and power of clear statement, gave him an excellent standing. He was decidedly a growing member, when the shrieks of locality brought about the nomination of some other Republican."

Note 156½.—NATHANIEL HAWLEY, JR., No. 4258, son of Nathaniel, Sen., was born in Stratford, Ct., in 1732, and it is said married Mary DeForest, but who her parents were has not been ascertained. He succeeded his father in the possession of the old homestead in Stratford, Ct., at the four corners where the pump is on Main street; but when and where he died is not known. His daughter Eunice Hawley, who married William Walker, remained in possession of the old homestead some years, when they sold it to a Mr. Jackson. They lived in a house built over the original cellar, made by Joseph Hawley in the first. (See engravings, page 428.)

The little house next south of the old homestead, on the west side of Main street, remained much later in possession of the Hawley family; Nancy, the daughter of Jesiah Hawley, being the last Hawley resident in it.

In the table work of this book, Nathaniel Jr.'s daughters Tabitha and Eunice are erroneously arranged; they should be thus:

- 4275 III. EUNICE, bapt. 1768, May 30; m. 14 Dec., 1784, Wm. Walker.
- 4276 IV. TABITHA, bapt. 1770, May 6.

HOUSE BUILT BY THOMAS HAWLEY AT STEPNEY, CT., IN 1755.

Note 157.—THOMAS HAWLEY, No. 4259, son of Nathaniel Hawley, was born in 1734, in Stratford, Ct., on the old homestead of his grandfather, Joseph the first, and settled in what was the North Stratford Society, now the town of Monroe, at a place called Stepney, the railroad station being about one and a half miles from his farm. He married in 1760, Sarah, daughter of Thomas Olecott of Stratford, who was of the Hartford, Ct., family of that name.

Thomas Hawley was a farmer; settled this farm and built the house (still standing), a picture of which is herewith given, in 1755, when he was twenty-one years of age. The photograph of this house was taken in 1873, and is so accurate that the persons were easily distinguished by those acquainted with them. "The man in his shirt-sleeves is Plumb Hawley, whose house is hid by the barn behind him; the lady nearest him is Mrs. Susan Osborn, his sister; the next lady is her daughter, Miss Eliza Osborn, and the one inside the fence is another daughter, Miss Amelia Osborn. Hinman Hawley is seated in the door of the house. When the estate was divided among the heirs of Thomas Hawley, the homestead was inherited by the youngest son, David Hawley, and when his estate was settled the house and part of the homestead came to Hinman Hawley and his sister, Mrs. Susan Osborn, who are now (1887) living in it. The house faces and is about two hundred feet back from a road that enters at a right angle into the road that passes at the side of the house. The three shell-bark hickory trees seen at the left and back of the house are said to have been left when the land was first cleared, and the nuts are of excellent quality. The well, with its old-fashioned sloop, is behind and hid by the house. The old stone fireplace in the kitchen is large enough for a log eight or ten feet long, and the chimney occupies the space of a good-sized room in the center of the building. The oven was built within the chimney, its mouth opening into the kitchen fire-place.*

At the time of Thomas Hawley's death in 1817, his real estate, consisting of 149 acres of land, the house valued at $160, slave house $10, and barn $130, was inventoried at $6,050. He willed to his youngest son, David, the homestead, containing about 65 acres, and David bought of the other heirs eighteen acres.

Note 158.—ISAAC HAWLEY, (No. 4280), son of Thomas Hawley, was born in Monroe, Ct., in 1764; married in 1791, Elizabeth McIntyre, from Argyleshire, Scotland, and settled as a merchant tailor in Fayetteville, N. C. He died in 1808, aged 44 years. His father's house is represented at the head of Note 157.

In 1795 he made a visit to his native town, and kept a journal while on the tour, which, for its curious nature and the insight it gives into the habits and customs of the people mentioned in it, is here printed:

"A Journal from Fayetteville, N. C., to Huntington, Ct., by Isaac Hawley, 1795.

"Wednesday, July 16, set out from Fayette in a boat for Wilmington, Afl. Bower, Capt., passengers, P. Pelham and a Mrs. Williams. Came the first day 24 miles. It rained the greatest part of the day. Our evening was small and we got very wet. The cabin was small and smelt so offensive we could not stay there during the day, but at night we were obliged to, which brought on seasickness.

"Saturday night arrived at the Drumtree; went on shore in the canoe at Negro-head Point; went to town in the ferry-boat about 8 o'clock. Sunday, 19, looked about for a vessel. Monday, 20, the same business. Tuesday, 21, engaged passage in the Kanlier, Capt., master, a schooner of 110 tons; putting chest and stores aboard, she hauled off about 2 o'clock; went to the flats, waited there for a lighter-load of lumber. Wednesday, 22, very warm, but at 4 in the afternoon shipped aboard of a boat, went down the river to the schooner; got aboard of her about ten. Thursday, 23. In the morning unloaded the lighter before breakfast; at nine got under way, ran down four miles, came to Windhead at 11 o'clock; got under way and went down to Fashions-hole and came to it at seven. In the morning, 24, went on shore with the Captain and Mr. C.; bathed in the surf, went to Mr. Lockwood's at 11. Came off on board at 12, got under way, if after crossed the bar with a fine breeze at S. W. 24, at 12, by observation found we were near Hatteras Shoals—a small wind at S. W., which continued till the 26, then a calm after that wind at No. A squall came, wind haul'd round to S. W. Caught a young shark in the of which I made part of my breakfast.

"Monday, 27, at 12, by observation we were in latitude 35 deg. 42 min., with a fresh wind S. W. At night there appeared a very black cloud rising in the N. W., which ended in a severe thunder squall, which gave us some reason to be terrified, and it lasted until ten at night. At the next morning I heard a cry that a ship was close aboard of us, standing right ahwt us, and it was with great difficulty that we escaped her. She came within two feet of carrying away our stern. We were all very much terrified and had great reason to return thanks to our great Preserver for our deliverance.

"In the morning of the 28, wind at N. W., could not lay our course. At 12, by observation we were in latitude 38 deg. 47 min., and 19 fathoms of water; calm from 8 in the morning till 4 next evening. I was very sick all day. Wednesday, 20, wind N. E. stood N. W., with tolerable breeze. At 12, by observation was latitude 39 deg. 20 min. (or 39 deg. 20 min.), and wind sheared N. W. E. Thursday, 21, in the morning, came in sight of the Jersey shore, and a calm ensued which lasted almost all day, passengers all very impatient and the schooner tugging almost her keel out. Friday, 22, in the morning a line breeze at South, at 11 o'clock came to anchor at Sandy Hook, to wait for flood-tide, all impatient to get in. A calm ensued and continued till Saturday, 23, end of August. At 11 o'clock the impatience of the passengers was intolerable. However, at six o'clock in the evening, all in high spirits to think we were so nigh New York, and at half after seven arrived at New York, came to anchor in the night. I went on shore and got lobsters and pates for supper. Stayed on board that stream, went on shore next morning and found some old acquaintances, viz., the family of Mr. Call and Mr. Sinekin; also engaged a passage to Newfield [Bridgeport] engaged lodgings at Mrs. McLen's for a dollar a day.

Monday, 3, a terrible storm so that I could hardly go outdoors. Tuesday, 4, spent in getting some few things that I wanted. Wednesday, 5, in the morning got ready to sail, put away things (on board), went up to get breakfast and when I got down to the wharf the vessel had sailed; had two sailors to show me on the deep, and gave them quarter of a dollar. Had the headache very bad in consequence of drinking too much porter the night before; had a small breeze with the tide, which took us through Hellgate about 11 o'clock, where we found it very rough indeed, so much that we were all very much terrified; however, we got through safe, the wind still very light. By sunset we got off against North-west Island, and arrived at Newfield at two o'clock on Thursday morning. About 7 o'clock I was taken with a very severe pain in my bowels, which continued till I got on shore; then went to Mr. Hieman's, called him up and got some burnt brandy and hot flannel wet with brandy and camphor and applied to the spot within and without, went to bed and rested tolerably well. Next morning got a horse and set out for my father's, where I arrived about 12 o'clock, the weather exceedingly hot, I thought almost equal to No. Carolina.

Friday, 7. Felt not very well, the complaint still continuing in my bowels. In the afternoon went to see Squire Silliman. Saturday, 8. Still troubled; went to Cutler's farm and saw some old acquaintance; at night had a very bad turn of the colic; sent for a Doctor, took physic and had a very uneasy night. Sunday, 9th, lay in bed till 12 o'clock, got some water and got up. Continued better, and at night Mr. Drew Hall came to see us, whom I had not seen for twenty years, he stayed all night. On Monday, 10th, felt unwell, with some fever; the morning went to see sister Ann's at 14, took a nap on her bed and came home to dinner. Tuesday, 11th, unwell. Wednesday, 12th, was somewhat altered. Thursday, 13th, better, but not well. Friday, 14, almost well. Saturday, 15, well, went in the afternoon to a good spring and drank plentifully of the water, with my little brother David.

Tuesday, 18th, lay in bed late, got up breakfast and set off for Ononago; got there at ten, found my cousins Phineas and Ruth Hawley [244] and Mrs. Tomlinson's. They seemed exceedingly glad to see me and urged me to stay all day; however, I left them at 12 and promised to see them again soon; returned to walk at 3 1/2 after one, set dinner and went to a launching; called on my cousin Eunice Walker, who went with me. The vessel was about 140 tons, went off soon after we got there, (though not without some difficulty), then returned with uncle Josiah Hawley to his house; spent the afternoon there at sunset went to uncle Olicott's, staid till after 8, then went to Mr. Walker's; agreeable to panicle, found a large collection of young people assembled for a dance, but the master of ceremonies not there. At nine appeared Titus with his apparatus, the fiddle soon began to sound, which made the room resound, so I took my hat and walked up town and went to bed.

Wednesday, 19th, lay abed late as usual, eat breakfast, wrote a letter to No. Carolina, lent in the postoffice; took a walk with uncle T. O., drank plenty of his excellent cider, and at 1/2 after 11 set out for my father's. At 6 got to Mr. E. Heed's; eat dinner with him, and at 2 set off again; called at Mr. David Samner's, where I spent the afternoon with him and a number of my old acquaintances very agreeably, then set off home by way of Cutler's farm. Called at Mr. Nathaniel Sherman's, staid till 8; thence to Capt. P. Sherman's, where I found a genteel company of young people dancing again; staid till ten, danced a little, drank milk-punch and wine and set off for home in the rain, very dark; got home; all in bed; turned out my horse and went to bed also. Thursday, 20th, unwell, a small fever; staid at home that day of course. Friday, 21st, better; made a visit for myself. Saturday, 22d, at home till afternoon, when I went to see Mr. Philo Sherman and spent the afternoon with him; returned at 8 at night.

Sunday, 23d, went to hear Mr. Rexford preach, saw many old friends. He invited me home with him to dine. He was not at home; set off for Mr. Hawley's again, was stopped by a shower of rain and obliged to turn into Capt. Clark's for shelter, not thinking of being known, but the old gentleman found me out, and was so glad to see me that I could not get away for two hours; this particular attention was paid me on account of my brother Thomas having once lived there, who a short time after died with me in No. Carolina; from thence came to Cutler's farm, and spent the afternoon at Mr. Nathan Hubbard's, thence home.

Tuesday, September 1st. After breakfast went to Newfield in company with Mr. Timothy Curtis, dined at Mr. Isaac Hieman's, thence to Stratford, to the post-office after a letter, but to my great mortification found none there for me. My conjectures were various as to the reasons; thence homeward as far as Mr. Eli Nichols', staid all night there; spent the evening at Mr. Elijah Hawley's with several young ladies and gentlemen. Wednesday, Sept. 2d, rising in the morning, could not get home till near twelve; at nine till evening, went to Cutler's farm, returned and went to my sister's with Philo Sherman. Thursday, 3d. In the morning went to Cutler's farm to see Mr. Gideon Hawley [23] about going up country. Then to Ballston Springs by sunset, drank plentifully of the water—paid 6¢, and went to Mr. Bennett's, where I staid that night.

Wednesday, 23, went into the woods to work at making crossways, worked till sunset, was very tired, then had to go three miles home, had no spirits all day and was quite fatigued. Got home at 8, cat and drank so hearty that I could not sleep all night. Thursday, 24th, helped Mr. Bennett in the woods about his new house, was not so fatigued as before. Friday, 25. A getting rafter in the woods, but favored myself a good deal that day. Mrs. Redfield and Mrs. Wares. Lansingburg is a very well built town of about 300 large brick houses; thence to Troy, a town of about the same number of buildings, though quite inferior for elegance; thence 22 miles, to G. Miller's tavern, travelled all day alone.

At night went to a Quaker meeting and heard a woman chatter, which I was very well pleased with. Monday, Oct. 5th, set off from the city of Hudson at 8, rode 17 miles, to Pence's tavern, there fell in with three gentlemen from Albany formerly who were coming my way thirty miles, one of which was Genl. Gorham, formerly from New London. He claimed country with me and took me to his house, there I staid all night and fared well.

6 Tuesday, 6th, 1/2 after 8 set off for New Milford, got out of my road twice so that I got but 9 miles by 1 o'clock, so that I got no further than Boardman's that night, about 25 miles, there put up. Wednesday, 7, got to my father's at 1 o'clock. They were all overjoyed to see me, as they were afraid I was sick somewhere on the way by my staying so much longer than I expected. I found my cousins Phebe and Ruth Hawley there waiting to see me. Thursday, 8th, rained all day. I scarcely stirred out of the house. Spent the time very agreeably with the girls in singing, reading, &c. Friday, 9th, after dinner set out with my cousins for Stratford, slept to get chestnuts several times on the way, and got down before sunset. Staid all day at uncle Josiah Hawley's with the girls, sometimes reading and sometimes controversy how to get to Carolina. Ruth agreed to come with me if I would go by the way of Newberh.

10 Sunday, 11th, rainy in the morning, went up to uncle Olcott's and went to meeting with him in the forenoon, in the afternoon went to church to hear Mr. Baldwin, who I thought made a mock of religion, heard the organ, which I disliked as much as the service, the whole I thought only a burlesque on religion.

11 Monday, 12. Fine, clear weather, got up early, eat breakfast and wrote the above, then went to writing letters, wrote 3 and put them in the office, then went down town to see my friends, returned to uncle Olcott's that night. After dinner intended to return to my father's, but was persuaded by my cousins Phebe and Ruth, to stay and go to meeting—a lecture at an association. Got a letter that day from the Southard which gave me great satisfaction, though it made me very uneasy to get home to my family. Stayed with uncle J. H. that night.

12 Wednesday, 14th. In the morning went to uncle Olcott's to breakfast, saw my aunt Benson, whom I had not seen for many years. After dinner set off with uncle J. O. for Steeple, by the way of Newfield; got home just at dark, had the toothache; went to bed early, but could not sleep till I had got a hot stone to my face.

13 Thursday, 15th, rained and blew all day like a hurricane, went to see sister Anne, staid till 11, came home. After the rain, just at night, went under the walnut trees and picked up walnuts for my little dear Vidy. Well in the evening, went in my journal, sang, talked, &c. Friday, 16th. Got up early, went out after nuts till after breakfast time, then took another tramp through the woods after walnuts till 12; got about 10 quarts and returned very tired, eat dinner and laid down and took a nap; got up at 3, felt sore, concluded I had taken some cold, spent that evening at my sister Anne's. Saturday, 17th. In the forenoon went to Cutler's farm to Mr. Philo Sherman's, returned to dinner, spent the afternoon at home.

18 Sunday, 18th, went to New Stratford to meeting, the weather disagreeably cold; at noon went to Mr. Cyrus Hawley's, found Mrs. Hawley very agreeable and thought his family resembled my own very much; spent that evening at my sister Anne's and Dr. E. Rowley's, where there was a collection of young people. Monday, 19th, went after breakfast with my brother Philo and threshed out a bushel and 1/2 of rye for my sister Anne; spent that afternoon at my sister Ann's with my mother and Mrs. Hunt; at night walked home with Mrs. H., staid some time and returned, then read till ten and went to bed.

19 Tuesday, 20th. After breakfast went into the field where our people were picking corn, helped them till noon. After dinner went with my mother visiting to Mr. Judson Curtis's, staid till dark and returned, read until 9 and went to bed.

20 Wednesday, 21st, a fine, clear and cool morning. Got up before the sun, went to Newfield in hopes to get a passage home, but could not, then returned as far as Mr. Eli Nichol's by 3 o'clock; spent the afternoon there; in the evening went with Mrs. N. and Miss H. Jackson to Mrs. J. Curtis's, found a large collection of young people there and all went to Mr. Samuel French's and danced till 11; then went back to Mr. N.'s, cat a hasty supper and went home and went to bed.

Lay in bed late, spent the forenoon at home reading, &c. 22d afternoon, went to my sister Anne's, staid till almost night and parcel and cat up all the evening with the family and went to bed with my brother John. Friday, 23d, after breakfast brought up my horse and set off to look up a passage, wrote a letter to the Southard, went to Newfield, made out nothing, then to Stratford, staid at uncle J. Hawley's that night. Saturday, 24th. After breakfast went in pursuit of a passage but found none, eat dinner at uncle Olcott's, went again and heard of Capt. Booth's lone, could not see him till just sunset, then engaged a passage to Ocranok for 10 dollars, returned to uncle J. H.'s, finished writing my letter that I began the day before, put it into the office and set off for home; arrived at my father's about 8 at night.

22 Sunday, 25th, went to the Baptist meeting, where there were three baptized, all elderly women, one of which was my honored mother. The ceremony was performed with great decency, and as I thought was a very solemn thing; it affected me much to see my aged mother go through such a scene with such a cheerful countenance. She smiled and thanked God that she had been permitted to follow the example of the Savior. Spent that evening at my sister's and Dr. Hawley's.

23 Monday, 26th. Took my leave of all my friends at 2 o'clock, set off for Newfield, went from there to Stratford, staid at uncle J. Hawley's that night. Tuesday, 27th, at sunrise, set off with my cousin P. Hawley for Newfield where our vessel lay. Shipped all things on board and hoisted off from the wharf at 11 o'clock, small wind and not very fair, the weather very pleasant. Made sail, went out of the harbor with the tide, wind we had none. Staid in the sound till sunset, when the wind sprang up at W. right ahead, we put about and ran in again, staid that night on board in suspense.

24 Wednesday, 28th. The morning calm and pleasant. At 8 the wind came from the west, which was ahead again, so we staid where we were all day and night and no prospect of going out, our impatience was great.

25 Thursday, 29th. Nothing could equal my impatience to get away, but what little wind there was blew directly the wrong way, the morning warm and smoky. I took a walk with my cousin P. Hawley by the new mill to Mr. Beech's after breakfast, got back before dinner, eat that and went to sleep for a while waiting for a fair wind, but no wind that day.

26 Friday, 30th. Wind still ahead and my patience quite exhausted. Quilt the vessel and went with P. H. to Stratford, staid at uncle J. H.'s that night. Sunday, 31st. At 11 walked to Newfield alone, P. H. had gone in a carriage before the day cloudy and promised a shift of wind, but did not come till too late to get out, slept on board that night, the wind blew a storm at N. W.

1 Sunday, Nov. 1st, staid at N. W., all passengers on board, viz. G. Wells, Mr. Felson, Mr. Lewis, P. H. and self. About 8 set off for New York; did not get to the narrows till 12 at night, became calm again. Monday, 2d, got under way at 4 and got down to Hellgate at 10, the wind being light could not go through that tide, the tide being very low ran the vessel on a rock and staid till next tide—went on shore, got some very good oysters, cut my fingers all to pieces, went on board, washed and eat them. At 1 went through and arrived at N. Y. at sunset, hauled alongside a wharf and staid that night.

" Tuesday, 3d. Rose early, eat breakfast in the M.; called on some old acquaintances and was agreeably disappointed in finding them all well. Then called on Mr. Eling and requested him to speak in my favor, where I took up goods for the first time to the amount of £165 ros. 10/6d, which I left in a box together with my chest to be sent by a ship of Mr. Blakey's to Wilmington, N. C., then took a walk with Mr. Mills after lace, got it by her assistance very low; in the evening, at her request, called and took tea with her, wrote two letters at her house and put them in the office and returned to my room.

" Wednesday, 4th. Early, rose up and set sail for N. C. with a light breeze at W, which increased gradually so that we passed the lighthouse at 2 p. m., with a pretty breeze; all felt in good spirits. Then sailed that day and night a south course with a tolerable breeze at W.

" Thursday, Nov. 5th, wind still at W., blew pretty fresh, raised a considerable sea; our vessel being short and running in the trough of the sea, she rolled and tumbled at such a rate that we were all sick to death almost all that day.

" Friday, Nov. 6th, wind died away and became a calm, the sea became smooth so that we all found our appetites for breakfast, after which a small wind blew from the S. E., made sail and got along slowly, the weather very warm; that day had codfish for dinner, eat too much, unwell all night.

" Saturday, 7th, have wind at S. W., right ahead, stood in very fast land, at 1 made Cape Henlopen; stood in N. W. and ran for it, sea rough, something sick. Before sunset marked for 3/4 gal. cherry and drank wine and sweethearts, seas smooth, all began to feel well; perhaps we owed something of this to the cherry. At sunset we were close under the head, but no having anybody on board that knew how to go in the night, got about and went to sea. The wind being south, had a very disagreeable night.

" Sunday, 8th. At 3 in the morning got about and stood in again, wind still very fresh at S. W., at 5 made the land and at 2 p. m. we came to anchor close under the lighthouse at Cape Henlopen; the wind increased till it became a gale and we found ourselves in a very disagreeable situation at sunset, however, we lay-rolling and tumbling all that night, not without many fears and apprehensions of going on to the beach before morning.

" Monday, 9th. Wind still blowing like a hurricane, we found we must heave up our anchor and go to sea or on the beach. At 9 all hands turned out to heave up anchor, after heaving awhile the cable parted and away we went, at the same time the wind abating and the tide setting out very strong it was with the greatest difficulty we could keep off a shoal where there was but six feet of water, so that within a few moments we were seemingly in the greatest danger from having too much wind, also for the want of a little wind, but through mercy we escaped and stood to the E. till 5 o'clock, when a cloud rose in the N. W., from which blew a most violent gale for about 6 hours, so that we were obliged to stand before it with very little sail, but fortunately it was on our way, though we none of us wished to be shoved along so fast. It abated about 12 and did us no damage except keeping us from sleep till very fresh all night and we got along finely, which was pleasing.

" Tuesday, 10th Nov. Wind still at N. W., a fine breeze; at 12, by observation we were in Lat. 36 deg. 31 min., breeze continued, but hailed a little west, all in hopes of getting into Oronoke the next day, but to our sorrow the wind failed at 6 and we made no way that night.

" Wednesday, 11th Nov., 1795. All calm in the morning, which continued till 11, meantime we pitched coppers for cherry bounce and ginger beer. Afternoon, stood in for land, which we supposed to be Curlew, till sunset, all in a high glee; sung, danced, &c., till night, then put about with wind in southwest and stood out again, all sociable and in good spirits.

" Thursday, 12th Nov. At 1 in the morning wind shifted to No. E., we stood S. and by sunrise we made land, which we found to be Roanoke Island, 54 miles above Cape Hatteras. We ran S. with a fine breeze till 12, when we were off against the Cape. At 1 hoove around the point and after a pilot came on board, and came to anchor under the castle, where we lay that night.

" Friday, 13th Nov. Quite at a loss to know how to get to Newbern, our vessel was bound for Washington and the wind fair. I could see no other chance but to hire a pilot boat and set off that way. Then I found a Mr. Thos. Wade, who was willing to carry us up for 8 dollars. We shipped on board an open boat and set sail at 9, we sailed till 7 in the evening, when we arrived at South river, at Mr. Wade's house, 34 miles from the castle, then we had a fine supper and went to bed.

" Saturday, Nov. 14th. After having the toothache all night and lying awake most of the time, got up early, had a fine breakfast of coffee, &c., &c., took to our boat again for Newbern, 40 miles, where we arrived at 3 o'clock safe. Went to William Hawley's, there stayed all night, found an old acquaintance, viz. Mr. Alwin Adams, spent the evening with cards, some ladies were there.

" Sunday, 15th, got up very early to look for a horse to get home, found none, went to church, before noon took a walk with Mr. Adams, after dinner in the evening anchor and went to bed.

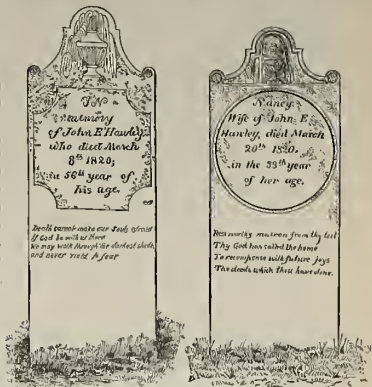

" Monday, 16th Nov. A stormy morning till 9, cleared away. I got a horse and boy and set out for Fayetteville at 11. We walked and rode by turns and arrived at Shiner, 20 miles, by 8, very tired indeed, went to bed early.

" Tuesday, 17th Nov. Started early, got 6 miles to Capt. Johnson's to breakfast, hired another horse of him and both rode all day and arrived at General Hinnoth's by 8 at night, 42 miles, very sore and tired.

" Wednesday, 18th Nov. Sent the boy back with both horses early, staid to breakfast and the General was kind enough lend me a horse to ride home. I got no farther than Fisher's, 22 miles, that night.

" Thursday, 19th Nov. Started early and got home at 1 o'clock, very sore and fatigued. So ends this journal. I. H. H."

In the year 1869 he received from Union College the degree of Master of Arts.*

Note 162.—SAMUEL THOMAS HAWLEY, No. 4380, son of Thomas, was born in 1820, and died "of consumption," 20 Jan., 1853, aged 33 years. The following is a sketch published in a newspaper of Coshocton, O., upon the announcement of his death: "Mr. S. T. Hawley resided several years among us, and his connection with the mercantile business made him widely known to this community, by whom he was highly esteemed as an honorable tradesman, a high-minded man, and an amiable citizen. He was an exemplary member of the Order of Free and Accepted Masons; and his funeral services were performed in accordance with the ceremonies of that Order on Saturday, the 22d. Seldom has so large a concourse of people been assembled in this place on a similar occasion."

"In the death of Mr. Hawley our community has sustained the loss of one of its best citizens, the Masonic Order has parted with a worthy brother, an amiable wife is bereft of an affectionate husband, and two interesting children are left to mourn the departure of a kind and indulgent father."

Note 164.—EDWIN HENRY HAWLEY, No. 4466, son of Henry G. Hawley, was born in Broadalbin, N. Y., attended a select school some years, and one term at an academy at Kingsborough, in his native county.

In 1862 he enlisted at Kalamazoo, Mich., and was mustered in as a Deputy Sergeant of Co. I, Fifth Michigan Cavalry, and arrived at Washington, D. C., about Christmas of that year. After being in the cavalry service eighteen months, he was transferred to the U. S. Signal Corps, as a first-class private, in the winter of 1863 and 4, and was made a Sergeant in that service. From that time until the close of the war, he served as a constructive or Engineer Sergeant, building and fitting Signal Stations. During all this time he was never in a hospital, never under arrest or in the guard-house, never wounded or even had a mark on his clothing; never flinched or held back under fire, but was often where, as the boy said, he "didn't hanker to go any further."

* See Bowen Family, in "Hughes and Allied Families," 215.

After the war he returned to Michigan a time, then went to Connecticut and engaged in the manufacture of an air pistol, in which he did well until the financial disaster in 1873. He was then employed by a Curator in the Peabody Museum of Yale College, where he remained two years and a half, and in that time became so familiar with Natural History that, being recommended by Prof. Baird, he obtained a position in that line, in 1881, in the National Museum at Washington, D. C., where he still remains. He has taken much interest in this Record, and contributed several items of history.

Note 165.—ELIZABETH HAWLEY (WAKEMAN), No. 4623, was the daughter of Ebenezer Hawley and his wife, Hester Ward, and was born in 1679. She married Joseph Wakeman, son of the Rev. Samuel Wakeman, pastor at Fairfield, Ct., and they had nine children, three of whom married into the Burr family; and after the death of Mr. Wakeman she married Col. John Burr, one of the most prominent men in the township, and also well known throughout the State.*

Of the children of the above Wakeman family, Catherine married Capt. John Burr, son of Col. John, whom the mother married, and the daughter Mary married William Burr, brother of Capt. John, and the daughter Elizabeth married Capt. Samuel Burr, second cousin of Capt. John Burr. These were all among the first families in social position in Fairfield, Ct. Capt. John Burr was second cousin to the Rev. Aaron Burr, who was the father of Col. Aaron Burr, Vice-President of the United States from 1801 to 1805. (For the mother of Elizabeth Hawley, see Note 10.)

* The following deed, taken from the town records of Fairfield, Ct., shows that Elizabeth, daughter of Ebenezer Hawley, married Joseph Wakeman:

"Know all men by these presents that we, Joseph Wakeman of Fairfield, in the Colony of Connecticut, and Elizabeth Wakeman, husband and wife, for the natural love and affection we have to our loving son Ebenezer Wakeman of said Fairfield, and for his more comfortable settlement, have given, granted, made over and confirmed, and by these presents so freely, clearly and absolutely give, grant, make over and confirm unto our said son, Ebenezer Wakeman, and to his heirs and assigns forever, sundry parcels of upland meadow lying in the township of Stratford, in the Colony aforesaid, being the whole of all the upland, improved and unimproved, of what kind or nature soever, in said Stratford, that descended to said Elizabeth as heir to Ebenezer Hawley, formerly of said Stratford, deceased, or that have fallen or been set out to her, said Elizabeth since the decease of her said father in any division or divisions made by the said town of Stratford, together with all the right in the commongage and undivided land in said Stratford that belongs to her, said Elizabeth, as heir to her father, Ebenezer Hawley, excepting only two small parcels of upland lately sold: all of which upland and meadow, with said right in commongage and undivided land as fully, particularly and expressly set forth and described in the records of land in said Stratford, reference thereto being had, in have and to hold unto him, the said Ebenezer Wakeman, and to his heirs and assigns forever, &c., &c.

In witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands and seals this 26 day of June, Anno Domini 1724.

The following deed shows that the widow Elizabeth Wakeman married Col. John Burr:

Note 166.—GIDEON HAWLEY, No. 4651, son of Ephraim Hawley, was born in Stratford, in 1687, and settled at Pequonnock, now Bridgeport, Ct., where he lived probably until his decease in 1731. But little is known of him, except that he reared an interesting family of six children who were no dishonor to their parental home, and to each of whom he left an honorable estate, which was distributed April 23, 1734, as follows: To James, "the eldest," £775; Zachariah, "2d son," £508 10; Gideon, "the youngest son," £508 10; Sarah, "eldest daughter," £58 13 4; Abiah, "2d daughter," £58 13 4; Ann, "youngest daughter," £58 13 4.

Note 167.—EPHRAIM HAWLEY, JR., No. 4654, son of Ephraim Hawley, Sen., was born in Stratford, now Trumbull, Ct., in 1711, and married Sarah, daughter of Samuel Watkins, of Stratford, Ct. They had nine children, but his sons Frederick, William and Ephraim, Jr., all died before he did, and hence are not mentioned in his will, but all of his other children are. It is surprising that the record of this family is so meager, but all is printed that was obtained by careful and continued inquiry.

Sarah married Capt. David Hawley (see Note 176), and her children all left Bridgeport, and possibly the children of all the others did the same.

The Will of Ephraim Hawley, Jr.

In the name of God, Amen.

I Ephraim Hawley of Fairfield in the county of Fairfield being weak and low and on a bed of sickness and sensible of my frailty and mortality, but by the goodness of God being of sound mind and memory, do make this my last will and testament as follows: that is to say,

Imp. I do hereby order my just debts and funeral expenses to be paid by my executors hereinafter named, and the remainder of my estate I give and dispose of as follows, that is to say:

Item. I give and devise unto my daughter Elizabeth the wife of Nehemiah Boddington and to her heirs and assigns forever one acre of land in the form near my dwelling house, in said Fairfield, which belongs to me and my son Will as tenants in common.

Item. I give and devise unto my daughter Isabel Hawley and to her heirs and assigns forever, one third part of my dwelling house aforesaid, and one third part of the half acre of land on which the same stands.

Item. Whereas I have in the lifetime of my late daughters the wives of David Hawley and Thomas Langley Collins given to my said daughters their full share of my estate, I do therefore not think proper in this my last will to give any thing to either of their children, and having also already given to my daughter Charity all the portion I intended for her, I therefore do not think it proper to give her any thing further.

Item. I give and devise to my beloved wife Sarah, all the residue and remainder of my personal estate to be her own forever, and I likewise give unto her the use and Improvement of all the residue and remainder of my real estate where-ever situated, for her to use and improve during the term of her natural life with full power and authority to give, devise and dispose thereof to and among my children or to either of them in fee simple as she shall judge best, in and by her last will and testament to be executed, proved and approved in due form of law; but in case my said Silas shall continue to pursue the same irregular course of life which he now does and shall not reform and live a sober life and regular life, then it shall not be in the power of my said wife to give anything of my said real estate to him, I having already given him a great part of my estate.

Finally, I hereby make, constitute and appoint my friend Ozias Burr, sole executor of this my last will and testament declaring this and no other to be my last will and testament hereby also revoking and annulling all former wills by me heretofore made.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal in Fairfield, the 24 day of March, A. D., 1786.

His EPHRAIM X HAWLEY,
mak.

This will was proved Mar. 20, 1786.

Note 168.—ELIZABETH HAWLEY (SHERMAN), No. 4655, daughter of Daniel Hawley, married Timothy Sherman, the family being one of the most prominent in Stratford and Woodbury, Ct., for many years. She and her husband resided in Stratford, and left no descendants, as he in his will gave his property all to his second wife and his nephews.

Besides the above there were several marriages of Hawleys with the Sherman family, but the immediate connection cannot be given for want of information. (For the Sherman Family, see Note 113.)

Note 169.—EDWARD HAWLEY, No. 4656, son of Daniel Hawley, was born in Stratford, Ct., in 1720, and married Mrs. Abigail Southworth, widow of Capt. Samuel Southworth, of Stratford, but earlier of Hartford or Wethersfield, Ct. She was the daughter of Robert Wells, of Stratford, Ct., and he was the son of John Wells 2d, of Stratford. She married Capt. Samuel Southworth, July 8, 1752, and had: Samuel Wells Southworth, b. May 24, 1753; Robert Southworth, b. in 1755; Samuel Wells Southworth, b. in 1757.

Edward Hawley's estate was distributed Feb. 25, 1790, to his widow Abigail Hawley, and Lucy, "eldest daughter," Anne, "2d daughter," Elizabeth, "3d daughter," and Abigail, "4th daughter," it being quite a good estate for the times.

Note 170.—EBENEZER HAWLEY, No. 4660, son of Oliver Hawley, was born in Stratford, and became a merchant in North Stratford, what is now Trumbull, Ct., where he died, according to his grave-stone, Dec. 2, 1767. He married July 11, 1765, Hannah, daughter of Israel Beneb (see Note 196), and after his death she married Dea. Benjamin Burton, of Trumbull, Dec. 15, 1771.

By her first husband, Ebenezer Hawley, she had a son Abijah, as in the table work of this book, No. 4702, but no account of him has been obtained, except that he had a half brother by the same name, born in 1774, which proves he was deceased before that date. He was only about a year and a half old when his father died.

Will of Ephraim Hawley, 3d.*

April 8, 1777.

In the name of God, Amen.

I, Ephraim Hawley, Jr., of Fairfield Town and County, and State of Connecticut, being weak in body, but of sound mind and memory, do make and solemnize this to be my last will and testament.

First, I recommend my soul to God who gave it, and my body to ye earth to be decently buried at ye discretion of my executors hereafter named. And as to my worldly estate with which it has pleased God to bless me in this world, I give and dispose of the same in manner following:

Impri. My will is that all my just debts and funeral charges be paid out of my movable estate.

Item. I give and bequeath to my loving brother, William Hawley, the use and improvement of eighteen acres of land, called ye pasture, lying in Jackson's pasture and building lot, during his natural life. I also give and bequeath to my brother, William Hawley, the use and improvement of my orchard in quantity ten acres during his natural life.

Item. I give and bequeath ye use and improvement of my pasture and orchard before mentioned, after the decease of my brother William Hawley, unto my sister Abiah's eldest son and to his eldest male heir forever.

Item. I give and bequeath to my loving sister Isabel Hawley, my lower lot, so called, in quantity about ten acres, to be to her and her heirs and assigns forever.

Item. I give and bequeath unto my loving brother Silas Hawley, all my meadow that lies in common and undivided with said Silas' meadow, say part, in quantity one acre and a half, to be to him and his heirs forever.

Item. I give and bequeath ye use of all my cattle, being thirteen in number, to my father's family during the natural lives of my father and mother, and the longest lives of them, and my will is that the numbers be kept good, and after the decease of my father and mother, the same to be equally divided among my brothers and sisters.

Item. The remainder of my estate, both real and personal, I give to my brothers and sisters to be equally divided between them.

Finally, I constitute and appoint my loving friend Thomas Langley Collyer of Fairfield, to be executor of this my last will and testament, hereby revoking all former wills, declaring this to be my last will and testament.

In confirmation whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal in Fairfield the day and date first above written.

In EPHRAIM X HAWLEY, Jr.
 Mark.

Note 172.—SERGT. JAMES HAWLEY, No. 4716, son of Gideon Hawley, was born probably in Pequonock, now Bridgeport, in 1713. He was a farmer, a sergeant of a military company, and enjoyed some distinction as a prosperous citizen. He married Eunice Jackson, daughter of Henry Jackson, who was the grandson, probably, of Henry Jackson the first, in Fairfield, Ct., and the son of John Jackson, a miller at Jackson's Mill, located near what is now Mountain Grove Cemetery, at Bridgeport, Ct.

It is said that after the death of James Hawley, his widow Eunice continued a widow about twenty-five years, then married Lieut. Isaac Bennett, and was again a widow at the time of her death.

No. 4716.

The accompanying engravings are fac-similes of the grave-stones and inscriptions of himself and widow.

No. 4716.

Note 173.—REV. GIDEON HAWLEY, No. 4722, son of Gideon Hawley, was born in Pequonock, now Bridgeport; was graduated from Yale College in 1749; and was licensed to preach by the Fairfield East Association, of Connecticut, May 23, 1750. He commenced his first labors as a missionary to the Indians at Stockbridge, Mass., in 1752, where he was an instructor under the patronage of Rev. Jonathan Edwards, D. D. In a letter* written July 31, 1794, containing a narrative of his journey to Onohoghgwage in 1752, Mr. Hawley says:

"It is forty years this day (July 31, 1754), since I was ordained a Missionary to the Indians, in the old South meeting house, when Rev. Dr. Sewall preached on the occasion, and the Rev. Mr. Prince gave the charge.

"I had been in the service from February 5, O. S. 1752, and by an ecclesiastical council convened for the purpose, was now solemnly set apart to the work of an evangelist among the western Indians. The Rev. Mr. Foxcroft and Dr. Chauncey assisted upon the occasion, and Mr. Appleton of Cambridge, with many delegates from their respective churches.

"I entered upon this arduous business at Stockbridge, under the patronage of Rev. Mr. Edwards, and was instructor of a few families of Iroquois, who came down from their country for the sake of Christian knowledge and the schooling of their children.

"Their families consisted of Mohawks, Onoidas and Tuscaroras, from Kanhoharry and Onohoghgwage. I was their schoolmaster and preached to them on the Lord's day. Mr. Edwards visited my school, catechised my scholars, and frequently delivered a discourse to their parents. To Indians he was a very plain and practical preacher; upon no occasion did he display any metaphysical knowledge in the pulpit. In the winter Indians arose at home, and my school was well attended, but many who wintered at Stockbridge went off in the spring and summer, and were about Scholharie, beyond Albany. In the month of September, I therefore made an excursion into the Mohawk country. I had never been at Albany, nor even as far as Kinderhook, till now, and was ignorant of the way, which led through a wilderness."

Mr. Hawley then describes his journey to Scholharie, N. Y., and return to Stockbridge.

Another visit to the Indians was planned, and Mr. Hawley, accompanied by a Deacon Woodbridge, started with interpreters on May 22, 1753, and proceeded to Scholharie, thence to the Susquehanna river, and down it to the Onohoghgwage Indians, near the Great Bend in the Susquehanna river, where he accomplished the object of his mission, the introduction of Christianity to the tribe.

Of his address to them, and specially of that of Mr. Woodbridge, he says:

"It affected them, and they appeared to be religiously moved, convicted, and even converted."

* Probated June 29, 1777.

* I. Mass. Collections, iv. See also Freeman's "Cape Cod."

Mr. Hawley and his co-laborer then returned to Stockbridge.

In 1754, he received ordination at Boston, as he describes, and returned to his missionary work at Stockbridge, where he continued his labors until May, 1756, when the French war compelled him to retire. Returning to Boston, he became Chaplain in the Regiment of Colonel Gridley, and joined the army at Albany, destined against Crown Point.

After this campaign, he, in 1757, was persuaded by the commissioners of the Society for Propagation of the Gospel among the Indians in North America* to visit the Marshpee Indians, a tribe located on the Sound in sight of Martha's Vineyard. There he settled and there the rest of his life was spent, and he died in 1807, aged 80 years. He is said to have possessed great dignity of manner and an authority of voice which had much influence with the Indians.

Note 174.—WOLCOTT HAWLEY, No. 4725, son of Sergt. James, was born in 1737, and died in 1799. His given name, Wolcott, was unusual in Fairfield County at that time, and was given him because his great aunt, Abiah Hawley, (No. 4652), had married William Wolcott, of Windsor, Ct., thirty years before he was born, that name however being prominent in the State. This was among the early examples in Connecticut of giving surnames to children instead of the old familiar Bible names which were almost universally used at that time.

Wolcott Hawley was a surveyor of lands and an influential man in the community where he lived. He was elected constable, an office then of much larger authority than at the present day. He was employed to ring the church bell in the old Stratfield parish, now Bridgeport, Ct., at a compensation of £4 per annum. The bell was to be rung not only before the usual hours of worship on Sundays and lecture days, but on week-days at twelve o'clock at noon and nine o'clock in the evening. The sounding of the bell in such a community, where clocks and time-pieces were scarce, had more significance than can be appreciated at the present day. (See page 530.) (For the Wolcott Family, see Note 21).

Note 175.—MAJOR AARON HAWLEY, No. 4726, son of Sergt. James Hawley, was a farmer at Bridgeport, Ct., and married three times as in the table work. The accompanying en-

Note 176.—CAPT. DAVID HAWLEY, No. 4727, the son of Sergt. James, resided in what is now the city of Bridgeport, Ct., and was a sea-captain. He owned the first brick house in that city, which stood on the corner of Gilbert and Water streets. He was born in 1741 and died in 1807.

Capt. Hawley distinguished himself in the early part of the Revolutionary War by bringing from the West Indies a cargo of gunpowder, which was divided between the towns of Stratford and Fairfield, Connecticut.

In August, 1776, by vote of the Connecticut Legislature, the sum of £180 was ordered paid to Capt. David Hawley, to raise a crew of seamen for the naval service of the United States, on the lakes, for which service he was appointed Captain, and was in the battle of the flotillas, with Arnold, on Lake Champlain, in the Revolution, on the 11th of October, 1776.

Another venture of Captain Hawley was somewhat unfortunate. He sailed from Stratford, Ct., on the 27th March, 1776, in command of a privateer sloop, but when he had been only four days out he was captured by the British man-of-war Bellona, mounting six guns and eight swivels. In an account of his capture, published shortly afterwards in the Connecticut Courant, the following particulars are given:

"The British seamen sprung on board, eager for plunder, damned Captain Hawley, his crew, and country, and he with his men were taken on board the Bellona. About ten at night they joined the men-of-war Ross, Glasgow, and Sween. He and his crew were placed on board the Ross, and the next day sailed into Newport, R. I., when liberty was given him to get his clothes from his own sloop; but he found his chest had been broken open and his clothes stolen. The British then offered Captain Hawley five shillings a day, a good cabin for his use, and to pay for his vessel after the war closed, also a choice of a plantation in any part of the continent, if he would act as their pilot, which he refused. In consequence of this he was parted from his men on board the Glasgow, without even the privilege of writing to his mate. The Glasgow, on the fifth of April, sailed from Newport, and after a severe action at sea, arrived at Halifax in eleven days, where Captain Hawley remained two weeks; but on the seventh of May he, with eight others, escaped in a small boat and went to 'Old York,' and from there home. He however seen had some revenge on the enemy, for on the 29th of May, 1777, he brought four vessels, contraband of war, into Black Rock Harbor, in Connecticut."

A further exploit of Revolutionary fame is still preserved, in which Captain Hawley had a prominent part. A few months after the burning of Fairfield, Ct., in July, 1779, General Silliman of Fairfield, who had command of all the troops in Fairfield County, was surprised and his house on Holland Heights broken into by a party headed by one Glover, a tory of Newtown, who had been employed as a carpenter by the General, and was consequently familiar with the premises. General Silliman's gun missed fire, and he and his eldest son were both seized, hurried to the Sound and forced to embark for Long Island.

This successful raid of the tories occasioned much excitement, and as the Americans held no officer of rank who could be exchanged for Gen'l Silliman, it was decided to kidnap Judge Thomas Jones of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, a leading tory, whose residence was at Fort Neck, on Hempstead Plain, Long Island. For this purpose an expedition one evening in November, 1779, commanded by Capt. David Hawley, set out from Newfield (now Bridgeport) harbor, in whale boats, for Long Island. Besides the command it was composed of Captains Leekwood and Jones, Lieutenants Jackson and Bishop, and about twenty-five other volunteers.

Landing at Stony Brook, they concealed their boats in the bushes, and after a toilsome night's march over by-roads and through the woods, reached their destination just forty-eight hours from the time they started.

There was a ball at the residence of Judge Jones that evening, and no one will wonder that the old gentleman was reluctant to leave the festive scene, with its music and pleasant company, for a fifty-mile tramp on a frosty night through woods and swamps, with the prospect of a prison at the end of the route, but his visitors would take no denial. On their way back, the party passing near the camp of a royal regiment, the Judge coughed loudly to attract the attention of the sentinels; nor would he be silent until Captain Hawley threatened him with instant death. The march was a severe one, and several members of the party straggled, through fatigue, and were captured by the enemy's light horse; but the main body reached their boats and crossed in safety to Black Rock with their prisoner. Invited to dine with Mrs. Silliman, Judge Jones did not display the urbanity which under other circumstances he might have done, but was reserved and sullen in his demeanor. He was ordered to Middletown, Ct., for confinement, but after a few months was exchanged for General Silliman.

After the war Capt. Hawley resided in Bridgeport until his decease in 1807. He built on the corner of Water and Gilbert streets the first brick house erected within the city limits.

Note 177.—DEA. ELIJAH HAWLEY, No. 4729, son of Sergt. James Hawley, married Mercy Bennett in 1772. He was a carpenter at Bridgeport, Ct., when there was not much of a city there. He was a member of the First Congregational Church in Bridgeport, was appointed Deacon in it in 1776, and continued in the same until 1790, when he removed to Ohio, where he died in 1825, aged 81 years.

The accompanying autograph record was written by Dea. Elijah Hawley for one of his children, and has through filial respect been preserved, and is now preserved for evermore, as seen below.

DIAGRAM DRAWN BY WOLCOTT HAWLEY, SURVEYOR, IN 1795.

He owned and lived in the old red house which stood on Main street nearly opposite Gold street in Bridgeport, where his son Jesse was born. Major Aaron Hawley, a brother of Dea. Elijah, became the owner of the place before 1787, and occupied it until his death in 1807. His son Capt. Samuel succeeded him, and he and his descendants held and occupied it until about 1840. (See note 178.) In 1787, Main street was widened and the site of the famous well, in the front of the red house, which stood its width in the street, was excepted and liberty given to fence around it. The same well still exists under the stones of the sidewalk.

The history of Stratford says: "James and Zachariah Hawley were sons of Gideon, and third in descent from the original Joseph Hawley, of Stratford, through first, Ephraim and Sarah Welles, and second, Gideon and Ann Bennett. They were pioneers here. James seems to have settled on the west side of the highway. His son, Dea. Elijah, was a house carpenter, and probably built and occupied the old red house. He removed to the west very early, and died in Ohio, in 1825, aged 81 years. He had a son by the name of Jesse, who was born in the old red house."

Zachariah, brother of James and son of Gideon, owned the land on the east side of Main street, and opposite the old red house, extending to Pequonnock river, which he sold to Samuel Porter,* who was first cousin to Daniel Porter, who married Sarah, daughter of Capt. John Hawley, in 1725.† The position of this property lying between the river and the street, and opposite the old red house and the well, is shown by the above diagram. Where the old Fort stood there was a high bluff, well situated in the beginning of the settlement to command the river and harbor, and prevent any vessels ascending the river. On this plat was built salt works in 1825. The diagram was drawn on a sheet of paper in October, 1795, by Wolcott Hawley, a surveyor, for the purpose of distributing the property of Samuel Porter, deceased. (See sketch by R. B. Lacey, Esq., History of Stratford, Ct., page 488.) The site of the old red house and the well are properly shown on the diagram.

The steeple was added to the house in 1771, but was not finished, when, on the 28th of July in that year, while the people were in the house worshipping, it was struck by lightning, but not greatly injured, although two of the worshippers, John Burr, Esq., and David Sherman, were killed; yet no other persons were seriously injured by the shock.

The accompanying engraving is a very good representation of this meeting-house, and many others in Connecticut at that day, for many were built after the same pattern, having three doors, and the pulpit standing at the side instead of the end of the house.

In this house worshiped the Hawley families for more than a hundred years, and some of the time over twenty at a time.

Thomas Hawley (17) was chosen Deacon of that church in 1712, when it stood at number 18 on the accompanying map, but died in that office in 1722, only 44 years of age.

Dea. Elijah Hawley was chosen Deacon of this church in 1776, but removed from the town in 1790, to Ohio.

Deacon Stephen Hawley (4897) was chosen Deacon of this church in 1821, but was dismissed at his own request, to unite in the organization of the Second Congregational Church in Bridgeport, in 1830, of which he was Deacon until 1842, when he resigned, and united in the organization of the First Presbyterian Church of that city, of which he was ordained an Elder.

JEREMIAH HAWLEY (4841), son of Wolcott, was a farmer and resided at this place quite a number of years. Nothing was known of him when the table work of this book was printed on page 818, and what became of him is not now known. He was a peculiar character, with but little love for work, yet as a jest upon him he was called "Jeremy," the "English Farmer."

No. 90 on Map.

DEA. THOMAS HAWLEY, (17) was a farmer, and was chosen Deacon of the Stratfield church in 1712, and died in 1722, aged 44 years. He married Joanna, daughter of Ephraim Booth, and she was first cousin to Deacon Joseph Booth (No. 62 on the map), which Joseph Booth was chosen Deacon of the same church in 1733.

Capt. Ezra Hawley, son of Dea. Thomas, succeeded his father on the old homestead, and his son Ezra, Jr., succeeded him.

CAPT. STEPHEN SUMMERS, married Mary Holberton; was a farmer and also captain of Boston coasting vessels. He had an only son, Stephen, and daughters Charity, Grizzell, Polly and Ruth. DEA. ELIJAH HAWLEY (4729), a carpenter, was chosen Deacon of the Stratfield church in 1790, and afterwards removed to Ohio. (See the beginning of this Note, also 178.) Elijah's father, Sergt. James Hawley, probably resided at this place in an earlier than the old red house, as in Note 178.

CAPT. DAVID HAWLEY (4727), son of Sergt. James, owned this the first brick house built within the present city of Bridgeport, located on the corner of Water and Gilbert streets. (See Note 176.)

CAPT. ABRAHAM HAWLEY (2233), the son of Thomas, at No. 133 on the map, was a prominent merchant, and in early life sailed in different vessels in the Boston coasting trade. His store in company with Aaron and Captain Wilson Hawley, was a little way north of his dwelling on Water street. (See Note 114.)

No. 133 on Map.

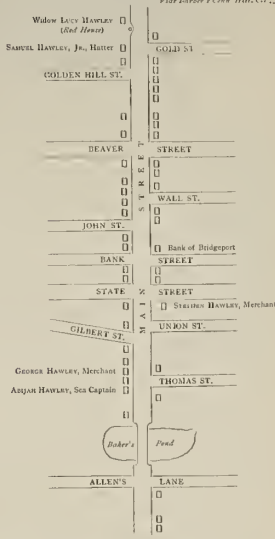

THOMAS HAWLEY (2225), son of Capt. Ezra, was a farmer at this place, one of the most beautiful localities in the world. It is now the residence of Dr. I. De Ver Warner, the extensively known corset manufacturer of Bridgeport, Ct. One of the grandest objects to be seen in that region of country, is the great elm tree standing at the northeast corner of Dr. Warner's dwelling, in his front yard. This tree was transplanted by ZARLON HAWLEY, when he was a boy, and set in the place where it now stands. He carried it on his shoulder from the adjacent forest, with only the idea, probably, of ornamenting his father's home, without any imagination of the admiration it would secure from hundreds of thousands of persons, when grown to the immense proportions it now possesses.

Note 178.—JESSE HAWLEY, ESQ., No. 4963, son of Dea. Elijah Hawley, was born in Bridgeport, Ct., 11 May, 1773, and died at Lockport, N. Y., in 1842.

The accompanying engraving represents the birthplace of Jesse Hawley. This house was built about 1780 by his father, Dea. Elijah Hawley, who was a carpenter. Previous to 1787 he had sold it to his brother, Major Aaron Hawley. It was located on the west side of Main street, at what is now (1887) Nos. 551-559 Main street, corner of Chapel street, in Bridgeport, Ct. The grounds in the rear rise quite abruptly and are a part of the upper town, known as Golden Hill. It was noticeable for its ancient style and red color. It stood fronting the south, with the end towards the street, its long back roof extending down to easy reach from the ground. The well stood its full width on the street, having its old oaken bucket and primitive poles for drawing water. This well was deemed so valuable that at a widening of the street in 1787, the old west line of the street was maintained for twelve feet on each side, and beyond that deflected west the width of the curb, so that at a distance the well appeared to stand in the highway, or street. There was a garden south of the house, fronting on the street, running west about seventy feet, and all remained intact in the Hawley family until about 1840, when it was sold, and four or five years later gave place to a new block of wooden buildings. The accompanying engraving finely represents the old house, as attested by several persons who well remember it, and especially Mrs. Ann M. Gray, a relative of the Hawley family.

Such was the birthplace of Jesse Hawley, the projector of the Erie Canal. Mr. Hawley became a merchant, and removed from Bridgeport to Seneca county, New York, and thence to Canandaigua, where in 1807 he published a series of articles on the subject of a canal from Lake Erie to the Hudson river, signed "Hercules." The first number of the series had for its caption "Observations on Canals," in full capital letters, and was published in the Genesee Messenger, October 27th, 1807, occupying a conspicuous position on the first page of the paper. The second number, in which the route for the canal is traced from Lake Erie to the Mohawk, was published Nov. 3d, 1807. The third and fourth numbers, in which are discussed the length of time requisite, and the size of the canal that should be adopted, were published on the 10th and the 11th of November, 1807, respectively. The fifth number, in which the probable cost of such a canal and its commercial utility are treated of, was published November 24th, 1807. The sixth number, in which the agricultural and commercial importance was profoundly discussed, was published December 8th, 1807. The seventh and eighth numbers, which are devoted to the question of the resources of capital, were published respectively on the 15th and the 22d of December, 1807. The remaining numbers are devoted to pointing out other improvements in various portions of the United States, number ten particularly showing the great resources and the growing power of the State of New York, if this canal should be constructed, and setting forth the project of the Champlain Canal.

The claim in behalf of the "Hercules" essays are based on the facts that they were the first publication of the project for an overland canal to Lake Erie, and were published to the world at the time they were written; and the assurance of their author that the views they promulgated were original with him, without having been communicated by any person; with the conviction that the impartial reader of them will not fail to discover in them internal evidence of their originality with the author. And it is a recorded fact that Elkanah Watson, DeWitt Clinton and others, ascribe to these essays the first intimation of the project which they had been able to find.

The original essays were published in pamphlet form in 1827, and are still preserved.

There having been raised questions and discussions as to the origin of the idea of such a canal, Merwin S. Hawley, a banker of Buffalo, a nephew of Jesse Hawley, prepared an exhaustive historical paper on the subject, which was read before the Buffalo Historical Club, February 3d, 1868, and the same was published in pamphlet form and preserved by the Club. Quoting from this pamphlet:

"The papers written by Jesse Hawley, and signed by 'Hercules,' the first of which was published in Pittsburg, Penn., in the newspaper called the Commonwealth, on the 14th of January, 1807, and subsequently in the Genesee Messenger, at Canandaigua, in this State, beginning in October, 1807, and extending to fourteen numbers, some of which newspapers are now in the archives of the Society, through the courtesy of the Hon. T. T. Flagler, of Lockport, are the first publications of the project for this canal.

"These papers, after pointing out the feasibility of a canal on nearly the identical line now occupied by it, recommending its size to be one hundred feet wide and ten feet deep, estimating its cost with great accuracy, and in many ways urging public attention to its importance and the propriety of an actual survey, proceed to point out other improvements in other States, some of which have since been constructed; among which are the Ohio Canal, the Wabash Canal, the St. Marie Canal, to open navigation into Lake Superior, the Fox and Wisconsin rivers connection, the Illinois and Michigan Canal, and the canal around the falls of the Ohio river.

"Mr. Hawley originally intended to deposit these papers in the archives of the office of the Secretary of State in order to preserve the evidences of his claim to the first writings on the subject, but they are by his will deposited with the Historical Society of the city of New York. He writes: 'I claim the original and the first publication of the overland route of the Erie Canal.'"

This pamphlet of Merwin S. Hawley most fully and clearly shows that the claim of Jesse Hawley has never been set aside, but fully corroborated by the most distinguished citizens of the State, viz.: Elkannah Watson, in 1819; Colonel Troup, in 1822; Governor DeWitt Clinton, and others.

In 1870 Benjamin H. Wright of Rome, N. Y., published a pamphlet stating that: "As to the merit of the first design of a canal from Lake Erie to the Hudson, it belongs, in my opinion, exclusively to no man."

Against this mere "opinion" Merwin S. Hawley read another paper before the Buffalo Historical Society, July 9, 1872, which was published in pamphlet form, fully confirming by extracts from the writings of well-known public men and historical dates, what he had previously written, and what Jesse Hawley had claimed for himself. There is therefore no room for a reasonable doubt on this subject.

Personal Testimony of Hon. William Peacock.

On the 18th of May, 1848, I rode in the cars from Buffalo to Tonawanda, and soon after leaving Buffalo I observed the Hon. William Peacock, of Mayville, Chautauqua County, on the next seat. Some casual remark having been made by a gentleman opposite, which gave the occasion, I spoke to Judge Peacock of Turner's History of Western New York and the Holland Purchase, then lately published at Buffalo, and by design, knowing that Mr. Peacock had been intimately acquainted with Mr. Eliott in the business relations they had originally sustained in the land office at Batavia, I remarked that Mr. Turner had done better justice to the western men in regard to their influence and exertions in originating the Canal Policy of the State, than some of his predecessors who had written on the subject.

"I am glad of it," said he in substance, "for I happen to know something of the nature of their services and extent of their influence in this important matter. I recollect very well the time and the circumstances under which my mind was led to the contemplation of the great project of connecting the western with the eastern waters by the 'overland route.'"

"One very cold afternoon in the fall of the year 1807, I think in the month of November, when on my way from Albany to Batavia, I stopped at the public house in Canandaigua to stay over night. The weather being very uncomfortable, I asked the landlord for a room with a fire, and while the room was being prepared, I sat by the fire making myself comfortable after my ride on horseback, a gentleman came in whom I at once recognized as my old friend Jesse Hawley. I was very glad to see him as you may well suppose, for although we had not met for five or six years, and had measurably lost sight of each other, still meeting unexpectedly in so remote a place on the borders of civilization, and when the inclemency of the weather without predisposed to greater sociability within, we were immediately on confidential terms and in a communicative mood. My invitation to him to spend the evening with me at my room, was at once accepted. After supper, therefore, we repaired to it, and over a comfortable fire and a bottle of wine, we talked over various affairs. In the course of conversation, and very soon after we sat down, Mr. Hawley said: 'Perhaps, sir, you don't know my present circumstances.' I replied, 'No, sir, not particularly; you were well off when I knew you, and I hope it is no worse with you at present.' 'Alas, sir,' said he, 'it is much worse; it is bad enough, had as it can be. I am here under restraint. There are certain walks, so many feet wide, that I may pursue, certain houses only that I may enter, and certain hours that I must observe.' I readily understood that he was 'on the jail limits,' at which I was greatly surprised, for when I had known him before, he was in affluent circumstances. At my request he related the main points of his reverses, the principal of which were the loss of a large sum of money by means of the dishonesty of a partner, who had taken money to New York to purchase goods, and by whom directly and indirectly he had lost ten thousand dollars, and in consequence was by the action of the creditors restrained of his liberty. I said to him that the part of wisdom was still to look at the bright side if any could be found. 'We are as yet,' I remarked, 'young and healthy. It is a long road which has no turn, and brighter days may come. Keep good courage, and do not give way to despondency nor indulge in improper habits in order to forget trouble. Let your mind, which is necessarily active, have constant employment in reading and study, so that time may not pass without its uses.'

"He thanked me for the suggestions, and, said he, 'To show you that I appreciate the necessity of such a course, I will explain to you confidentially what I am about.' He then proceeded to detail to me a project which he had formed for the construction of an inland canal to connect the waters of Lake Erie with the Hudson River. There was fortunately a map of the State hanging in my room, which we took down and laid on the table. Mr. Hawley then pointed out on the map the route from the Mohawk to the Genesee River, and I suggested the course it should take from there west. He told me he had commenced a series of numbers which he intended to publish under the signature of 'Hercules,' and made me promise that I would not reveal the authorship, which he wished on some accounts to remain for the present a secret. We conversed at length on the subject, and on parting he promised to send me the numbers through to Batavia as soon as possible.

"I came on to Batavia, but said nothing to any one of my interview with Mr. Hawley. In due time I received from him the Genesee Messenger, containing the first number of 'Hercules.' I said nothing, but read the article through by myself with great attention, and with the more interest knowing its origin. I watched my opportunity, wishing to see how it would strike the mind of Mr. Eliott. He came into the office while I had the paper looking it over, and asked us, 'What is the news?' I replied, 'Nothing important, but here is a curious kind of an article over the signature of Hercules.' 'What about?' said he in his energetic manner. 'A proposition,' said I, 'to construct a canal inland across the country to Lake Erie.' He snatched the paper from my hand, looked at it a moment and ran upstairs to read the article over by himself. He read it through once or twice and finally read it to himself aloud, very deliberately, weighing well every proposition. He said nothing about it at that time, but it had evidently made an impression on his mind not soon to be effaced. I waited impatiently for the next number, and found some watchfulness necessary to avoid betraying my interest and anxiety on the subject.

"At length the second paper came. It was immediately discovered by Mr. Eliott, and he devoured the second with greater avidity than the first. He asked who sent these papers. 'Oh,' said I, 'a friend of mine at Canandaigua.' 'Well,' said he, mistrusting from my manner that there was some particular reason connected with the articles as why they were sent, 'who is the writer of them?' I replied that I did not know in such a way as to authorize me in making any positive statement in regard to them. So the matter passed along. The other numbers were read by Mr. Eliott as they came. I think when the second or third number came, he came down and said to Mr. Stevens, who was the oldest clerk in the Land Office, that here were some very curious speculations and propositions put forth by an anonymous writer in the Messenger, and asked his opinion concerning them. Mr. Stevens considered it a most visionary and impractical project, and not long after, published some articles in reply to 'Hercules,' throwing discredit and ridicule on the whole matter. Mr. Eliott, however, formed his own opinion on the subject. We often conversed concerning it, and he very soon after entered upon that course of correspondence with his friends in New York and Albany, which brought the subject so particularly and forcibly to their notice that it resulted in the subsequent action of the Legislature, and adoption, after long delays occasioned by the law of 1810, and other adverse circumstances, of that line of policy which has secured this vast improvement, which has produced a blessing not only to the western portion of our own State, but to the whole State and the great West."

I find, also, in a book named "Sketches of Rochester," by Henry O'Reilly, page 175 and on, "The Origin and Progress of the Canal System." This chapter goes quite minutely into the question of the origin of the Erie Canal, and at page 190 says:

"But whatever pictures fancy may have formed of a communication like the present canal between the Hudson and Lake Erie, no calculations were placed publicly in a tangible shape until the year 1807, when the essays of Jesse Hawley, which appeared under the signature of 'Hercules,' in a Pittsburg paper and the Genesee Messenger at Canandaigua, during the years of 1807 and 8, presented this question in an aspect to command attention. Facts were furnished to show how wonderfully the peculiarities of the country favored the scheme of an overland route from Lake Erie to the Mohawk, near Rome or Utica, where the river navigation might be improved as the connecting link with the Hudson. The route mentioned by Mr. Hawley commenced at Buffalo, and pursued nearly the track which was subsequently adopted—the 'northern route,' as it was termed, as far eastward as the Genesee, in preference to the Tonawanda Valley, which latter route was preferred by Mr. Ellicott, and was not abandoned for the northern route until 1820."

In the "Life of Thomas Eddy," by Samuel L. Knapp, the parts which various persons had in proposing and constructing the Erie Canal are set forth at considerable length, but to Jesse Hawley belongs the honor of being the author of the first publication of articles on the subject, and that without suggestions from others.

Jesse Hawley subsequently settled at Rochester, and afterwards at Lockport, N. Y., where he died.

Jesse Hawley was married twice, as appears from records.

The land records of Canandaigua, N. Y., represent transactions signed or witnessed in 1813, by Betsey Ralston Hawley, wife of Jesse; and in 1827, a record says, "Jesse Hawley of Rochester, in which he says, Betsey R. Hawley, lately my wife."

Another record given by relatives says:

"Jesse Hawley died in 1842, aged 69 years.

"Elizabeth L. Hawley, his wife, died in Sutton, Canada, Sept. 30, 1872, aged 84 years.

FAC-SIMILE OF AUTOGRAPH ORDER OF JESSE HAWLEY.

Note 179.—EUNICE HAWLEY (CHAPMAN), No. 4966, daughter of Dea. Elijah Hawley, of Bridgeport, Ct., was born in 1778, married James Chapman as his second wife in January, 1804. They resided a time in Bridgeport, Ct., and removed to Brooklyn, N. Y., where they both died.

Mrs. Eunice (Hawley) Chapman was a remarkable woman, which fact is somewhat indicated by the inscription on her tombstone, a fac-simile of which is here with given, but it is much regretted that a full account of her life, as indicated, cannot be recorded here for want of information. She took great interest in the family history, and furnished much important matter which is embodied in this Record, and her branch of the family quite looked to her for proper recognition; for all of which, and more, we desire to give abundant credit.

Of her son, George M. Chapman, the book of the "Chapman Family" says:

"GEORGE M. resides in Brooklyn, L. I., has been an importer of straw and fancy goods, and a large wholesale dealer in Pearl street, New York; is a man of extensive observation and experience in the old world and the new, having crossed the Atlantic fourteen times, and visited most of the countries of Europe; has a strong predilection for the Fine Arts, evidenced by the fact that he has one of the finest collections of ancient paintings that we have seen in the possession of any private gentleman in the country." (Chapman Family, page 208.)

The Connection of the Hawley with the Chapman Family.

Note 180. HON. ELIJAH HAWLEY, No. 4967, son of Dea. Elijah Hawley, was born in Bridgeport, Ct., removed early to Broome, Schoharie county, where his son Merwin S. was born, and where he resided until 1815, when he removed to Ridgeway, then Genesee but now Orleans county, N. Y. Soon after settling there he was appointed postmaster, and Judge of the County Court. He died in 1820, leaving a family of six children, the youngest being three years of age, the seventh and youngest child having died eleven days before he died.

Note 180½.—MERWIN SPENCER HAWLEY, No. 4988, son of Judge Elijah Hawley, was born April 30, 1807, in Broome, Schoharie County, N. Y., at a place called Stone Bridge. His early education was obtained by a few months' attendance, each year, in a district school. In 1815, he removed with his father's family to the town of Ridgeway, then Genesee but now Orleans County, directly north of Medina. His father was soon appointed postmaster and County Judge; and when only eleven years old, young Hawley was appointed assistant postmaster, because his father was often away from home.

In 1829 he began teaching school in the town of Shelby, at $12.50 a month, and he continued in this business until 1832, when he went to Rochester and engaged as clerk for a merchant in a general and lumber store. In 1836 he became partner with his employer's son in the dry goods business. On December 6th of that year, he married Mary Metcalf, an orphan girl of Rochester, and the union was an unusually happy one, lasting until her decease, about eight years before his death, or in 1879.

In April, 1840, he removed to Buffalo, N. Y., where he engaged in the grain and flour commission business.

In 1842, he and his wife united with the First Presbyterian Church, and were among the most active in that congregation.

He soon became first in position among the commission dealers in flour and grain, and by strict attention to business had, in 1855, acquired a high financial standing and credit, and from that year on he added rapidly to his fortune.

In March, 1854, he became one of the founders of the International Bank of Buffalo, which had a capital of $400,000, George W. Tift being its first president, and in 1857, Mr. Hawley was elected president of this Bank. In 1863 the Bank wound up its business, paying all obligations, refunding the capital and paying six and a half per cent. interest on it.

Mr. Hawley was a member of the Buffalo Historical Society, and of the Buffalo Library, and gave much attention to both of them.

Note 180¾.—DE WITT CLINTON HAWLEY, No. 4990, son of Hon. Elijah Hawley, was born in Broome, Schoharie Co., N. Y., 9 May, 1812. "He was left fatherless at the age of eight years, and struggled manfully to do his part in helping his widowed mother care for her large family in the newly settled country which had been chosen as their home, namely (then) Genesee Co., N. Y. He remained with her on the farm during her life-time, and afterwards took his wife there.

"He spent a year or two in Medina, N. Y., about the same length of time in Buffalo, N. Y., and in the year 1849 took his wife and one daughter to the central part of Michigan, then an almost unbroken wilderness. His health was impaired by the hardships of early life, but his genial disposition and Christian faith never failed.

"He died suddenly 24 Aug., 1873, leaving a daughter, Mrs. J. C. Prentiss, of Buffalo, and son Charles E. Hawley, also of Buffalo, to bear his name and to emulate his virtues."

Note 181.—HENRY HAWLEY, No. 5070, son of Capt. John Hawley, was born in Stratford, Ct., in 1687, and married Mary, dau. of Daniel Pickett. He was a farmer, with a large land estate.

The Connection of the Hawley with the Read Family.

1 READ, WILLIAM, was among the first settlers in Stratford, Ct, where he had a house lot before 1650. He removed to Fairfield or Norwalk soon after or a little before 1650, where the inventory of his property was reported to the Probate Court, Oct. 20, 1659, in which he is said to be of Norwalk, Ct. He doubtless had other children besides William, here given:

- 2 I. WILLIAM. (2½ +)
- 2½ I. WILLIAM, (2—), son of William Read, married 1st,; 2d, Mary, widow of John Bostwick of Stratford. She was the daughter of John Britismade. He was a land-owner. His will was dated Sept. 2, 1693, with a codicil, May 20, 1697, and proved soon after, in which he gave his property to the children named below:

He afterwards preached two years at East Hartford, then about four years at Stratford. He afterwards became a lawyer, was living in Stratford in 1810; purchased a number of tracts of land in Redding, where he resided a number of years, then removed to Boston, where he became very eminent in the practice of law, and where he died Feb. 14, 1748, aged 69 years. He married Ruth, daughter of Lieut.-Col. John Talcott of Hartford, Ct, sister of Gov. Joseph Talcott.

Note 165.—NATHAN HAWLEY, No. 5075, son of Capt. John, was born in Stratford, Ct, in 1700; married Silence Mallory of New Haven, Ct, and settled in Unity Society, now Trumbull, Ct, where it is supposed he died, but no grave-stone to his memory has been found, although there are several to his children.

Two of Nathan's grandsons—Nathan (5452), son of Nehemiah, and Abraham (5521), son of Andrew—were in the war of the Revolution, from Trumbull, Ct. Probably many others of the Hawley name were in the same war, but only a few of those names have been secured as having been in that service of their country.

As illustrating a little how those soldiers were provided for, to relieve their sufferings, the following extracts from the records of newspapers and the town are here given. The man named Lieutenant Beebe was the venerable minister's son at Trumbull, Ct.

Note 188.—JOSEPH HAWLEY, No. 5078, son of Capt. John Hawley, was born in Stratford, probably in 1707; married at Stratford, Ct., in 1727, Hannah Walker, but whose daughter she was has not been ascertained. They removed to Redding, Ct., whither his sister, who married Col. John Read, had preceded them. The two families were among the most prominent of the town for many years.

The church record of Redding says: "Joseph Hawley and his wife were admitted church members in Dec. 1740, on recommendation of Rev. Mr. Gold, of Stratford, Ct.," and the three youngest of their children were baptized afterwards. The same record says: "Joseph Hawley died December 12, 1771, aged sixty-six years." (History of Redding, page 195.) If this age is correct he was born in 1705.

Note 189.—HANNAH HAWLEY (THOMPSON), No. 5079, daughter of Henry Hawley, married Daniel Thompson, 17 Mar., 1734-5. It is probable that they removed to Woodbury, Ct., in the later part of life, in which place nearly or quite all of his children were living in 1776.

The Connection of the Hawley with the Thompson Family of Stratford.

1 THOMPSON, JOHN, and wife Mirable came from England, to Stratford, Ct., among the first settlers in 1639 or 1640. He was a prosperous farmer. He died in 1678, and his widow died 13 April, 1690.

He probably removed to Woodbury, Ct. with his children after they were grown up. His second wife was Sarah, daughter of Ephraim Judson, of Stratford. (See number 24, under note 104, Judson Family). In the History of Woodbury, page 782, a David Hawley is said to be a soldier of the Revolution, and this is probably that David.

GENEALOGICAL NOTES.

Note 191.—MARY HAWLEY (CURTIS), No. 5081, daughter of Henry Hawley, Jr., married as his 2d wife, Dea. Peter Curtiss of New Stratford Church, in what is now the town of Trumbull, Ct., where he died in 1766. He married 1st, Hester, daughter of Ephraim Clarke. She died 6 July, 1744. Hester's mother was Hester Belding, daughter of Daniel Belding of Hatfield, Mass. In 1696, Hester Belding was carried captive by the Indians to Canada with her father and sister Elizabeth, but returned and married Ephraim Clarke. (See Savage, A to C.)

The Connection of the Hawley with the Curtiss Family.

In "A note of ye Estates and persons of the Inhabitants of Roxbury, about 1638-40, appears the name of John Cortois, having fifteen acres, with five persons in his family. This family disappears, and a thorough and exhaustive search in the records in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut fails to find them or any of them until the records of Stratford, Connecticut, are reached.

"That it is reasonable to believe that the John Cortois of Roxbury was a brother of William Curtiss of Roxbury, and the husband of Elizabeth of Stratford, is evidenced by the records both of England and America. In the 'Memorials of the Pilgrim Fathers of Nazing and Waltham Abbey,' by Mr. W. Winters, F. R. Historical Society, of Waltham Abbey, Essex, England, page 46, are the names of

- 1 "WILLIAM CURTISS, who married Sarah Eliot, the sister of John Eliot, the Indian Apostle, and one of the original settlers of Roxbury, Mass., and
- 2 "JOHN CURTISS, who married Elizabeth Hutchins, Apr. 19, 1610, and had children:
- 3 I. JOHN, bapt. Feb. 28, 1614-15; settled in Stratford, Ct.
- 4 II. WILLIAM, bapt. June 21, 1618. (5½+)
- 5 III. THOMAS, bapt. Mar. 12, 1619-20.

"The ship Lion arrived in Boston Harbor, Sunday evening, Sept. 16, 1632. She brought, so Winthrop says, one hundred and twenty-three passengers, of whom fifty were children. Of the one hundred and twenty-three passengers of this trip, the names of about thirty only are matters of record, one of whom was William Curtiss, above referred to, and he remained an inhabitant of the town of Roxbury.

"The records of Massachusetts Colony distinctly show, as stated above, that John Curtiss possessed not only a personality, but was a land-owner. The recorded passengers of the Lion are known to have been persons of means, and it is reasonable, from the known property of John, and his appearance at Roxbury at about the same time of William and other Lion passengers, to conclude that John was a passenger of the Lion, and therefore an emigrant from Nazing. If this conclusion is correct, there can be no doubt that this John is the John mentioned in the records of Nazing, and the husband of Elizabeth, the recorded ancestress of the Curtiss family of Stratford. He probably died in Massachusetts, or at Hartford, Connecticut, for the family stopped there a time before settling at Stratford."¹ and they had three children. Her younger son by Henry Hawley, on 24 January, 1758, chose Daniel Lyon of Fairfield as his guardian, and nothing further is known of him. In the distribution of Henry Hawley Jr.'s estate, after the marriage of his widow to Frederick Lewis, a portion was given to the heirs of "Henry, the younger son," so that he must have been deceased. That distribution gave as the will directed, to the widow £64 9 4; to Riggs Hawley, £77 7 4; to the heirs of Henry Hawley, the younger son, £77 7 4; to Sally Ruth Hawley, £38 17 74. On 1 Aug., 1791, Elijah Hawley was appointed, by the Probate Court, guardian to Riggs Hawley, and was probably such at the time of the distribution. This Elijah Hawley is not mentioned in Henry Jr.'s will, but he was the son of the first wife and was probably twenty-two or three years older than Riggs, and most likely had received his portion before the father's second marriage. Henry Hawley, Jr., had also a son Ephraim, who is not mentioned in his will. (See Note 200.) Who the person is that he calls "my brother Ephraim" in his will, is not known; perhaps he was a brother-in-law.

Will of Henry Hawley, Jr.

In the name of God, Amen. I Henry Hawley of the town of Stratford and County of Fairfield, being, 'twak in body, yet of sound mind and memory, think best at this time, to make my last will and testament in form following:

I recommend, in the first place, my soul into the hands of God, who gave it, to be saved through the grace of Jesus Christ; and my body I commend to the dust, to be decently buried at the discretion of my Executors hereafter named. And as to what worldly goods I hath pleased God to bless me with, I dispose of after the following manner, my past debt and funeral expenses being first paid and satisfied.

Infamia. I freely give and bequeath to my beloved wife Sarah Hawley, all the household goods and all household furniture, which she brought with her at marriage, and all other things in the house that were afterwards given to her by her father, together with what beds, bedding and cloth is made for the use of my family, also, two cows, six sheep, and three swine, to be hers and her heirs forever. I likewise bequeath to my beloved wife, to assist her in bringing up my children, the use and improvement of my house and barn, and all my lands until my daughter, Sally Ruth Hawley, is eighteen years old. And, after that only the use and improvement of one-third of my house, barn and lands during the term of her natural life. Or if she should marry before my daughter, Sally Ruth, is eighteen years old, then to have only the improvement of my house, barn and lands the term of her natural life.

I likewise give to my wife all the grain on the ground to be used in the family.

Item. I freely give and bequeath to my beloved son, Riggs Hawley, two portions of my real estate, that is as much again as I do to my daughter, to be his and his heirs forever.

Item. I freely give and bequeath to my beloved daughter, Sally Ruth Hawley, one portion of my real estate, that is, one half as much as I have given to my son, to be hers and her heirs forever. And as my wife is now in a state of pregnancy, if the child to be born should be a son, my will is, and I freely give him just as much as I have given my son Riggs, to be his and his heirs forever. Or if the child to be born should be a daughter, my will is, and I freely give unto her just as much as I have given my daughter Sally Ruth, to be hers and her heirs forever.

Item. My will is that all my moveable estate, except what I have above given to my beloved wife, Sarah, be sold to pay my just debts; and if that should not be enough, my will is, and I do hereby direct and appoint that so much of my land shall be sold on the west side of my farm, joining upon my brother Ephraim's land, beginning at the highway and running northward as shall be sufficient to discharge all my just debts.

Item. I do hereby nominate and appoint my beloved wife Sarah Hawley, to be sole executrix of this my last will and testament, revoking and making null and void all other wills and testaments by me heretofore made; conforming this and this only to be my last will and testament. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal, this 30th day of March, A. D., 1779.

HENRY HAWLEY.

Signed, sealed and declared by Mr. Henry Hawley, testator, to be his last will and testament, in presence of us.

MR. CHARLES HAWLEY'S HOMESTEAD.

This house was built by CHARLES HAWLEY (5251), son of EDMUND (5249:2), about 1815, and was occupied by him until his death in 1839, and afterwards by his widow, NANCY HAWLEY, until her death at the age of 96 years.

It is now occupied, as a summer residence, by the grand-daughter and only surviving descendant of CHARLES HAWLEY, CYNTHIA HAWLEY BENNETT, wife of JEFFERSON CLARK of New York City. It is situated in Oronoque district in Stratford, Conn., on the Housatonic River, three miles north of the railroad bridge between Stratford and Milford. It may be seen from this bridge and commands a view of the river for the intervening three miles.

Since the above was put in type, the following note and letter have been received:

May 15th, 1705, Mr. JOHN WELLS and Lieut. JOHN HAWLEY bought of RICHARD MILLS, son of SAMUEL MILLS of Southampton, L. I., several pieces of land near ye place called Oronoque: 3 acres which my father bought of HOPE WASHBURN, some meadow, 1½ acres of upland, 6¼ acres at Mouse Meadow, six orchard and lands at Oronoque, 16½ acres of the half division, 2½ of the two-mile division.

Hon. ELIAS S. HAWLEY.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN., May 14th, 1891.

Dear Sir—CHARLES HAWLEY'S homestead was a part of the old EDMUND, PIERSON, and Capt. JOHN HAWLEY place, or farm. On your map (Atlas of New York and vicinity) of STRATFORD you will see just in the edge of Oronoque school district, north side of the first creek, on the west side of highway, two houses, H. T. BENNETT and A. K. BLAKEMAN. Both of these houses are on the old farm which extended southward to the creek, or brook. H. T. BENNETT is where CHARLES HAWLEY lived and died. The old house of EDWARD HAWLEY stood where A. H. BLAKEMAN'S house stands. The houses are 8 or 10 rods apart. They are very beautifully located. The lot east of the highway is level and on a bluff at the river, but it did not originally belong to the HAWLEY family. CHARLES HAWLEY owned a part of it on the south end. There is a bend in the river, more than your map shows. From either of the houses one can see down the river to the sound. It is 3½ miles to Stratford church. The CHARLES HAWLEY house is about 15 rods from the shore southeast, but, owing to the bend in the river, it is considerably farther directly east. Both houses stand 25 feet or more above the level of the river.

I found Mr. BIRDSEY BOOTH this morning, who has always (for 60 years) lived adjoining the HAWLEY homestead on the south. He knew CHARLES HAWLEY and LEWIS and PRILE well, so there can be no mistake about the matter.

I found in the deeds that Capt. JOHN and — WELLS bought this farm of RICHARD MILLS, son of SAMUEL, son of RICHARD MILLS the first, of whom JOSEPH HAWLEY the emigrant purchased his first land in Stratford. SAMUEL MILLS bought it of HOPE WASHBURN, to whom, probably, it was first laid out.

I wish you could see the old homestead at Oronoque.

Very respectfully,

SAMUEL ORCUTT.

Note 197.—MOSES HAWLEY, No. 5091, son of David Hawley, was born in 1748, in Stratford, removed to Woodbury, Ct., where he married Mary Martin. He served a time in the Revolutionary War, and removed to Bloomfield, Ontario county, N. Y., soon after the year 1800, where he died in 1830.

Note 198.—SILAS HAWLEY, No. 5092, son of David Hawley, married Sarah Nichols, probably of Stratford, Ct., and resided a while in Bethlehem, Ct., removed thence to Canaan, Ct., and afterwards removed to Bloomfield, Ontario county, N. Y. His brother Moses removed thither before him, and the two families lived about two miles apart. The Ontario county land records say, Silas Hawley of Canaan, Ct., bought land in that county in Dec., 1802.

Silas Hawley and his wife died at Bloomfield, nearly at the same time, of some epidemic prevailing through the country at that time, which was very fatal.

Note 199.—DAVID HAWLEY, No. 5094, son of Moses Hawley, resided in Woodbury, Ct., for a time, and may have removed to Canandaigua, where several of his sons settled.

Note 200.—DOCT. ELLIJAH HAWLEY, No. 5181, son of Henry, Jr., married widow Phebe French; her name before the first marriage was Phebe Curtis. She had by her first husband, Thomas C. and Wells French. Doctor Ellijah Hawley settled in Stepany, in the town of Monroe, Ct., on the old road to Bridgeport, about one-fourth of a mile south of Capt. Abel Hawley, and a few rods north of Thomas Hawley, their farms joining. Doct. Ellijah was a practicing physician of good reputation. In 1791 he was appointed guardian to his half-brother, Riggs Hawley, who in after years removed to Augusta, Oneida Co., N. Y., where he died. Dr. Ellijah had a brother,—

EPHRAIM HAWLEY, who does not appear in the table work of this book, because the letter containing the fact was mislaid. In Feb., 1782, Doct. Ellijah Hawley sells land to the Rev. Eliha Rexford, which he says "is bounded partly on land which I have this day sold to my brother Ephraim." The same land was said to be bounded partly on the land of Sarah Hawley, who was the widow of Henry Hawley, Jr., for he died probably in 1779 (See a brief account of this Ephraim Hawley and family among the disconnected families on page 426.)

Note 203.—SALMON HAWLEY, No. 5213, son of Daniel Hawley, was born in Stratford, Ct., in 1755, where he married his wife Jane, whose surname has not been ascertained.

He removed to Winchester, Ct., in 1785, where he built and lived in the first house above the Dugway, on the old Winchester road. This place he sold in 1795, and his name is not found on the tax list of that town afterwards. (See History of Winchester, Ct., 169.)

Note 204.—CAPT. ROBERT HAWLEY, No. 5330, son of Capt. John Hawley, was born in Stratford, 1726; married Anna Beach, and settled in the parish of North Stratford, now Trumbull, Ct. He was a prominent citizen.

May, 1773. This Assembly do establish Robert Hawley to be Captain of the company or trauband in the Society of North Stratford, in the town of Stratford." (See Connecticut Col. Rec., xiv.)

Note 205.—ANNA HAWLEY (BLAKEMAN), No. 5345, daughter of Robert Hawley, married Zechariah Blakeman, 3d, in 1777, a lineal descendant of the Rev. Adam Blakeman, the first minister at Stratford, Ct.

The Connection of the Hawley with the Blakeman Family.

1. BLAKEMAN, REV. ADAM, the first minister at Stratford, Ct., was the son of a private citizen of Staffordshire, England, born in 1598, and was bred at Christ College, Oxford. He entered that institution 23 May, 1617, in his nineteenth year, and wrote his own name, as Savage says (vol. i., 194), "Blakouman, as I saw that he wrote at the University, as he usually did afterwards, though some of his descendants would have it Blakeman." Also, his widow and children wrote the name "Blakeman," as the town and probate records still show.

He, with his wife Jane and his children, except Benjamin, came to America, probably in 1638, and to Hartford, Ct., and, in the spring of 1639, he came with the company to Stratford, Ct., and made the settlement of that plantation. A number of these first settlers had been acquainted in England. Joseph Hawley came earlier from Derbyshire, certainly came to Hartford and thence to Stratford a few years after the others. Mr. Blakeman was a native of Staffordshire, adjoining Derbyshire; preached in Leicestershire, adjoining Derbyshire, and in Derbyshire; and as he had become a dissenting clergyman, was known far and near. William Beardsley and his family were from Stratford-on-Avon, in Warwickshire, a county lying partly between Stafford and Leicester. His family, with those of Richard Harvie and William Wilcockson, received their papers of dismission and emigration at St. Albans, near London, and all, ten in number, with others, came in the ship Planter, in the spring of 1635,* to Boston, or Roxbury, and to Hartford as early as least as 1638. Sergt. Francis Nichols and Moses Wheeler, and probably Robert Seabrook, William Judson, Thomas Fairchild and Thomas Sherwood, came from London; Moses Wheeler being brother-in-law to Mr. Blakeman, for John Blakeman, Adam's son, in his will in 1662, calls Moses Wheeler uncle. Richard Mills, another of the earliest settlers in Stratford, was son-in-law to Francis Nichols, for his son calls Caleb Nichols, son of Francis, uncle. Henry Tomlinson, who came first to New Haven, thence to Milford and thence to Stratford, came from Derby in Derbyshire.

Rev. Adam Blakeman, being a faithful minister of the Gospel and widely known, gave stability and popularity to the plantation, and Stratford grew rapidly, increasing in men of strong and substantial character. Mather, in his Sketches, says of him: "He was a useful preacher of the Gospel, first in Leicestershire, then in Derbyshire; but coming to New England from the storm that began to look black upon him, he was attended with a desirable company of the faithful, who said unto him, 'Entreat us not to leave you, or to return from following after you, for whither you go we will go, and your God shall be our God.'" But Mr. Mather does not say in what year Mr. Blakeman came over, nor by whom he was accompanied. If any of the Stratford settlers were of his parish in England, it is quite probable Joseph Hawley was one, in view of the above facts. Also Mr. Blakeman in his will made, as he says, "Bro. Groves, Bro. Booth and Bro. Hawley" the overseers of his last will.

Of Mr. Blakeman, the much celebrated Thomas Hooker of Hartford, Ct., said: "For the sake of the sacred and solemn simplicity of the discourse of this worthy man, if I might have my choice, I would choose to live and die under Mr. Blakeman's ministry."

Rev. Adam Blakeman's Will.

"I Adam Blakeman of Stratford, in the Colony of Connecticut, though somewhat Cranky in body, yet of good understanding, having taught it to be a Christian duty to set our houses in order in due season for the prevention and avoiding of many inconveniences which might arise in the family and that the heart may be at liberty for better things, and because if it be not done in season, we are often cut short and disabled to do it at all, or through the violence of diseases we do it in haste and without judgment, or not as concerns so weighty a business, though I have not been without a Will for divers years, yet things have altered and I have seen just cause to alter many things, yet now, once again, I have fully declared my mind.

"Impressis. I give and bequeath my soul and body into the hand of my most merciful Savior and Redeemer, by whose merits and satisfaction, though in myself a vile and miserable creature I hope for mercy and Salvation, renouncing all things in me and done by me as dross and dung.

"Item. Because many of God's servants have been falsely accused concerning their judgment of the King-like power of Christ, though I have come to bewyle my great ignorance and weakness in acting, yet I do, and hope I shall through the strength of Christ, to my dying day, adhere to that form of Church Discipline agreed on by the Reverent Elders and Brethren in the year '40 [1640] now in print, and in that truth of God concerning that point left on record by that famous and Reverent servant of God of blessed memory, Mr. Thomas Hooker, in his elaborate work called the Survey of Church Discipline, to which most in all the Churches of Christ then gathered in the Colony gave their consent, as appears in the Reverent Author's Epistle, so at Milford, New Haven, Guilford, and those in the Bay who could not be come at in that stress of time, and I being one who in the name of our Church subscribed that Copy, could never through the grace of Christ see cause to receive any other judgment, nor fall from those principles so soundly backed with Scripture and arguments which none could yet overturn.

"Concerning those worldly goods the Lord hath made me owner of, having given to my sons John, James, Samuel, and to my daughter Mary, such portions at marriage as was able and saw cause, my debts and funeral expenses being discharged, I give my house and land with the appertinences to my dear and beloved wife, with all my goods and chattels I shall be possessed of at death, to maintain herself and those belonging to her comfortably during her life and to dispose of at her death only. Concerning my Books, which I inherited for my son Benjamin, seeing his thoughts are after another course of life, that if his thoughts be not to attend the work of Christ in the ministry, my Will is, if my son Atwater make his son Joshua a scholar and at him for that work, I give unto him my Latin books; if not, they shall be put into my estate and disposed of as my wife and my overseers shall think fit; and I give to Joshua Atwater a horse; and my English books I give to my children and their children, after my wife hath chosen those that she thinks most profitable for her own use. I give to my beloved daughter, Mary Atwater, twenty pounds, to be paid in what goods my wife thinks good and can best spare and as she can. I give to my son John's children ten pounds.

"Item. I give to my two daughters, James' and Samuel's wife, each of them a mare, or if they die, to their children.

"Item. If Deliverance shall return to his . . . and carry himself dutifully toward her and . . . ways and wicked company I give him fifty pounds . . . his mother shall see is good, if not, let him only have . . . shilling; and for the division at White Plains I give him the use that he may have employment and somewhat to live on, but if he offer to sell it I give no such liberty, but I give it to James and Samuel.

"Item. For Benjamin, I leave to his mother to give him more or less, as she shall . . . dutiful and obedient.

"Item. I give to our two . . . servants each a heifer or cow at the end of their . . .

"Item. If my wife die without a Will, what house land . . . and goods shall be left, I give to James and Samuel and . . . viz: To Benjamin, my house, barn and home lot and only barr . . . lot, and the Cove(?) in it is Joseph Blakeman's. To Samuel, my land in the Neck, in the Newfield and the meadow at the wood-end of the common meadow, and to James and Benjamin I give Claphoard Hill and the rest of my meadow to be equally divided. This is in case my wife lie without a will. If she have disposed of it before, I do confirm what she hath done.

"I give my daughter Blakeman [John's widow], if she marry not John Thomas, and shall take her friends' consent [advice] in the match or continue a widow, five pounds.

"I make my dear wife my sole Executor. I would entreat Bro. Groves, Bro. Booth and Bro. Hawley to be overseers of this my Will and helpful to my wife as she shall have need, to each of which I give an English Book. I do join also with them my three sons, James, Samuel and Benjamin.

"Mo. 1, 16, 1665.

"By me, ADAM BLAKEMAN."

Note 212.—EPHRAIM HAWLEY, JR., No. 5468, son of Ephraim Hawley, was born in 1768. No account of him has been obtained, except a story of him as a farmer, and having a barn with a thatched roof, or roof of straw, which becoming old, a new one was needed, and he judged the quickest way and least trouble to get the old roof off was to burn it, and following this idea, burned the roof, and the barn also, as the fire did not stop when the roof only was consumed.

Ever after this he was called "Ephraim the Smart."

Note 213.—DAVID HAWLEY, "Esq.," No. 5472, son of Elijah Hawley, married Polly Bennett, and resided until late in life in Trumbull, Ct. The following notice is from a Bridgeport newspaper:

"Sept. 2, 1878. David Hawley of Trumbull died yesterday at the residence of his son, Julius Hawley, in East Bridgeport, at the great age of 91 years. Mr. Hawley was one of the oldest Masons in the State, and always took much interest in the order, especially in the annual re-unions of the veteran Masons. Ho has always been remarkably healthy and vigorous until within the past year or so, and up to that time did not think a ton-mile walk much of a feat. Ho was seized with a paralytic stroke some months ago, and never recovered from its effects."

Letter of R. B. Lacey, Esq., of Bridgeport, 1839.

"David Hawley, Esq., Trumbull, built his house on the East and West highway, leading from Tashua Episcopal Church to Huntington Centre—locally known as Baldwin Plain—in 1806; occupied it from 1807 to very near the close of his long life. He acquired an education above the average country boy; and in early life was accustomed to go in trading vessels out of Bridgeport to various points, as supercargo, or salesman to assist the captain in disposing of his cargo, in summer—teaching a country district school in the winter. He had quite a reputation as a school teacher, and taught twenty-five or more successive winters. He was a man of commanding size, voice and presence, such as were needed in his time to keep in check the mischievous and sometimes turbulent elements gathered in winter in the country school-house, where the young people of both sexes continued their winter attendance after the age of 20 or 21 years. The writer of this has stood at his knee (about 1824), and read or rather spelled words of one syllable in Webster's spelling-book; and later, about 1829-30, he again taught our school (in north part of Easton), and I well remember the opening day, when he brought with him a tough hornbeam gad—long and slender—too tall to stand erect under the rather low ceiling of a school-house, and as he placed it, remarked he believed in the use of the rod when necessary, but hoped he would have no occasion to use it here. He was a decided Democrat in politics; much in public business; a Justice of the Peace, at a period when it was an honor to have that appointment, conferred as it then was by the State Legislature, of which he was a member from Trumbull in 1846. He was the local magistrate, whose advice and services were constantly in requisition, especially in drawing deeds and wills, and in the appraisal and settlement of estates.

Note 214.—JEREMIAH B. HAWLEY, No. 5527, son of Andrew Hawley, was born in 1774, and married, in 1799, Huldah, daughter of Matthew Barnum of Bethel, Ct. His residence was in Danbury, Ct., and Dutchess County, N. Y., and his family of ten children scattered in many directions.

LEMUEL HAWLEY (5544), his eldest son, removed to Chicago, Ill., and resided with his son Edwin S., where he died April 19, 1887, nearly 92 years of age. He possessed unusual health of body and strength of character. His death was the result of internal injuries received by falling down a stairway, which had he escaped, he might have survived a number of years longer.

EDWIN SMITH HAWLEY (5556), son of Lemuel, is in the real estate business in Chicago, Ill. He began business in Syracuse in 1847, and removed to Chicago in 1852; was burned out in the great fire in 1871, after which he built the Hawley Building on the same site, corner Dearborn and Madison Streets, it being an iron office-building.

He married Rose Reynolds, sister of the first wife of M. W. Fuller, now Chief Justice Fuller of the United States Supreme Court, and has four children.

Note 215.—HON. WILLIAM M. HAWLEY, No. 5531, son of Abraham Hawley, was born in the county of Delaware, N. Y., 13 Feb., 1802. His father, a Revolutionary soldier, from Trumbull, Ct. (see Note 186), was one of the early settlers of that county, a farmer by occupation. His means were limited and he could afford his children but few advantages for education. His first years of study were in the common school, but while very young, a friend of his father lent him Plutarch's Lives, which he read, not only with avidity but understanding, and through his whole life that biographer continued to be his favorite author among the ancient writers. A clergyman in Mr. Hawley's neighborhood, who possessed a very good miscellaneous library for the times, observing the boy's love for reading, kindly offered him the use of his books, which he joyfully accepted, and industriously improved; and perseveringly continuing his studies, he at length acquired considerable knowledge of mathematics, grammar, rhetoric and the English classics.

He early conceived the thought that he should one day become a lawyer, and this idea was the theme of his ambition, the controlling motive of his life.

In 1823 he removed to Almond, Allegany county, N. Y., where he contracted for a piece of uncultivated land, on credit, and immediately commenced clearing it. In the spring of 1824, he was elected one of the constables of that town, and providing himself with proper books, he soon qualified himself for all the duties of that office, becoming, through this method, a kind of legal oracle in the town.

During the first term of court which he attended at Angelica, he entered his name as a law student in the office of the late George Mills, then a leading member of the Allegany bar, and thus while attending other work to maintain himself he studied two years, perfecting himself in that knowledge which in after years so distinguished him in his profession, and soon after he began practice in Justice's court, still continuing his studies, and in due time was admitted to the bar, and immediately opened an office at Almond.

In the fall of 1837 he was induced to make Hornellsville his future residence, where he soon took a high position among the able and distinguished lawyers by whom he was surrounded and controlled a large and lucrative practice.

He was in partnership one year with John Baldwin, whose legal abilities and keen wit distinguished him throughout western New York, and whom Mr. Hawley always held in high esteem. His practice continued to increase, and with unceasing labor and industry he devoted himself to his clients, and thus attained the front rank of his profession, and acquired considerable wealth.

In January, 1846, he was appointed by Governor Wright, first Judge of Steuben county.

In the fall of 1847, he was elected to the State Senate, and was honored with second place on the Committee of Ways and Means, and his name appeared on other important committees during his term.

After being in the Senate of the State of New York, Mr. Hawley never sought for official position, and although fortunate in his financial matters, he continued to practice until within a short time of his death. He died on the 9th of February, 1869, in the 68th year of his age. Some years previous to his death, Mr. Hawley united with the Episcopal Church at Hornellsville, and continued in the unobtrusive observance of religious duties until his death. ("The Bench and Bar," by L. B. Procter, 160.)

Note 215½.—MILES WATSON HAWLEY, LL. B., No. 5540, son of Hon. William M. Hawley, was born at Almond, Allegany county, N. Y., Aug. 30, 1833, attended the central school in Hornellsville, Franklin Academy at Prattsburg, N. Y., and Alfred University. He then attended a full three years course at the State and National Law School at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., where he graduated Aug. 8, 1855, receiving the degree of LL. B.

He was 1st Lieutenant, commanding Co. B., 141st Regiment N. Y. Volunteers, during the war for the Union. He was admitted as attorney and counselor at law in Rochester, N. Y., in September, 1855, and served as Supervisor of Hornellsville for five terms. He has practiced law continually at Hornellsville, N. Y., since the war. He married Laura Van Slyke Gleason, April 30, 1878.

Note 216.—BURTON HAWLEY, No. 5547, son of Jeremiah B. Hawley, married 1st, Abigail Hyatt, of Wilton, Ct., and settled in Utica, N. Y., as a hatter by trade; and 2d, Mary Downer, who was the widow Antisdale of Saugquoit, N. Y. The Utica Observer had the following notice: "Utica loses an other venerable and respected citizen, in the death of Burton Hawley, which event occurred in the city this morning. Deceased was a remarkably active and well-preserved man for his years, up to a few weeks ago. Early this week his symptoms grew more unfavorable, and yesterday it became evident that life hung by a slender thread. Deacon Hawley was a member of the Baptist church, and took a deep interest in that society. He was in the 83d year of his age at the time of his death."

Note 218—EZEKIEL HAWLEY, No. 5621, son of Joseph Hawley, was born in Redding, Fairfield county, Ct., in 1731. "His father,* Joseph, purchased a tract of land in North Salem, N. Y., sometime in the year 1752, in the early settlement of the town, and settled his son Ezekiel upon it, who lived and died there, leaving his son Joel (my father) surviving him.

"Ezekiel Hawley was endowed with a military genius, for among his old papers I find a commission issued to him by a colonial Committee of Safety, bearing date 19 June, 1776, appointing him First Lieutenant of all the forces within the Northern Provinces. He was energetic in bringing into requisition all able-bodied men in his jurisdiction, in accordance with the rules of said committee.

"In 1776, he was elected President of the Committee of Safety, in which capacity he served during the war. At the early stage of the Revolution, Salem was a military post. The inhabitants suffered severely from the Loyalists, as they called themselves, a class decidedly in favor of the Ministerial powers of Great Britain, but by the Whigs were called Tories. These Tories secreted spies, and communicated information to the British, who had patrolling parties within the country, roving about, stealing and plundering from every person they could, if they differed from them in opinion. The county was nearly equally divided, the lower part being occupied by the British, and this afforded ample ground for the Tory Cow Boys to carry on their nefarious brutality in plundering from the Whigs living in the northern part. I remember several families told me, when I was a boy, that their fathers had fed and secreted bands of Tories for the ostensible purpose to catch Old Hawley, as they called him. One man said to his friend, that he would willingly be damned if by that means he could have Old Hawley damned with him. The same man was brought before Old Hawley as President of the Committee, but then he recanted.

"I have in my possession, among grandfather's old papers, inventories and appraisals of large amounts of property confiscated from Tories, which were sold and paid over to aid the cause of freedom."

The following is taken from the History of Westchester County, N. Y., vol. I, 473:

"Prior to 1731, North Salem embraced six miles in length of a tract of land called the Oblong. Upon the 8th of June, 1731, His Excellency, John Montgomerie, Governor of the Province, granted letters patent to Thomas Hawley and Company of all that tract of land situated north of and near unto Long Pond, which is bounded as follows, viz: beginning at Jonab Heeler's northwest corner, and running north seventy-one degrees and a half, containing three hundred and twenty-six acres.' The Oblong, or east patent, was situated on the east side of the town. On the 8th of June, 1749, James Brewer purchased of Thomas Hawley and Company, fifty acres, bounded by the twenty mile line, which he afterwards conveyed to Solomon Close of Greenwich.

"The Hawleys were originally from the town of Redding, in Connecticut. Of this family was Ezekiel Hawley, son of Joseph Hawley, one of the proprietors of the Oblong, in 1754. Ezekiel Hawley was a commissioned officer in Continental service, and Chairman of the Committee of Public Safety; in the latter capacity he served through the Revolution. He died suddenly in 1788, leaving four sons, Ezekiel, Peter, Joel, and David. Joel, the third son, was the father of the present Alfred S. Hawley, who occupies the ancient homestead."

The accompanying engraving represents the old homestead of Ezekiel Hawley, the present dwelling having been built in 1850 on the site of the old one, by the grandson, Alfred S. Hawley, who died in 1883. It is now the home of Alfred S.'s children, the great-grandchildren of Ezekiel Hawley.

Letter of Ezekiel Hawley.

"To the Hon. the Provincial Congress of New York:

The Committee of Salem, in Westchester County, have the unhappiness of having a large number of the inhabitants very much opposed to the measures of the United Colonies, and numbers of them are determined not to comply with nor adopt the doings of the Congress, which makes a great deal of trouble for said Committee. Said Committee have advertised some, obliged others to give bonds—some of one or two hundred pounds, some of whom have forfeited their bonds and run off, and have made considerable cost (one in particular) in sending after him. We desire to know what shall be done with the forfeitures, and likewise how to proceed in taking of it, and how to turn it into money if taken in stock or whatever else, or whether or no we might not take cest of them, to pay us what is reasonable for our time, for we grow weary of being called together to deal with Tories, that has been our whole business ever since we have been formed as a Committee; it has cost me, in particular, not less than six hundred miles riding, and I believe, at a moderate guess twenty or thirty dollars in cash, and I never yet expected pay, but I find I cannot live so, and if the Tories make all the trouble, why ought they not to pay costs? Gentlemen, we only want orders from you to take it. We have sent Mr. Benjamin Chapman, one of the members of this Committee, to you, praying of you to send us some directions on this important affair.

"By order of the Committee.

June 5, 1776.

EZEKIEL HAWLEY,
Chairman."

Ezekiel Hawley to New York Congress.

SALEM, June 22, 1776.

"GENTLEMEN:—As civil and religious privileges all lie at stake, we that are friends, then, desire to lend a lifting hand in trying to preserve them. The Tories grow more and more disaffected, and are daily going off to Long Island—four men last week from my neighborhood; several more from other parts; Captain Theal and his son John, soldier, and Stephen Delancey. Some of them laid under five hundred pounds bonds, and also under the solemnity of an oath; but they regard not anything the Committee does with them, so long as they have their liberty. It is supposed numbers are concealed on Long Island. Please to take it into your wise consideration, whether or not it will not be best to send and purge Long Island. And as I wrote to you a little back by Mr. Chapman, one of the members of Salem Committee, to know what we should do with them that forfeit their bonds, and how we should get pay (as there are since many more), we should be glad of an answer.

"By order of the Committee.

EZEKIEL HAWLEY,
Chairman.

To the Honorable the Provincial Congress of New York."

Note 220.—WILLIAM HAWLEY, No. 5624, son of Joseph Hawley of Redding, was born in Redding, and resided in Redding, Ct., where he was a prominent citizen many years.

"May, 1773. This Assembly do appoint William Hawley of Redding, a Surveyor of Lands in the county of Fairfield." (Colonial Rec., xiv.) He was also representative from the town of Redding, Ct., in May, 1774; October, 1774; March, 1775; and April, 1775.

WILLIAM HAWLEY, JR., No. 5673, son of William, above, was born in Redding, Ct., graduated at Yale College in 1789, studied law with Thaddeus Benedict, Esq., and was admitted to the bar in 1791, and soon after commenced the practice of law at Greenwich, Ct., and subsequently at Redding, where he continued until 1798, when he removed to Woodbury, and there continued to practice until 1803, which he then relinquished for other pursuits, chiefly of a more mercantile character. He was a member of the House of Representatives in 1802 and 1805. (Woodbury History, p. 368.) Later in life he removed to Oswego, N. Y., where all of his children resided.

Note 221.—SAMUEL HAWLEY, No. 5626, son of Joseph Hawley of Redding, Ct., was born about 1741, and in the beginning of the Revolutionary War was a Loyalist or Tory; but seems from the following account to have changed his mind.

The extracts below are from "American Archives," by Peter Force, Fourth Series, vol. vi., p. 471:

"To His Honour Governor Trumbull, Esquire.

FAIRFIELD, May 15, 1776.

"SIR: The declaration of Samuel Hawley, enclosed in Samuel Harding's letter, to which we beg leave more particularly to refer your Honor, contains the most minute account we have yet been able to get of a horrid plot formed by the Tories to co-operate with our enemies to destroy the country. This Mr. Hawley, whom Capt. Harding has encouraged to expect favor, as far as is consistent with the publick safety, is an inhabitant of Reading, of good estate, and appears to be a candid, sensible man, was frank and open in his declaration, seems to be very penitent and willing to submit to anything that shall be imposed upon him. He disclosed the affair voluntarily, without any compulsion, and altogether freely, and seems to rejoice that he is stopped in his course, and appears to be much relieved from the distress of mind the Tories generally labor under. If he might have your Honour's or the honorable Assembly's favor to be improved as a witness, would submit to such bond for his appearance before your Honour, the Superior Court, or any other Court, for his good behaviour and abiding on his own plantation, as your Honour shall order. From the opportunity we have had to become acquainted with his temper and disposition, we think we may venture to recommend him to your Honour's favor, so far at least as to be under bonds for his appearance and good behaviour until the Superior Court, there to give evidence.

"Captain Harding thinks himself bound in honour to make this representation to your Honour; and we think we can freely join, as we trust something effectual will be done now to root out the gang, so that we do not apprehend danger from Mr. Hawley, should he prove to be false in the end, which we can by no means believe. We submit the matter to your Honour's wise conduct; and are, with great truth and regard, your Honour's most obedient, humble servants,

JONATHAN STURGES, SETH HARDING."

"To the Sheriff of the County of Fairfield, his Deputy, or either Constable of Reading, in said County, greeting:

"Whereas the General Assembly of the Colony of Connecticut, at their present session in Hartford, the second Thursday of May, 1776, and now sitting, made and passed the following order and resolve, viz.:

"Whereas information has been given to this Assembly that Capt. Daniel Hill, Lieutenant Peter Lyon and Ensign Samuel Hawley, all of the Eleventh Company in the Fourth Regiment in this Colony, under the command of Gold Sellick Silliman, Esquire, Colonel of said regiment, have, instead of forwarding as it was their duty to do, endeavored to obstruct and embarrass and have, in fact, neglected and refused to obey certain orders given out to said officers by said Colonel, in pursuance of orders from his Honour, the Governor, and Captain-General, sometime in March last, for the purpose of milisting or detaching a certain number in said company to march to New York; which orders said officers have severally contumptuously disobeyed, and greatly obstructed the execution thereof. Whereupon this Assembly order and direct that a precept be issued forth by the Secretary of this Colony immediately, to arrest the bodies of them, the said Daniel Hill, Peter Lyon and Samuel-Hawley, respectively, and them have before this Assembly, to answer to the said information, and further dealt with as to justice appertains; and that Colonel Silliman, with other proper evidences, be also cited to appear, as of record appears."

"These are, therefore, to require you forthwith to apprehend the said Daniel Hill, Peter Lyon and Samuel Hawley, and them have before this Assembly, to answer in the premises, and be dealt with as to justice appertains; and you are to summon Colonel Gold Sellick Silliman, of said Fairfield, in the said County of Fairfield, and to evidence relative to the matter above alleged. Hereof you are not to fail, and make due return.

GEORGE WYLLYS, Secretary.

"Dated at Hartford, May, 1776."

Note 223.—URIAH ROGERS HAWLEY, No. 5691, son of Doct. Joseph Hawley, of Columbus, Ohio. The following obituary notice was published at the time of his decease:

"Mr. Uriah R. Hawley died at his residence, 271 Warren Avenue, Chicago, yesterday morning [no date given] at 2 o'clock, after a brief illness, caused by over-work and exposure. He was born 21 Sept., 1830, in New York City, and came to Chi-came twenty-three years ago from Cincinnati, where he graduated from Woodward College. On the 20th of December, 1871, Mr. Hawley was appointed special agent in the Post Office Department by Postmaster-General J. A. J. Creswell, and was assigned to duty in the West with headquarters at Chicago. At that time the special agents worked independently of each other, submitting their reports to the Chief of the Divisions of the Mail Depredations at Washington. Mr. Hawley possessing more than ordinary ability and an aptitude for his new business, became, in a little time, one of the most efficient officers in the service; and so much confidence was placed in him, that whenever a case occurred in the West which baffled other special agents, it was turned over to him with the remark, "If it can be got at, Hawley is the man to do it." His knowledge of the law, acquired during the occupancy of the position of Clerk of the Superior Court of Cook County, which he held for two terms previous to entering the Post Office Department, was of great benefit to him. His efficiency, energy and success were so great that in August, 1875, when the country was divided into districts by the Post Office Department, he was put in charge of the Northwestern District, with eight subordinates. His responsibility since then has been great, but his executive ability, for which he was noted, enabled him to manage this large territory as well as a single State. The vacancy occasioned by his death cannot be easily filled.

GENEALOGICAL NOTES.

"He married the niece of Senator Sawyer, of Wisconsin. His three children are married. Hattie and her husband are studying music in Italy. Julia is in the post office still, although married, and Edgar is in mail business in Milwaukee."

Note 224.—CHARLES A. HAWLEY, No. 5827, son of Henry L. and Polly M. Hawley, was born in Marshall, Oneida county, 4 June, 1832. When about twelve years of age he removed to Augusta, Oneida county, where he remained in his father's store, and in school at the Augusta Academy, until 1855, when he entered the Freshman class at Hamilton College, from which he was graduated in 1859, being awarded the legal oration. He then entered the law school of the University of Albany, N. Y., graduated therefrom and studied in the office of Hon. Francis Kernan, of Utica, N. Y., and was admitted to the bar in 1860. In the same year he opened an office and commenced the practice of law at Trumansburg, Tompkins county, N. Y., where he remained until January, 1884, when he removed to Seneca Falls, Seneca county, N. Y., and entered into a law partnership with Hon. Josiah T. Miller, then County Judge of Seneca county, which partnership continued until July 1, 1878, when it was dissolved. Since that time he has maintained a law office alone and been engaged in practice at Seneca Falls.

He has never held public office. In 1884, he was elected a member for life of the Board of Trustees of Hamilton College, which position he now holds.

Note 225.—ELIZABETH BOOTH (MINOR), No. 5982, daughter of Elizabeth (Hawley) Boothe, was born in 1641, and married Capt. John Minor of Stratford, Ct., in 1658, at the age of 17 years.

JOHN MINOR succeeded Joseph Hawley the first, as Recorder, in the town of Stratford, in the year 1666, and continued in that office about ten years, or until his removal to Woodbury. He had, as a young man, received some years of education at Hartford, in order to be an interpreter of the Indian language, and for a number of years he served the Colony in that capacity. He became an inhabitant of Stratford, and married there as above, removed with the Woodbury company, or soon after, to that town, where he was among the most prominent citizens until his decease.

The Connection of the Hawley with the Minor Family.

Note 226.—CAPT. JOSEPH HAWLEY, No. 62044, son of Thomas Hawley, was born in Roxbury, Mass., in 1654, and was graduated at Harvard College, in 1674, in a class of three only. In 1675, he was employed by the town of Northampton, Mass., as their school teacher, in which position he continued a number of years. He married Lydia, daughter of Capt. Samuel Marshall of Windsor, Ct., 24 Sept., 1676, and was made freeman Feb. 8, 1678, by taking the freeman's oath.

Under date of "1679, 6th month, 17th day," he was dismissed from the membership of the church in Roxbury, Mass., to the church in Northampton, Mass. In 1682, the town, at a town-meeting, voted to grant him a home-lot of four acres, in accordance with a town law, to encourage new settlers to come into it, and soon their school teacher became a prominent citizen. In 1679, he was elected a selectman, and was their school teacher in 1688. He was made a Lieutenant in the military company in 1687, and Captain afterwards.

He was also a preacher of the Gospel for a time, but relinquished that profession; was much employed in public business, being Representative from Northampton in 1683, 1685 and 1693, and was Justice of the Peace in 1688. (Farmer's First Settlers, 138.)

"At a County Court, held at Cambridge, April 2, 1672, the last will and Testament of the Rev. Mr. Charles Chauncy, late President of Harvard College in Cambridge, being exhibited in Court, was attested on oath by the Worshipful Daniel Gookin, Esq., John Green and Joseph Hawley, and on an inventory of said Estate by Mr. Elnathan Chauncey, one of the executors of his last Will and Testament." (N. E. H. & G. Register, x., 332.)

On 30 Nov., he was made Captain in place of Benjamin Newberry, who was disabled for the projected winter campaign, and on 19 Dec., 1675, in the great swamp fight, the hardest ever known in New England, he was killed with many of the men under him. Note 230.—MAJOR JOSEPH HAWLEY, A.M., No. 6222, son of Lieut. Joseph and Rebecca (Stoddard) Hawley, of Northampton, Mass., was born 8 Oct., 1723, and graduated at Yale College in 1742, a little before he was nineteen years of age; studied law and established himself in his profession in his native town, where he was Town Clerk in 1749, and a Justice of the Peace in 1752, when he married Mercy, daughter of Joseph and Abigail (Lewis) Lyman. They had no children, but brought up a boy named Joseph Hawley Clarke, who died at Springfield, Mass. (For the Lyman family, see Note 126.)

The monument to the memory of Mr. Hawley is in the form of an old fashioned table about three feet high, and four feet long by three wide. The inscription reads:

THIS MONUMENT
ERECTED BY JOSEPH CLARKE TO THE MEMORY OF THE HON. JOSEPH HAWLEY, ESQ.,
WHO DIED MARCH 10TH, 1778,
AGED 64 YEARS.

"On the 21st of March, 1750, the Indians appeared at Colrain [Eastern Vermont] and captured John McConn and his wife. The latter was sacrificed to the early cruelty of her captors on the second day's march. A party of militia, led by Major Hawley of Northampton, started in pursuit, but the enemy were soon at a safe distance, and the troops proceeded no further than Greenfield." (Hist. Vermont, p. 85.)

It appears that thus early Mr. Hawley held a military title, and by it he was always known. He afterwards refused all offers of higher titles, and public offices except Representative.

In 1740 an Association of merchants and others, of Boston and vicinity, was formed to furnish a currency for the benefit of trade and business in general, then greatly depressed by lack of a circulating medium. This institution was called "the Land Bank, or Manufactory Scheme." This "Scheme," after a considerable issue of bills, failed, or rather was suppressed by English authority. In connection with some of the transactions of this Association, the following poetic effusion was discovered and published.* It is here produced because of the high compliment to Maj. Joseph Hawley of Northampton, with others, as being incapable of being turned from rectitude of character under any circumstances.

"When Major Hawley goes astray,
And Otis knows and what to say;
When Gen'l Ruggles falsehood speaks,
And Sampson Stoddard silence keeps;
When Col'el Cotton wins his wager,
And Falter Witt is made a major,
When Col'el Noyes shall keep his seat,
Lord! Banks shall be no more a cheat."

Deficiencies in General History.

History claims great things for herself, and is, perhaps, entitled to a degree of praise for what she tells us about the past; but the facts she does not record, and the characters she wholly neglects and ignores, are a thousand to one to those she mentions. Voluminous as are the records of other times, we should consider them stinted and imperfect indeed, could we see at a glance the unrecorded great events which have transpired, and the unnamed and unknown great characters who have lived on the earth.

It is not an uncommon occurrence that men largely instrumental in producing great and beneficent changes in public affairs "get left," as the phrase is, when history makes up its record. Some accident, some false impression, some oversight or prejudice, some personal bias—modesty, false or true, one side, or brazen cheek on the other, contrives to leave in obscurity a truly worthy name, while another, less worthy, or worthy not at all, is lifted above the horizon, and as years pass, is taken more and more distinctly as the proper representative of an era or an idea.

One of the most praiseworthy employments, therefore, of the historic press and of historical societies, is to rescue from threatened oblivion such important facts and such deserving characters before they are beyond human reach down the ever-rolling river.

Letter of Hon. Charles Francis Adams.

QUINCY, MASS., 8 October, 1848.

Elias S. Hawley, Esq., Buffalo:

DEAR SIR:

It has always been to me a matter of serious regret that so little remains of the personal history of Major Hawley. What appears of his action during the Revolution, has given me a very exalted notion of his character, yet so far as I know, the little tribute paid to his memory in Mr. Tudor's Life of Otis, is the only one now to be found. This ought not to be. I am therefore glad to understand from your letter that you are about to give us something additional. I wish I could help you more, but if nothing else you have my good wishes at least.

The letter to which you refer is not extant so far as I can ascertain. I have of Major Hawley's handwriting only two remnants, one of them a brief note addressed to Mrs. A. Adams, my grandmother, requesting a loan of a law book. The other, a very interesting letter to John Adams, pointing out the policy to be adopted by the Massachusetts delegates in the first congress. Of this letter I will furnish you a copy, if you desire it. It has never been printed.†

* N. E. Hist. and Genealogical Register, vol. xiv, p. 263.

† See fac-simile of the first, and copy of the second, of these letters, on the next page.

All that I know besides, of Major Hawley, is to be found in the journals of the Provincial Congress, which were printed in 1838, and in the late volumes of the American Archives, published by Mr. Force, at Washington. These afford proof of the vigour of his character, and of the great influence which he exercised in the councils of the Patriot Provincial Congress. That he allowed a false delicacy to limit the sphere of his usefulness is the only indication of weakness that I find. Mr. Tudor says of him, that the imputation of selfish views was so insupportable to him, he resolved never to accept of any office whatever. If General Washington and the other patriots of the Revolution had followed such a rule of action, what would have become of the country? Had Major Hawley followed a different system, he would unquestionably have been a very efficient leader in the Congress of the confederation where they very often wanted just such a person, and his name and influence would have remained much more strongly impressed upon the younger generations in Massachusetts than now. The opinion upon which he acted is not uncommon among a very honest and independent class of our citizens, to wit: that the power of affixing a suspicion of wrong motive must be taken away from opponents at all hazards, be it even to the abnegation of the means of extensive usefulness. The foundation of it is fear of unjust censure, a motive which I cannot very highly appreciate. Neither does it seem to me entirely in keeping with the other portion of Major Hawley's character as we see it in the few letters he has left. I therefore hope that in this particular Mr. Tudor may have somewhat misconceived it, and that some other cause operated to prevent him from pursuing the entire career which at one time lay open to him.

I do not know how I got it, but the impression is strong in my mind that the selection of the first delegates to the Federal Congress in 1774, and particularly the nomination of my grandfather, was very much the act of Major Hawley. That he was the guiding spirit in the centre of the province during the whole critical period of transition from colonial to free government is unquestionable. I hope you may find material enough to make the fact fully to appear in the eyes of posterity.

Very respectfully,

Your obed^t serv^t,

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS.

Major Joseph Hawley to John Adams.

NORTHAMPTON, 25 July, 1774.

DEAR SIR: I never received nor heard of your letter of the 27th June last wrote at Ipswich until the 22d instant. Immediately on the receipt of it I set myself to consider of an answer to it. What I first remark is your great distrust of your abilities for the service assigned you. However I say that I imagine that I have some knowledge of your abilities, and I assure you Sir, I gave my vote for you most heartily, and I have not yet repented of it. My opinion is that our Committee taken together is the best we could have taken in the province. I should be extremely sorry that any one of them should fail of going: the absence of any one of them will destroy that happy balance or equilibrium which they will form together. I acknowledge that the service is most important and I don't know who is fully equal to it, the importance of the business ought not to beget despondency in any one, but to excite to the greatest circumspection the most attentive and mature consideration and calmest deliberation, courage and fortitude must be maintained. If we give way to despondency it will soon be all over with us; rashness must be avoided; the end or effect of every measure proposed must be thoroughly contemplated before it be adopted. It must be well looked to that the measure be feasible and practicable. If we make attempts and fail in them, Lord North will call them impudent and futile and the Tories will triumph.

It appears to me, sir, that the congress ought first to settle with absolute precision the object or objects to be pursued as whether the end of all shall be the repeal of the tea duty only, or that and the molasses duty, or them and opening the port of Boston or them and also the restoration of the Charter of Massachusetts Bay (for it is easy to demonstrate that the late act for regulation &c. in its effects annuls the whole Charter, so far as the Charter granted any privilege). When the objects or ends to be pursued are clearly and certainly settled, the means or measures to be used to obtain and effect those ends can be better judged of, most certainly the objects must be definitely agreed on, and settled by the Congress first or last.

As to means and measures I am not fully settled or determined in my own mind. It may not be prudent fully to explain myself in writing upon that head; the letter may miscarry.

You are pleased to say that extremities and ruptures, it is our policy to avoid. I agree if any other means will answer our ends, or if it is plain they would not.

But let me say, sir, that with me it is settled as a maxim and first truth—that the people, or State who will not or cannot defend their liberties and rights will not have any for any long time, they will be Slaves. Some other State will find them out and will subjugate them.

You say, Sir, that measures to check and interrupt the torrent of luxury are most agreeable to your sentiments. Pray Sir, did any thing ever do it but necessity?

The institution of annual congresses, you suppose will brighten the chain and would make excellent statesmen and politicians. I agree it; but pray Sir, don't you imagine that such an institution would breed extremities and ruptures? It appears to me most clear that the institution if formed must be discontinued or we must defend it with ruptures.

I suggested above that my letter might miscarry, and we don't know when we write to what hands our letters may come. I should therefore be extremely glad to see some or all of the committee as they pass through this county. If there were any hopes of obtaining the favor I would get them all to come through Northampton; it would not be more than twenty miles farther and as good a road. But I imagine they will all pass through Springfield; and the favor I earnestly ask of you Sir, is that you would be pleased to inform me by letter by your post, on what day you expect to be at Springfield—and I will endeavor to see the Committee there altho' I should wait there two or three days for it. Pray Sir, don't fail of sending me this intelligence—you will probably receive this letter on Saturday this week by Mr. Wilde our Post he keeps Sabbath at Boston he commonly comes out on Monday about eleven o'clock. You may find him—or if you have a letter for him to take either at Messrs. Edes & Gills office or at Messrs. Fleets in the forenoon it will probably come safe to me next week on Wednesday. I will prevail with him (if I can) to call on you to take a line from you for me. Information of the time you intend to be at Springfield, I am very anxious to obtain. Pray Sir, oblige me with it.

But as it is possible that I may miss of seeing the committee or any of them, which will indeed be to me a very great disappointment, I ask leave to make myself free enough to suggest the following which if you judge proper I count you should communicate to your Brethren: you can't Sir, but be fully apprised that a good issue of the congress depends a good deal on the harmony, good understanding, and I had almost said brotherly love of its members, and everything tending to beget and improve such mutual affections, and indeed to cement the body ought to be practised, and everything in the least tending to create disgust or strangeness coldness or so much as indifference carefully avoided. Now there is an opinion which does in some degree obtain in the other colonies that the Massachusetts gentlemen and especially of the town of Boston do affect to dictate and take the lead in continental measures; that we are apt from an inward vanity and self-conceit to assume big and haughty airs. Whether this opinion has any foundation in fact, I am not certain. Our own Tories propagate it if they did not at first suggest it. Now I pray that everything in the conduct and behavior of our gentlemen which might tend to beget and strengthen such an opinion might be most carefully avoided. It is highly probable in my opinion that you will meet Gentlemen from several of the other colonies fully equal to yourselves, or any of you in their knowledge of Great Britain, the Colonies, Law, History, Government, Commerce &c. I know some of the gentlemen from Connecticut are very sensible, ingenious, solid men—who will go from New York I have not heard, but I know there are very able men there and by what we from time to time see in the public papers, and what our assembly and committees have received from the assemblies and committees of the more southern colonies we must be satisfied that they have men of as much sense and literature as any we can or ever could boast of. But enough of this sort and I ask pardon that I have said so much of it.

Another thing I beg leave just to hint, that it is very likely you may meet divers gentlemen in Congress who are of Dutch or Scotch or Irish extract—many more there are in those Southern Colonies of those descents, than in these New England Colonies, and many of them very worthy, learned men. Query therefore whether prudence would not direct that everything should be very cautiously avoided which could give the least umbrage, disgust or affront to any of such pedigree; for as "of every nation and blood he that feareth God and worketh righteousness is accepted of Him," so they ought to be of us. Small things may have important effects in such a business; that which disparages our family ancestors or nation is apt to stick by us, if cast up in Company, and their blood you will find is as warm as ours.

One thing I want that the Southern Gentlemen should be deeply impressed with that is that all acts of British Legislation which influence and affect our internal polity, are as absolutely repugnant to Liberty and the idea of our being a free people as Taxation or Revenue Acts. Witness the present Regulation act for this province, and if we should not be subdued by what is done already, like acts will undoubtedly be made for other Colonies. I expect nothing but new Treasons, new Felonies, new Misprisions, new Praemunires, & not to say the Lord, the Devil knows what.

Pray Sir, let Mr. Samuel Adams know that our top Tories here give out most confidently that he will certainly be took up before the Congress. I am timid not with regard to myself and friend, but I am satisfied that they have such advice from head quarters. Please to give my hearty regards to him, the speaker & all the gentlemen of the Congress, and I beg neither of them would on any account make default, if they do there will be great searching of heart. You may all manage the journey so that it will be pleasant and very much serve your health, and that God would bless you all, is the most fervent prayer of Sir, your hearty friend and most obedient servant,

JOSEPH HAWLEY.

John Adams, Esq.

Pray Sir don't fail of acquainting me when you shall be in our county. J. H.

John Adams to Major Joseph Hawley.

The following interesting letter, never before published, from John Adams to Major Joseph Hawley, and which elicited from Major Hawley the reply printed above, is in possession of Mr. Charles Lyman Shaw:

"What measures are practicable and expedient? The sentiments of people are as various as the color of their clothes. Some are for petitions to the King, the Lords, the Commons. Some for all, some for none. Some are for bolder counsels. Others are for bold and spirited resolutions; some for economy, simplicity, frugality and non-impertation, for American manufactures, companies for the encouragement of the Arts, manufactures and commerce, etc. It seems to me that the ideas of empire and negotiation are prevalent. I wish they were less so. It should be a principal object of our policy to avoid enmities and ruptures. The decision would cost too dear a price and would be more than hazardous, it would be attended with almost a certainty of ruin. Measures to check and interrupt the torrent of luxury, if any such are feasible, are most agreeable to my sentiments at present.

"A union of the colonies in sentiment and affection, in heart and hand is of indispensable importance. Every thought and expedient for cementing it ought to be cherished. Virginia and Rhode Island have recommended an Annual Congress. Nothing could be better calculated to strengthen and brighten the chain than this. Such an institution and the very idea of it will have an influence in England and all over Europe. The whole policy and force of the ministry will be bent against it no doubt. But I don't see how it is possible for them to prevent it or to hinder its effect. It would be a seminary of American statesmen, a school of politicians, perhaps at no great distance of time, equal to British Parliament, in wiser as well as better ages.

"I have thrown these thoughts upon paper, without any care, in the hurry of circuit, but I beg your opinion as a very great favor.

"I am, with great esteem and regard,

"Your friend and humble servant,

"JOHN ADAMS.

"Major Hawley."

Extracts from Tudor's "Life of Olin," p. 255.

JOSEPH HAWLEY, JOHN HANCOCK, SAMUEL ADAMS.

"The Legislature of this year (1766) received an accession of three eminent members, who were returned to it for the first time: Joseph Hawley, John Hancock, and Samuel Adams.

"Major Hawley, a representative from Northampton, acquired a very remarkable influence in the public councils. Perhaps Massachusetts can boast of no citizen in all her annals more estimable. He continued in the legislature till 1776, and during that period it has been said, that no vote on any public measure, either was or could have been carried without his assent.

"Joseph Hawley was born in 1723, educated at Yale College in 1742, and followed the profession of the law at Northampton, where he died in 1788, aged 64 years. As a lawyer he was possessed of great learning; able as a reasoner, and a very manly, impressive speaker. He was at the head of the bar in the western counties of the Province; he had studied with diligence the principles of law as connected with political institutions. This had prepared him for a clear perception of the effects that would have resulted from the execution of the ministerial plans against the colonies; and caused him to take the most ardent and decisive part against the Stamp Act, and the whole series of arbitrary measures that followed it. The adherents of the administration dreaded him more than any individual in his part of the country, and as usual, endeavored though most completely in vain, to injure his character. They succeeded indeed, in three official persecutions, in throwing him over the bar, to which he was however soon restored.

"The almost unexampled influence acquired by Major Hawley was owing not only to his great talents, but still more perhaps to his high-minded, unsullied, unimpeachable integrity. His enemies sought to undermine his reputation by calumniating his motives, as was their manner toward every distinguished man on the patriotic side. They said, his conduct was factious and principally ruinous, and that the only object which he and his coadjutors of Massachusetts had in view was to bring themselves into power under a new order of things. The imputation of selfish, serid views was insupportable to a man of his character. He therefore at once resolved, and pledged himself never to accept any promotion, office or emolument under any government. This pledge he severely redeemed. He refused even all promotion in the militia, was several times chosen a Counsellor, but declined; and would accept of no other public trust than the nearly gratuitous one of representing his town. A modest estate which descended to him from his father [a] and uncle, was adequate to support his plain style of living, and he had no desire to accumulate wealth. His character was so noble and consistent, that his fellow citizens reposed unhesitating confidence in his integrity; they believed that all the honours and wealth of the mother country would be insufficient to corrupt him, and while they saw daily that he sought nothing from his own party. His talents, judgment, and firmness came in aid of this reputation for disinterestedness, and gave him on all occasions the power of an umpire. The weight of his character was sufficient to balance all the interest, which several gentlemen of great respectability in the western counties exerted in favor of the administration. The country members especially followed his opinions implicitly, and the most powerful leaders in the Legislature would probably have been unsuccessful, if they had attempted to carry any measure against his opinion.

"The ascendancy which was allotted him by the deference of others, was a fortunate circumstance for his country. Never was influence exercised with more singleness of heart, with more intelligent, devoted and inflexible patriotism. He made up his mind earlier than most men, that the struggle against oppression would lead to war, and that our rights at last must be secured by our arms. As the crisis approached, when some persons urged upon him the danger of a contest so apparently unequal, his answer was, 'We must put to sea; Providence will bring us into port.' [b]

"Major Hawley did not appear in the Legislature after the year 1776, but he never relaxed his zeal in service of his country, and was always ready to contribute his efforts to the public service. By his private exertions, he rendered assistance at some very critical and discouraging periods. At the season when the prospects of the American army were most gloomy, when the Jerseys were overrun, and the feelings of many were on the verge of despondency, he exerted himself with great activity and success to rally the spirits of his fellow citizens. At this time, when apathy appeared stealing upon the country, and the people were reluctant to march on a seemingly desperate service, he addressed a body of militia, to urge them to volunteer as recruits. His manly eloquence, his powerful appeals to their pride, their patriotism, their duty, to everything which they held dear and sacred, awakened their dormant feelings, and excited them to enthusiasm. [c]

"On another occasion he rendered a service of much higher moment, and may be said not only to have prevented, but to have radically destroyed an incipient insurrection. At a time when the burthens and distress of the war had produced great discontent, and even disaffection in some quarters, and Samuel Ely, a notorious demagogue, had by his factious and treasonable efforts gone far to organize in the western part of the State an almost open resistance to the government, delegates from a large number of towns met in convention at Hatfield. The Legislature sent Messrs. Samuel Adams, Stephen Gorham, and General Ward, as commissioners to meet them, and avert if possible the threatened danger. It was a moment of peril and anxiety. Major Hawley was a delegate from Northampton. At the opening of the meeting, the elements of mischief were visible in all their malignity, and seemed ready to burst into open fury. Hawley, with the deepest solicitude, which in great minds is the certain foundation of coolness and self-possession, addressed this convention, consisting of two hundred. His spotless and lofty integrity, before which even the most callous demagogues shrunk unshaken, prepared the way to that triumph which his masterly talents achieved. Argument, satire, pleasantry, alternate appeals to their passions and to their reason, all managed with consummate address and invincible energy, gradually subdued their inflamed, refractory humour, and finally moulded them entirely to his will. They not only renounced all their dangerous intentions, but agreed to sign a humble petition to the government, promising future obedience and praying for an act of indemnity for the past, and to make the victory more complete, and to show the danger was entirely destroyed, they were brought with the exception of five persons, to sign the petition, excluding Ely, the leader of all the disturbance, from the indemnity. [d]

"Major Hawley was a sincerely religious and pious man: but here as in politics, he loathed all tyranny and fanatical usurpation. He was, near the close of his life, chosen into the Senate of Massachusetts. Though he would not have taken the trust at any rate, he seized the opportunity to give his testimony against the test act, which to a recent period was a stain in the constitution of that State. In a letter upon the subject, he asked if it was necessary that he should be called upon to renounce the authority of the King of Great Britain and every foreign potentate? and whether it could be expected that, having been a member of the church for forty years, he should submit to the insult of being called to swear that he believed in the truth of the Christian religion before he could take his seat?"

"With all these powerful talents and noble feelings, he was not exempt from misfortune, that occasionally threw its dark shadows over him. He was subject at particular times to an hypochondriac disorder, that would envelope him in gloom and despondency. At these seasons he was oppressed with melancholy, and would lament every action and exertion of his life. When his mind recovered its tone, the recollection of these sufferings was painful and he disliked to have them remembered.

"Major Hawley was a patriot without personal animosities, an orator without vanity, a lawyer without obsequy, a gentleman without ostentation, a statesman without duplicity, and a Christian without bigotry. As a man of commanding talents, his firm renunciation and self-denial of all ambitious views would have secured him that respect which such strength of mind inevitably inspires, while his voluntary and zealous devotion to the service of his countrymen established him in their affection. His uprightness and plainness united to his ability and disinterestedness, gave the most extensive influence to his opinions, and in a period of doubt, division and danger, men sought relief from their perplexities in his authority, and suffered their course to be guided by him when they distrusted their own judgments or the counsel of others. He, in fine, formed one of those manly, public-spirited and generous citizens, ready to share peril and decline reward, who illustrate the idea of a commonwealth, and who, through the obstructions of human passions and infirmities, being of rare occurrence, will always be the most admired, appropriate, noble ornaments of a free government."

In the same work at page 248 Mr. Tudor says:

"The answer of this House [to a communication of Sir F. Bernard] was made by a committee composed of Mr. Cushing, the Speaker, of course according to the practice of that day, Otis, Major Hawley, Mr. Samuel Adams, Mr. Landers, Colonel O. Partridge and Col. Bowers. Generally speaking, the first three gentlemen, after the speaker, were on all political committees, and also Mr. Hancock. Otis was the chairman, and his zeal, learning and readiness were all in requisition for draughting reports; these were afterwards a little moderated by Cushing, revised and polished by Adams, and decided upon by Maj. Hawley, if necessary, whose opinion and influence were all-powerful in the Legislature.

Again at page 279:

"They [the House] assembled again December 3d, and passed the bill for granting 'compensation to the sufferers, and general pardon, indemnity and oblivion to the offenders' (in the Stamp Act Riots) The members were divided, 53 to 35. Otis, Adams, Hancock, Hawley, etc., being in the affirmative. The House ordered that Major Hawley, Mr. Otis, and Mr. Adams be a committee to prepare a resolve, setting forth the motives which induced this House to pass the Bill for granting compensation, etc., etc., who reported thereon as follows." [Here follows the report.]

Again at page 292:

"The speech of the Governor at the opening of the winter session in 1768, merely related to some boundary line between this province and some of the adjoining ones. The House soon appointed a committee to take into consideration the situation of public affairs. The number and names of this committee will show how much importance was attached to their deliberations. It consisted of the speaker (Mr. Cushing), Colonel Otis, Mr. Adams, Major Hawley, Mr. Otis, Mr. Hancock, Capt. Sheafe Colonel Bowers and Mr. Dexter."

Again at page 312:

"In looking back to this period (the presentation of a series of petitions and remonstrances, friendly and respectful indeed, but most earnest, urgent and unanswerable), the blind arrogance, indifference or ignorance of the British Councils respecting American affairs, seems almost incredible. What must have been the feelings of such men as Otis, Hawley, Adams, Hancock, Cushing, Dexter and others on receiving, while in breathless expectation, the assurance that 'the time was not proper' to present their petition! the gentlemen were too much heated by electioneering disputes to 'pay attention to America,' but he (the agent) would 'watch for an opportunity to throw in their petitions.' How must these men, absorbed in patriotic anxieties, standing on the portentous verge to which they were driven, have read such a communication! with what bitter mortification, what alienating disgust, must they have heard such pretences and excuses for disregarding all their instant appeals and entreaties! How must the inevitable resort to independence for self-preservation, have rushed upon their minds! how vividly they must have foreseen the alternative, that after a few more petitions, remonstrances, and resolutions, 'AFTER ALL, THEY MUST FIGHT.'"

Again at page 342:

"[The House having requested the Governor, at the session commencing the last Wednesday of May, 1769, to remove the armed force "by sea and land out of this port and the gates of this city during this session," etc., etc.] "The answer of the Governor was laconic: 'Gentlemen, I have no authority over his majesty's ships in this port, or his troops in this town; nor can I give any orders for the removal of the same.' Otis and his father, who had been again negatived as a Counsellor, together with Hawley, Hancock, Adams, Pulte and Warren, were the committee for answering this speech. They began by declaring," etc.

Again at page 349:

"Governor Barnard having sent messages on the 6th and 12th July (1769), on the subject of providing funds to discharge the expense of quartering the troops in Boston, [an answer was made by a committee composed of nearly the same individuals as many previous ones which have been mentioned—Colonel Otis, Major Hawley, Col. Williams, Mr. Adams, Mr. Otis, Col. Ward and Mr. Hancock. The conclusion of this message, the last which the House sent to Governor Barnard, is both for style and matter, such as might be expected from the men who prepared it. 'We shall now with your Excellency's leave,' etc.

Again at page 370:

"The Legislature having met at Cambridge, March 15, 1770, an answer was made to a message of the Lieut. Governor in which he called their attention to a disturbance that had taken place in the town of Gloucester.' This answer will be found in the Massachusetts State Papers, p. 203. 'The Committee were Col Otis, Mr. Williams of Taunton, Maj. Hawley, Mr. S. Adams, Mr. Otis, Mr. Hancock and Mr. Saunders of Gloucester.' [J]

Again at page 406, chap. xxv. and onward:

"Though Otis was not a member of the Legislature after 1771, [g] and the motive of giving a sketch of legislative proceedings connected with him has ceased, yet there was one occurrence in 1773, that was of too much consequence to be passed over without at least a slight notice, as it furnished material of the highest value and interest to the Historian, and to every civilian who wishes to investigate the original relations of the English and Colonial governments.

"At the winter session, 1773, Governor Hutchinson, in his speech to the Legislature" attempted to show that the happiness and prosperity of the colonies depended on the continuance of their connection with the parent state. "He invited them to discuss the subject, and challenged them to overthrow the principles that he laid down, to which he thought they must accede, or else claim independence, 'which' he said, 'I cannot allow to think you have in contemplation.' The answer of the House is a profoundly learned and elaborate exposition of the rights of the colonists, under the constitution and the charter, and confutes the whole argument of the Governor. Three weeks afterward, the Governor delivered a long rejoinder and proved 'that he could argue still.' To this speech the council made a short answer; but the House, notwithstanding the regrets which they expressed at the consideration of the questions, showed themselves not loth to continue their refutation. Their reply is even more extended than the former one, descending into some minute details, and proceeding with a more emphatic tone to deny the supremacy of parliament. The first plain avowal of independence by any legislative body in the colonies is to be found in these answers of the house of representatives.

"The speeches and answers that have been alluded to, will be found in the Massachusetts State Papers, from p. 336 to 399. These answers were written by President Adams, though his name does not appear among the committee, as he was not a member of the Legislature. This circumstance was owing to Major Hawley, who proposed to his colleagues that Mr. Adams should be called to join in their conferences; because as Hutchinson had thrown the gauntlet in a very laboured production, it was necessary to use great precaution in answering him. The draught prepared by President Adams was accepted by the committee unanimously."

Again at page 461, in speaking of General Warren, Mr. Tudor says:

"He was one of those persons who saw very early 'that we must fight,' and the impetuosity of a young and gallant spirit made him always ready for the alternative."

Notes to the Extracts from Tudor.

[a] "Joseph Hawley settled in Northampton in 1677, was the son of Thomas Hawley of Roxbury. He was educated at Harvard College. He died in 1711. His children were Lydia, born 1680; Joseph, 1682; Dorothy, 1684; Samuel, 1686; Thomas, 1689; Ebenezer, 1694. Of these four sons, Joseph lived in Northampton; Samuel settled in Hadley or Amherst, where some of his posterity remain; Thomas settled in Ridgefield, Connecticut; Ebenezer lived in Northampton and had no children.

"Joseph Hawley, son of Joseph, who died in 1735, had two children: Joseph, born 1723, and Elisha, born 1726. Elisha was slain in the battle near Lake George, Sept. 8, 1755. He left no children. His brother Joseph was the distinguished Major Hawley, a patriot of the Revolution, &c. He died childless in 1788, and the race came to an end in Northampton."

(MS. Letter from Sylvester Judd, Northampton, Mass., 27 Feb., 1845, to E. S. Hawley.)

[b] The following, taken from a letter of President John

Adams to Mr. Wirt, is highly characteristic of Mr. Hawley and also contains some very interesting notices of other eminent individuals:

"When congress had finished their business," says Mr. Adams, "in the autumn of 1774, I had with Mr. Henry, before we took leave of each other, some familiar conversation, in which I expressed a full conviction that our resolves, declarations of rights, enumerations of wrongs, petitions, remonstrances and addresses, associations and non-importation agreements, however they might be respected in America, and however necessary to cement the union of the colonies, would be but waste water in England. Mr. Henry said they might make some impression among the people of England, but agreed with me that they would be totally lost upon the government. I had but just received a short and hasty letter, written to me by Major Joseph Hawley of Northampton, containing 'A Few Broken Hints,' as he called them, of what he thought was proper to be done, and concluding with the words, 'after all we must fight!'"

"This letter I read to Mr. Henry, who listened with great attention, and as soon as I had pronounced the words, 'After all, we must fight,' he raised his head with an energy and vehemence that I can never forget, and broke out with 'By God, I am of that man's mind.' I put the letter into his hand, and when he had read it he returned it to me with an equally solemn avowal that he agreed entirely in the opinion of the writer. I considered this a sacred oath upon a very great occasion (and would have sworn it as religiously as he did), and by no means inconsistent with what you say, in some part of your book, that he never took the sacred name in vain.

"As I knew the sentiments with which Mr. Henry left Congress in 1774, and knew the chapter and verse from which he had borrowed the sublime expression, 'We must fight,' I was not at all surprised at your history in the 122d page [in Wirt's 'Life of Patrick Henry,' at page 122, Mr. W. reports Mr. Henry's speech (in part) on his famous Virginia Resolutions, and subjoins a note as follows: "There is no longer any room for hope. If we wish to be free—if we wish to preserve inviolate those inestimable privileges for which we have been so long contending—if we mean not basely to abandon the noble struggle in which we have been so long engaged and which we pledged ourselves never to abandon, until the glorious object of our contest shall be obtained—we must fight!—I repeat it, sir, we must fight!! An appeal to arms and to the God of Hosts is all that is left us." "Imagine to yourself," says my correspondent (Judge Tucker) "this sentence delivered with all the calm dignity of Cato of Utica—imagine to yourself the Roman Senate assembled in the Capitol, when it was entered by the profane Gauls, who at first were awed by their presence, as if they had entered an assembly of the gods!—imagine that you heard that Cato addressing such a Senate—imagine that you saw the handwriting on the wall in Belshazzar's palace—imagine you heard a voice as from heaven uttering the words, 'We must fight,' as the doom of fate, and you may have some idea of the speaker, the assembly to whom he addressed himself, and the auditory, of which I was one."] in the note and in some of the preceding and following pages. Mr. Henry only pursued in March, 1775, the vows and vows of 1774.

"The other delegates from Virginia returned to their State in full confidence that all our grievances would be redressed. The last words that Mr. Richard Henry, Sr., said to me when we parted, were: 'We shall infallibly carry all our points. You will be completely relieved; all the offensive acts will be repealed; the army and fleet will be recalled, and Britain will give up her foolish project.'

"Washington only was in doubt. He never spoke in public. In private he joined with those who advocated a non-exportation, as well as a non-importation agreement. With both, he thought we should prevail; without either he thought it doubtful. Henry was clear in one opinion; Richard Henry, Sr., in an opposite opinion; and Washington doubted between the two. Henry, however, appeared in the end to be exactly right."

GENEALOGICAL NOTES.

Sparks, vol. 2, p. 405, occurs a letter written by John Augustin Washington to his brother George, to which is appended the following note on the same page, dated Richmond, 25 March, 1775:

"Washington was now attending the second Virginia Convention, which met at Richmond on the 20th of March. At this convention Patrick Henry introduced resolutions for putting the colony in a state of defence, and embodying arms and disciplining a sufficient number of men for that purpose. This was considered a bold measure and was opposed by some of the ablest patriots in the assembly. It was on this occasion and in defence of his resolutions, that Mr. Henry uttered his memorable declaration, 'We must fight! I repeat it, sir, we must fight! An appeal to arms and the God of Hosts is all that is left to us.' The resolutions were carried and a plan adopted for putting them in execution. Washington was one of the committee for drafting and reporting the plan.

"In connexion with the above declaration of Patrick Henry, it is proper to state that the expression 'We must fight' was used four months previously by the ardent patriot Major Hawley of Massachusetts in a letter to Mr. John Adams, which Mr. Adams showed to Mr. Henry while they were together in the first congress. ('Tudor's 'Life of Otis,' page 256.)"

[c] In the "Life and Writings of Washington," by Sparks, vol. iii. p. 437, occurs a letter, dated New York, June 24, 1776, from Maj. Gen. Scuyler to Washington, on the subject of the militia, to a part of which is appended the following note, viz:

"The following extract from a letter written to Washington by the ardent and patriotic Joseph Hawley, of Massachusetts, June 21st, relating to the proposed reinforcements of militia, is characteristic of the author:

"The most important matters are soon to be decided by arms. Unhappy it is for the Massachusetts, and I fear, for the whole continent, that at this season we have a numerous assembly. More than one-half the house are no members. Their decisions are most afflictively slow, when everything calls for the utmost ardor and dispatch. The Lord have mercy upon us! This colony, I imagine will raise the men required by Congress, before snow falls, but in no season for the relief of either New York or Canada. Pray Sir, consider what there is to be done. It is my clear opinion, that there will not a single company move in this colony for either of those places these three weeks. I know Sir, it will vex you, but you will not be alone in the vexation. My soul at times, is ready to die within me, at others my blood to press out at the pores of my body. But what shall be the expedients? I never was good at them. If I may say it, I am astonished at the policy of Congress in ordering more regiments here, instead of ordering those which are here, to parts where they are infinitely more needed; but my opinion is little worth. Such as it is, I have given it."

"Again Mr. Hawley pressed this subject, on the 27th of June, and added: 'For God's sake, if it is possible, let all Ward's people be instantly ordered to Canada, or to some place where they are more needed than here. Pray, Sir, consider that they are officered, armed and equipped in all respects. Everything is to be done for the militia. Our people will fight here pro aris et focis: but very few of them, believe me, will be got to Canada this year. I pray your Excellency's pardon for my troublesome repetition of this matter to you. I am here and see the true state and posture of affairs. No place on the continent I conceive is more secure than Boston.'"

[d] To show that the influence exerted by Major Hawley was not confined either to the militia, the popular assembly or the hall of Legislation alone, it is sufficient to adduce the following extract from Sparks' "Life of Washington," vol. iii. p. 488, Appendix. After giving a tabular view of the army:

"An army thus constituted could hardly contain within itself the elements of uniformity or discipline. There was in reality no other bond of union than voluntary acquiescence, and no controlling head vested with any adequate power to maintain authority. By common consent Massachusetts was allowed to take the lead. Not only the usual affairs of the army were administered by General Ward, but courts-martial were held by his order, and punishments inflicted. Experience had proved, however, that the officers were deficient in the requisite qualifications for the rank they sustained, which is not surprising, when it is considered upon what principle the Massachusetts had been commissioned. Several arrests and trials had taken place for misconduct or cowardice, even at the memorable action of Bunker Hill. Two days after he arrived in Cambridge (to take command of the army), Washington received the following impressive letter on this subject, from Joseph Hawley, then a member of the Massachusetts Provincial Congress:

"WATERTOWN, 5 July, 1775.

"SIR:

"You were pleased the other day to mention to Col. Warren and me as your opinion, that it was highly probable Gage's troops would very shortly attack our army in some part or other. I believe your opinion is not ill founded, and I am sure your Excellency will be pleased with every intimation, that may in any degree aid you in the choice of measures tending to success and victory. Therefore, that I may not be tedious, I ask your pardon when I suggest, that although in the Massachusetts part of the army, there are divers brave and intrepid officers, yet there are too many, and even several colonels, whose characters, to say the least, are very equivocal with respect to courage. There is much more cause to fear that the officers will fail in a day of trial, than the privates. I may venture to say, that if the officers will do their duty, there is no fear of the soldiery.

"I therefore most humbly propose to your consideration, the propriety and advantage of your making immediately a most solemn and peremptory declaration, to all the officers of the army, in general orders or otherwise as your wisdom shall direct, assuring them that every officer, who in the Day of Battle shall fully do his duty, shall not fail of your kindest notices and highest marks of your favour; but on the other hand, that every officer, who on such a day shall act the poltroon, dishonour his General, and by failing of his duty, betray his country, shall infallibly meet his deserts, whatever his rank, connexions or interests may be, and that no intercessions on his behalf will be likely to be of any avail for his pardon.

"I know that your Excellency is able to form a declaration of the kind conceived in such style, and replete with such determined sentiments and spirit, as cannot fail of begetting a full belief and persuasion in the hearts of such to whom it shall be addressed, that the same will be infallibly executed. I am almost certain the measure will have the happiest tendency.

Sed sapienti verbum est ad.

"Pray pardon my prolixity. I never was happy enough to be concise. I am, with the greatest respect and deference, your Excellency's most obedient, humble servant,

JOSEPH HAWLEY.

"To General Washington."

"It was no doubt in consequence of this suggestion and advice, that the following order was issued on the 7th of July, after approving the decision of the Court in the case of Captain John Callouder:

"The General having made all due inquiries and maturely considered this matter, is led to the above determination, not only from the particular guilt of Captain Callouder but the fatal consequences of such conduct to the army, and the cause of America. He now, therefore, most earnestly exhorts officers of all ranks to show an example of bravery and courage to their men, assuring them, that such as do their duty in the day of Battle, as brave and good officers, shall be honored with every mark of distinction and regard, and their names and merits be made known to the General Congress and all America; while on the other hand, he positively declares, that every officer, be his rank what it may, who shall betray his country, and dishonor the army and his General, by basely keeping back and shrinking from his duty in any engagement, shall be held up as an infamous coward, and punished as such with the utmost martial severity; and no connexions, interest, or intercessions in his behalf will avail to prevent the strict execution of justice."¹

(c) "1763. Although acts for taxes were pronounced null, yet the general authority of Parliament over the colonies had not been denied; but, in some of the pamphlets which were brought to America, it was now advanced that the King by his representative, the Governor, with the council and the house of representatives in each colony, constitute a full and sole legislative power, and consequently the legislative power of parliament must be excluded. In Massachusetts Bay, a representative of one of the towns of the county of Hampshire, an eminent lawyer and highly esteemed [in note, "Joseph Hawley, Esq.,"] made a public declaration in the house, that he knew not how parliament could have acquired a right of legislation over the colonies. In a public town meeting of the inhabitants of Boston, a motion was made, and exceptions being taken to it, because it implied a general independency upon parliament, one of the representatives of the town [in note, "Mr. Samuel Adams,"] undertook to obviate the exception, and concluded in this manner: 'Independent we are, and independent we will be.'

"At first these were said to be bold strokes, and were not pleasing to the greatest part of the people. The newspaper writers soon availed themselves of such examples, and the doctrine became familiar."

(Hutchinson's "Hist. Mass. Bay," p. 264).

In "Franklin's Works" by Jared Sparks, vol. viii. p. 98, is a letter from Samuel Cooper to B. Franklin, dated Boston, 10th November, 1773, in which occurs the following:

"I have the pleasure to find, that a confidence in your abilities and principles is very far from being diminished in our House of Commons, and to assure you that one of the members of this town, Mr. Samuel Adams, a correspondent of Dr. Leis, who had the chief hand in a letter from the House to you, which I perceive by your reply that gave you uneasiness, has lately expressed the warmest esteem of you as an important and thorough friend to the rights of America. This gentleman I regard for his uncommon zeal and activity in support of these rights; but I have repeatedly found occasion in a friendly manner to blame his excessive jealousy, in a cause peculiarly dear to him, which has sometimes led him to treat not in the kindest manner some of its faithful advocates, and particularly Governor Pownall. The speaker and many others in the House are your steady friends, particularly Major Hawley, from Northampton; a gentleman of the law who speaks with uncommon clearness and force, and is behind no man there in point of influence. I mention these things from no other motive than an apprehension, that at your distance from us it might be some satisfaction and direction to you to know them."

In Dwight's "Travels in New England and New York," vol. i. p. 335, let. xxxiii., he speaks of Rev. Mr. Stoddard and his son John Stoddard, and says also:

"The late Hon. Joseph Hawley, grandson of (Rev.) Mr. Stoddard, was one of the ablest, and most influential men in Massachusetts Bay for a considerable period, before the Revolution, an event in which few men had more efficiency. This gentleman was a very able advocate. Many men have spoken with more elegance and grace. I never heard one speak with more force. His mind, like his eloquence, was grave, austere and powerful. At times he was, deeply hypocondriacal."

[f] "1770. Several of the Council in the last election died [in note, "John Hill, Royal Tylor and Benjamin Lincoln, Esqrs.,"] or had resigned [in note, "Gumaliel Bradford and Joseph Hawley, Esqrs.,"] and their places were now filled with others who had the character of moderate men; the rest of the Council were the same persons who had been elected the last year." (Hutch. "Hist. Massachusetts Bay," p. 292).

[g] "1770. Mr. Otis, who for eight or nine years had greater influence than any other member, had been laid aside at the last election for the town, and Mr. Bowdoin had been chosen in his stead; but on Mr. Bowdoin being elected a councillor, Mr. John Adams succeeded him in the House. Mr. Hawley, member from Northampton, was equally, and perhaps more attended to; but Mr. Adams was more assiduous, and very politically proposed such measures only as he was well assured Mr. Hawley would join in."

(Hutchinson, Ibidem, pp. 292, 293).

"1771. The election both of Representatives and Councillors, being annual, the opposition to Parliament in each House became much greater than it was at first on the other side; and this year particularly, except in two or three instances, the new members in the House were in the opposition. Several gentlemen remained in the House, who in common times would have had great weight on the other side;* but now the great superiority in number against them, caused them to despair of success from their exertions, and in most cases they were inactive."

Letter of Major Hawley to Rev. Mr. Hall.

Extract from the "Life and Character of the late Reverend learned and pious Mr. Jonathan Edwards, etc., etc. Northampton, 1804," page 72:

"Many other facts relative to this sorrowful, strange, surprising affair [the dismission of the Rev. Mr. Edwards, from the pastorate of the church at Northampton, which occurred June 22, 1750], the most so doubtless of any of the kind that ever happened in New England, and perhaps in any part of the Christian world, might be related; but as this more general history of it may be sufficient to answer the ends proposed, viz: to rectify some gross misrepresentations that have been made of the matter, and discover the great trial Mr. Edwards had herein, it is thought best to suppress other particulars. As a proper close to this melancholy story, and to confirm and further illustrate what has been related, the following letter from Joseph Hawley, Esq. (a gentleman who was well acquainted with, and very active in the transactions of this whole affair, and very much a head and leader in it) to the Rev. Mr. Hall of Sutton, published in a weekly newspaper in Boston, May 19, 1760, is here inserted:

"NORTHAMPTON, May 9, 1760.

"To the Rev. Mr. Hall, of Sutton:

"REV. SIR: I have often wished that every member of the two ecclesiastical councils (that formerly sat in Northampton upon the unhappy differences between our former most worthy and Rev. pastor, Mr. Jonathan Edwards and the church here) whosoever you were a member,—I say sir, I have often wished every one of them truly knew my real sense of my own conduct in the affairs that the one and the other of said councils are privy to, and as I have long apprehended it to be my duty not only to humble myself before God for what was unchristian and sinful in my conduct before said councils, but also to confess my faults to them, and take shame to myself therefor before them, I have often studied with myself in what manner it was practical for me to do it: and when I understood that you, sir, and Mr. Eaton were to be at Cold Spring at the time of the late council, I resolved to improve the opportunity, fully to open my mind there to you and him thereon; and thought that probably some method might be there thought of in which my reflection on myself touching the matter above hinted at, might be communicated to most if not all the gentlemen aforesaid, who did not reside in this county. But you know, sir, how difficult it was for us to converse together by ourselves when at Cold Spring, without giving umbrage to that people. I therefore proposed writing to you upon the matters, which I had then opportunity only most summarily to suggest, which you, Sir, signified would be agreeable to you. I therefore now undertake what I then proposed, in which I humbly ask the divine aid; and that I may be made most freely willing, fully to confess my sin and guilt to you and the world, in those instances which I have reason to suppose fell under your notice, as they were public and notorious transactions, and on account whereof, Therefore, you, Sir, and all others who had knowledge thereof, had just cause to be offended at me.

*The principal were Israel Williams, John Worthington, John Murray Josiah Edson, Timothy Woodbridge, William Williams, Thomas Gilbert, Edward Hartwell. On the other side the representatives of Boston, together."

"And in the first place, Sir, I apprehend that with the Church and people of Northampton, I sinned and erred, exceedingly, in consenting and labouring, that there should be so early a dismissal of Mr. Edwards from his pastoral relation to us, even upon the supposition that he was really in mistake in the disputed point; not only because the dispute was upon matters so very disputable in themselves, and at the greatest remove from fundamental, but because Mr. Edwards so long had approved himself a most faithful and painful pastor to the said Church. He also changed his sentiments in that point, wholly from a tender regard to what appeared to him to be truth; and had made known his sentiments with great moderation and upon great deliberation, against all worldly motives, from mere fidelity to his great Master, and a tender regard to the souls of his flock, as we had the highest reason to judge. These considerations now seem to me sufficient; and would (if we had been of a right spirit) have greatly endeared him to his people, and made us to the last degree reluctant to part with him, and disposed us to the exercise of the greatest candour, gentleness and moderation. How much of the reverse whereof appeared in us I need not tell you, Sir, who were an eyewitness of our temper and conduct.

"And although it does not become me to pronounce decisively, on a point so disputable, as was then in dispute; yet I beg leave to say, that I really apprehend that it is of the highest moment to the body of the church, and to me in particular, most solicitously to inquire, whether, like the Pharisees and lawyers in John Baptist's time, we did not reject the counsel of God against ourselves in rejecting Mr. Edwards and his doctrine, which was the ground of his dismissal, and I humbly conceive, that it highly imports us all of this Church, most serious and impartially to examine what that most worthy and able divine published about that time in support of the same, whereby he being dead yet speaketh. But then were there things, Sir, especially in my own particular conduct before the first council, which have been justly matter of great grief and much trouble to me, almost ever since, viz: In the first place, I confess, Sir, that I acted very immodestly and abusively to you, as well as injuriously to the Church and myself, when with much zeal and unbecoming assurance, I moved the council that they would interpose to silence and stop you in an address you were making one morning to the people, wherein you were if I do not forget, briefly exhorting them to a tender remembrance of the former affection and harmony that had long subsisted between them and their Rev. Pastor, and the great comfort and profit which they apprehended that they had received from his ministry; for which, Sir, I heartily ask your forgiveness; and I think that we ought instead of opposing an exhortation of that nature, to have received it with all thankfulness.

"Another particular of my conduct before that council which I now apprehend was criminal, and was owing to the want of that tender affection and reverend respect and esteem for Mr. Edwards which he had highly merited of me, was my strenuously opposing the adjournment of the matters submitted to the council for a about two months; for which I declare myself unfeignedly sorry; and I with shame remember that I did it in a peremptory, decisive, vehement and very immodest manner.

"But, Sir, the most criminal part of my conduct at that time, that I am conscious of, was my exhibiting to the council a set of arguments in writing, the drift whereof was to prove the reasonableness and necessity of Mr. Edwards' dismissal, in case no accommodation was then affected with mutual consent; which writing by clear implication, contained some severe, uncharitable, and if I remember right, groundless and slanderous imputations on Mr. Edwards, expressed in a bitter language. And although the original draft thereof was not done by me, yet I foolishly and sinfully consented to copy it, and as agent for the church, to read it, and deliver it to the Council, which I could never have done, if I had not had a wicked relish for perverse things; which conduct of mine I confess was very sinful, and highly provoking to God, for which I am ashamed, confounded, and have nothing to answer.

"As to the Church's Remonstrance, as it was called, which their Committee preferred to the last of the said Councils (to all which I was consenting, and in composing whereof I was very active, as also in bringing the Church to their vote upon it), I would in the first place, only observe, that I do not remember anything in that small part of it, which was plainly decisive of the expediency of Mr. Edwards' re-settlement here, as pastor to a part of the Church, which was very exceptionable. But as to all the residue, which was much the greatest part thereof (and I am not certain that any part was wholly free), it was everywhere interlarded with unchristian bitterness, sarcastical and unmanly insinuations. It contained divers direct grievous and criminal charges and allegations against Mr. Edwards, which I have since good reason to suppose, were all founded on jealous and unfounded mistakes, and so, were really gross slanders; also many heavy and reproachful charges upon divers of Mr. Edwards adherents, and some severe censures of them all indiscriminately; all of which if not wholly false and groundless, were altogether unnecessary, and therefore highly criminal. Indeed I am fully convinced that the whole of that composition excepting the small part thereof above mentioned, was totally unchristian, a scandalous, abusive, injurious libel, against Mr. Edwards and his particular friends, especially the former, and highly provoking and detestable in the sight of God; for which I am heartily sorry and ashamed; and pray that I may remember it with deep abasement and penitence all my days. Nor do I now think, that the Church's conduct in refusing to appear and attend before that council, to support the charges and allegations in the said remonstrance against Mr. Edwards and the said brethren, which they demanded, was ever vindicated by all the subtle answers that were given to the said demand; nor do I think that our conduct in that instance was capable of a defense. For it appears to me that by making such charges against them before the said council, we necessarily so far gave that Council jurisdiction; and I own with sorrow and regret, that I zealously endeavored, that the Church should perseveringly refuse to appear before the said Council, for the purpose aforesaid; which I humbly pray God to forgive.

"Another part of my conduct, Sir, of which I have long repented, and for which I hereby declare my hearty sorrow, was my obstinate opposition to the last Council's having any conference with the Church, which the said Council earnestly and repeatedly moved for, and which the Church, as you know, finally denied. I think I discovered a great deal of pride and vain sufficiency in the Church, and showed them to be very opinionative, especially the chief sticklers, one of whom I was, and think it was running a most presumptuous risk, and acting the part of proud scorners for us to refuse hearing, and candidly and seriously considering, what that Council could say or oppose to us, among whom there were divers in great reputation for grace and wisdom.

"In these instances, Sir, my conduct, and in others (to which you were not privy) in the course of that most melancholy contention with Mr. Edwards, I now see that I was very much influenced by vast pride, self-sufficiency, ambition and vanity. I appear to myself vile, and doubtless much more so to others, who are more impartial; and do, in the review thereof, abhor myself and repent sorely; and if my own heart condemns me, it behoves me solemnly to remember that God is greater and knoweth all things. I hereby own Sir, that such treatment of Mr. Edwards wherein I was so deeply concerned and active, was particularly and very aggravatedly sinful and ungrateful in me, because I was not only under the common ob-igrations of each individual of the society to him, as a most able, diligent and faithful pastor; but I had also received many instances of his tenderness, goodness and generosity to me as a young kinsman when he was disposed to treat in a most friendly manner.

"Indeed, Sir, I must own, that by my conduct in consulting and acting against Mr. Edwards, within the time of our most unhappy disputes with him, and especially in and about that abominable "Remonstrance," I have so far symbolized with Balaam, Aithophel and Judas, that I am confounded and filled with terror oftentimes when I attend to the most painful similitude, and I feebly confess, that on account of my conduct above mentioned, I have the greatest reason to trouble at those most solemn and awful words of our Savior, Matt. xviii. 6: 'Whoso shall offend one of these little ones, which believe in me, it were better for him that a mill-stone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depth of the sea;' and those in Luke x. 16: 'He that despiseth you despiseth me; and he that despiseth me despiseth him that sent me;' and I am most sorely sensible that nothing but the infinite grace and mercy, which saved some of the betrayers and murderers of our blessed Lord, and the persecutors of his martyrs, can pardon me, in which alone I hope for pardon, for the sake of Christ, whose blood, blessed be God, cleanseth from all sin. On the whole, Sir, I am convinced that I have the greatest reason to say as David, 'Have mercy upon me, O God, according to thy loving kindness, according to the multitude of thy tender mercies blot out my transgressions; wash me thoroughly from mine iniquity, and cleanse me from my sin; for I acknowledge my transgressions and my sin is ever before me. Hide thy face from my sins, and blot out all mine iniquities; create in me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within me; cast me not away from thy presence, and take not thy holy Spirit from me; restore unto me the joy of thy salvation and uphold me by thy free Spirit.' (Ps. li. 1-3, 9-12).

"And I humbly apprehend that it greatly concerns the Church of Northampton most seriously to examine, whether the many hard speeches spoken by many particular members against their former pastor, some of which the Church really countenanced (and especially those spoken by the Church as a body, in that most vile "Remonstrance,") are not so odious and ungodly as to be utterly incapable of defence; whether the Church were not guilty of a sin, in being so willing and disposed, for so slight a cause, to part with so faithful and Godly a minister as Mr. Edwards was; and whether ever God will hold us guiltless, till we cry to him for Christ's sake to pardon and save us from that judgment which such ungodly deeds deserve. And I most heartily wish and pray that the town and Church of Northampton would seriously and carefully examine, whether they have not abundant cause to judge that they are now lying under great guilt in the sight of God; and whether those of us who were concerned in that most awful contention with Mr. Edwards, can ever more reasonably expect God's favor and blessing till our eyes are opened, and we become thoroughly convinced that we have dreadfully persecuted Christ, by persecuting and vexing that just man, and servant of Christ, until we shall be humble as the dust on account of it, and till we openly, in full terms, without balking the matter, confess the same before the world, and most humbly and earnestly seek forgiveness of God, and do what we can to honor the memory of Mr. Edwards, and clear it of all the aspersions which we unjustly cast upon him; since God has been pleased to put it beyond our power to ask his forgiveness. Such terms I am persuaded, the great and righteous God will hold us to, and that it will be vain for us to hope to escape with impunity in any other way. This I am convinced of with regard to myself, and this way I most solemnly propose to take myself (if God in his mercy shall give me opportunity) that so by making free confession to God and man, of my sin, and guilt, and publicly taking shame to myself, I may give glory to the God of Israel, and to do what in me lies to clear the memory of that venerable man from the wrongs and injuries I was so active in bringing on his reputation and character; and I thank God he has been pleased to spare my life at this time, and am sorry that I delayed the affair so long.

"Although I made the substance of almost all the foregoing reflections in writing, but not exactly in the same manner, to Mr. Edwards, and the brethren who adhered to him, in Mr. Edwards' life; and before he removed from Stockbridge, and I have reason to believe that he from his great candor and charity, heartily forgave me and prayed for me; yet because that was not generally known, I looked on myself obliged to take further steps; for 'while I kept silence my bones waxed old,' etc. For all these my great sins therefore, in the first place, I humbly and most earnestly ask forgiveness of God; in the next place, of the relatives and near friends of Mr. Edwards. I also ask the forgiveness of all those who were called Mr. Edwards' adherents; and of all the members of the ecclesiastical councils above mentioned; and lastly of all Christian people, who have had any knowledge of these matters.

"I have no desire Sir, that you should make any secret of these letters; but that you would communicate the same to whom you shall judge proper; and I propose, if God shall give me opportunity, to procure it to be published in some one of the public newspapers, for I cannot devise any other way of making known my sentiments of the foregoing matters to all who ought to be acquainted therewith, and therefore I think I ought to do it, whatever remarks I may foresee will be made thereon. Probably when it comes out, some of my acquaintance will pronounce me quite overrun with vapours; others will be furnished with matter for mirth and pleasantry; others will cursorily pass it over, as relating to matters quite stale; but some, I am persuaded, will rejoice to see me brought to a sense of my sin and duty; and I myself shall be conscious that I have done something of what the nature of the case admits, toward undoing what is and long has been to my greatest remorse and trouble, that it was ever done.

"Sir, I desire that none would entertain a thought from my having spoken respectfully of Mr. Edwards, that I am disaffected to our present pastor, for the very reverse is true, and I have a reverend esteem, real value, and hearty affection for him, and bless God that he has, notwithstanding all our former unworthiness, given us one to succeed Mr. Edwards, who as I have reason to hope is truly faithful.

"I conclude this long letter by heartily desiring your prayers, that my repentance of my sins above mentioned may be unfeigned and genuine, and such as God in infinite mercy, for Christ's sake, will accept, and I beg leave to subscribe myself,

"Sir, your real, though very unworthy friend and obedient servant,
JOSEPH HAWLEY."

It is important to present here some extracts from Dwight's "Life of President Edwards," to show the true relation of Major Hawley to the difficulties in the Northampton Church in regard to their pastor, the Rev. Jonathan Edwards, who had been ordained over their church Feb. 15, 1727.

In February, 1749, Mr. Edwards first made known to a committee of his church that he had "had difficulties in his mind for many years past, with regard to the admission of members into the church, who made no pretence to real godliness."

Upon this subject the church and the town were much exercised, and on Dec. 16, 1749, the church voted to call a Council, and among others chose Joseph Hawley to represent them before the council. This position he declined to accept, saying: "That his judgment was so different from that of the church, in those points which were referred to the judgment of the council, that he could not in conscience plead before the Council for those things on which the Church insisted."

The Council was held, and little if any progress made toward a settlement.

On the 20th of April, 1750, a church meeting was held, and Major Hawley submitted a proposition in writing, "That a number of gentlemen, not exceeding seven, ministers or laymen, or both, should be mutually chosen from any part of the country, to come not as sent by their churches, or as an Ecclesiastical Council, but as a number of advisers, to see if they could devise some way in which the Pastor and Church might consist together, notwithstanding their difference in opinion." But the Church determined on a full Council, and appointed "Major Pomeroy, Mr. Joseph Hawley, Lieut. Wright, Dea. Pomeroy, and Dea. Cook, a committee" to represent them before the Council. Of that Council a majority of one, considering "the unsettled and broken state of the Church in Northampton, by reason of a controversy subsisting about the qualifications of full communion in the church," recommended the dissolution of "the relation between Pastor and people;" but the minority presented a strong "protest."

"On Friday afternoon, June 22, 1750, the result of the Council, and the protest of the minority were publicly read to the people assembled in the church, and on the next Sabbath but one, July 1st, Mr. Edwards delivered to them his farewell sermon."

In view of these historical statements of Mr. Edwards, copied mostly from his journal, and the further fact that Major Hawley was subject to seasons of hypochondria, the severe aspersions with which he charges himself appear consistent with an honest, high and noble character, and set forth a life career of singular purity of character and of remarkable, efficient and ennobling service to his fellow men; and if any character connected with our Revolutionary history deserves the title of a "Christian Patriot," Major Hawley is that one.

"1770. Mr. Hawley was a native of Northampton, in the county of Hampshire. His mother was sister to Col. Stoddard, who, all his life, had great influence in that county; and the nephew derived some of his importance from the uncle, but more from his own strong natural parts, improved by a liberal education, and the study and the practice of the law. He had a very fair character as a practitioner, and some instances have been mentioned of singular scrupulousity, and of his refusing and returning fees when they appeared to him greater than the cause deserved. He was strict in religious observances. Being upon his return home from a journey, the sun set upon a Saturday evening, when he was within a few miles of his house. He remained where he was until the sun set the next day, and then finished his journey. He was, however, violent in his resentments. He had been at the head of an opposition to the minister of the town where he lived, and the chief cause of his leaving the town and removing into another colony. In a few years after he made a public acknowledgement of his unwarrantable conduct in this affair, which he caused to be published in the newspapers. This ingenuous confession raised his character more than his intemperate conduct had lessened it. He was subject to glooms, which confined him, and rendered him, while they lasted, unfit for business. Men of this habit, when the glooms are off, frequently go into the contrary extreme; but he always maintained great decency and propriety of behavior, with the appearance of gravity and seriousness, without any mixture of levity or undue freedom. He was more attended to in the House than any of the leaders, but less active out of it. He was sometimes carried by strength of passion farther than he could justify, but had too much virtue to go all lengths, and was the less fit for a complete partisan; and for this reason, probably, he found it necessary to decline the employments and honors offered him, and to retire from business when his popularity was at the highest." (Hutchinson, "Hist. Mass. Bay," p. 295).

The Document, "Broken Hints."

The following is taken verbatim from "Principles and Acts of the Revolution," H. Niles, Baltimore, 1822. (Copy in Mercantile Library Association, N. Y., 1849):

Page 324. "Several of the volumes of the Weekly Register are enriched by the correspondence of Mr. Adams. His letters to the editors enclosing his communication to Mr. Wirt (the elegant author of the sketches of the famous Patrick Henry, of Virginia), inserted in the 14th vol., page 257, et seq., are highly interesting. Mr. Wirt has claimed for Mr. Henry the declaration 'we must fight,' which he (Mr. Adams) had shown to Mr. Henry, written by Major Hawley, of Northampton, Mass., in 1774. "The following, as connected with this subject, cannot fail of exciting the most pleasant feelings in those who delight to trace the first dawnings of our glorious revolution.

EDITOR."

"Extracts of a letter from President Adams to H. Niles, dated Quincy, Feb. 5, 1819:

"DEAR SIR,—I enclose you the 'Broken Hints to be communicated to the Committee of Congress for the Massachusetts,' by Major Joseph Hawley, of Northampton.

"This is the original paper that I read to Patrick Henry in the fall of the year 1774, which produced his rapturous burst of approbation and solemn asseveration, 'I am of that man's mind.'

"I pray you to send it back to me. I would not exchange this original for the show book of Harvard College, and printed it shall be at my own expense in a band bill."

"BROKEN HINTS TO BE COMMUNICATED TO THE COMMITTEE OF CONGRESS FOR THE MASSACHUSETTS.

"We must fight, if we can't otherwise rid ourselves of British taxation, all revenues and the constitution or form of government enacted for us by the British parliament. It is evil against right, utterly intolerable to every man who has any idea or feeling of right and liberty.

"It is easy to demonstrate that the Regulation Act will soon annihilate every thing of value in the Charter, introduce perfect despotism, and render the House of Representatives a mere form and ministerial engine.

"It is now or never that we must assert our liberty. Twenty years will make the number of Tories on this continent equal to the number of Whigs. They who shall be born will not have an idea of a free government.

"It will necessarily be a question, whether the new government of this province shall be suffered to take place at all, or whether it shall be immediately withstood and resisted?

"A most important question this. I humbly conceive it not best forcibly or wholly to resist it immediately. There is not heat enough yet for the battle. Constant and a sort of negative resistance of government, will increase the heat and blow the fire. There is not military skill enough. That is improving, and must be encouraged and improved, but will daily increase.

"Fight we must, finally, unless Britain retreats.

"But it is of infinite consequence that victory be the end and the issue of hostilities. If we get to fighting before necessary dispositions are made for it, we shall be conquered and all will be lost forever.

"A certain clear plan for a constant, adequate and lasting supply of arms and military stores must be devised and fully contemplated. This is the main thing. This I think ought to be a capital branch of the business of Congress, to wit:—to devise and settle such a plan; at least clearly to investigate how such supplies can be extensively had in case of need. While this is effecting, to wit:—while the continent is providing themselves with arms and military stores, and establishing a method for a sure and unfailing and constant supply, I conceive we had best to negotiate with Britain. If she will cede our rights and restore our liberties, all is well—every good man will rejoice; if she will not agree to relinquish and abolish all American revenues, under every pretence and name, and all pretensions to order and regulate our internal policy and constitution; then, if we have got any constant and sufficient supply of military stores, it will be time to take to arms. I can't quit this head—it ought to be immediately and most seriously attended to. It can't be any other than madness to commence hostilities before we have established resources on a sure plan for certain effectual military supplies. Men, in that case, will not be wanting.

"But what considerate man will ever consent to take up arms and go to war, where he has no reasonable assurance but that all must be given over and he fall a prey to the enemy, for want of military stores and ammunition, in a few weeks?

"Either an effectual non-consumption agreement or resistance of the new government, will bring on hostilities very soon.

"1. As to a non-consumption agreement, it appears to me that it ought to be taken for certain truth that no plan of non-importation or consumption of tea, British goods in general, or enumerated articles, which is to rest or depend on the virtues of all the individuals, will succeed; but must certainly prove abortive.

"The ministry will justly call such a plan futile, futile it will turn out; a plan of that sort may safely rest and be founded on the virtue of the majority, but then the majority, by the plan, must be directed to control the minority, which implies force. The plan therefore must direct and prescribe how that force shall be exercised.

"These, again, who exercise that force, under the direction and by order of the majority, must by that majority be defended and indemnified.

"Dispositions must, therefore, necessarily be made to resist or overcome that force which will be brought against you— which will directly produce war and bloodshed.

"From thence it follows, that any non-consumption or non-importation plan which is not perfectly futile and ridiculous, implies hostilities and war.

"2. As to the resistance of the new government, that also implies war; for in order to resist and prevent the effect of the new government, it is indispensably necessary that the Charter government, or some other, must be maintained, constitutionally exercised and supported.

"The people will have some government or other. They will be drawn in by a seeming mild and just administration, which will last a while, legislation and executive justice must go on in some form or other, and we may depend on it they will; therefore the new government will take effect—until the old is restored.

"The old cannot be restored until the council take on them the administration, call assemblies, constitute courts, make sheriffs, etc. The council will not attempt this without good assurance of protection. This protection can't be given without hostilities.

"Our salvation depends upon an established, persevering union of the colonies.

"The tools of administration are using every device and effort to destroy that union, and they will certainly continue so to do. Thereupon, all possible desires and endeavors must be used to establish, improve, brighten and maintain such union.

"Every grievance of any one colony, must be held and considered by the whole as a grievance to the whole. This will be a difficult matter to effect, but it must be done.

"Quere, therefore, whether it is not absolutely necessary that some plan be settled for a continuation of congresses? But here we must be aware that congresses will soon be declared and enacted by parliament to be high treason.

"Is the India Company to be compensated or not? If to be compensated, each colony to pay the particular damage she has done, or is an average to be made on the Continent?

"The destruction of the tea was not unjust. Therefore, to what good purpose is the tea to be paid for, unless we are assured that, by so doing, our rights will be restored and peace obtained?

"What future measures is the Continent to preserve with regard to imported, dutied tea, whether it comes as East India property or otherwise, under the pretence and lie that the tea is imported from Holland, and the goods imported there a certain given day. Dutied tea will be imported and consumed—goods continue to be imported—your non-importation agreement eluded, rendered contemptible and ridiculous—unless all teas used, and all goods, are taken into some public custody, which will be inviolably faithful."

"[The foregoing is a literal copy of the venerable paper before me, except its frequent abbreviation of the and that, with the addition only of a few commas, etc., to make it read.—Ed.]"

From the Boston Patriot.

Messrs. Ballard & Wright:

The enclosed letter from the venerable and patriotic Major Hawley (the author of the book, 'The Broken Hints'), has never been in print. Its publication at this time would perhaps not be irrelevant and would certainly gratify some of your country friends. It was written soon after the adoption of the present Constitution, and shows his opinion of that instrument. It is needless to add that we here think everything from the pen of that great man, deserving of record. HAMPSHIRE.

To the Honorable the Senate of Massachusetts:

May it please your Honors—The intelligence given me by the writ of summons under the hand of the president of the council, that I am chosen a senator by a majority of the votes of the county of Hampshire, affords me a singular pleasure, on two accounts: The one is that an election to that high trust, by a majority of the unsolicited open suffrages of the voters of the county is a genuine proof of the good opinion of the people of my dear county; the other is that fair occasion it gives me to bear a free and public testimony against one part of our glorious constitution. I style it glorious, although I humbly conceive it has several great blemishes, on account whereof it will until corrected, be liable in my poor opinion, to very weighty exceptions; but still it remains glorious on account of the great quantity of excellent matter contained in it. That part of the constitution this event enables me not impudently to except to, is the condition or term, which the constitution holds every one to, who has the honor to be elected a member of the general court of Massachusetts, before he may (as is expressed in the constitution) proceed to execute the duties of his place.

Be the person ever so immaculate and exemplary as a Christian; although he has, in the proper place, that is in the Christian Church, made a most solemn explicit and public profession of the Christian faith; though he has an hundred times, and continues perhaps every month in the year, by participating in the church of the body and blood of Christ, practically recognized and affirmed the sincerity of that profession; yet by the constitution, he is held, before he may be admitted to execute the duties of his office, to make and subscribe a profession of the Christian faith, or declaration that he is a Christian. Did our father-confessors imagine that a man, who has not so much fear of God in his heart as to restrain him from acting dishonestly and knavishly in the trust of a senator or representative, would hesitate a moment to subscribe that declaration? Cui bono, then, is the declaration? This extraordinary, not to say absurd, condition brings fresh to my mind a passage in the life of the pious, learned, and prudent Mr. Jehn Howe, one of the strongest pillars of the dissenting interest in the reigns of Charles the 2d, and James the 2d. The history is as follows: that Mr. Howe, waiting upon a certain bishop, his lordship presently fell to expostulating with him about his nonconformity. Mr. Howe told him he could not have time without greatly trespassing on his patience to go through the objections he had to make to the terms of conformity. The bishop pressed him to name any one that he reckoned to be of weight. He therefore instanced the point of re-ordination. Why pray sir, said the bishop, what hurt is there in being twice ordained? "Hurt, my lord," says Mr. Howe to him, "the thought is shocking—it hurts my understanding. It is an absurdity, for nothing has two beginnings. I am sure," said he, "I am a minister of Christ, and I am ready to debate that matter with your lordship if you please; I cannot begin again to be a minister."

Besides, this term of executing the duties of the place is against common right, and as I may say, the natural franchise of every member of the commonwealth who has not by some crime or delictum forfeited his natural rights and franchises. It moreover reduces the ninth article of the declaration of rights to a mere futility, and in such a connection, it would be for the reputation of the declaration of rights if the same ninth article was wholly expunged. More than that, the said condition is plainly repugnant to the first great article of said declaration; and I am ready to debate that matter with any Doctor, who assisted in framing the constitution, either in convention or without doors. The said declaration of faith to be subscribed, which constitutes the said impolitic and unrighteous condition, will, I believe ever sound in every good ear almost as uncharitably as the Session Justice's famous charge to the standing grand jury. Let us bear them successively:

"I do declare that I believe the Christian religion, and have a firm persuasion of its truth; and that I am seized and possessed in my own right of the property required by the constitution," &c.

"Gentlemen of the grand Jury: you are required by your oath to see to it, that the several towns in the county be provided, according to law, with

'Pounds and schoolmasters,
Whipping posts and ministers.'

"Each containing an odd jumble of sacred and profane, but, to me, the charge jingles best by the constitution of the commonwealth of Massachusetts. I am, may it please your honors one of its senators; and I am strongly disposed, according to my poor abilities, to execute the duties of my office; but by the unconscionable not to say dishonorable terms, established by the same constitution, I am barred from endeavoring to perform these duties. I have been a professed Christian nearly forty years, and, although I have been guilty of many things unworthy of that character, whereof I am ashamed, yet I am not conscious that I have been guilty of anything wholly inconsistent with the truth of that profession.

"The laws under the first charter required of the subjects of that state, in order to their enjoying some privileges, that they should be members in full communion of some Christian church. But it never was required in the Massachusetts Bay, that a subject, in order to his enjoying or exercising any franchise or office, should make profession of religion before a temporal court.

"May it please your honors, we all heard of a lieutenant-governor of the Massachusetts Bay, and some of us have known him very well, who contended long and earnestly that he had a right to a seat in council with a voice.

"I imagine I can maintain a better argument than he did that I have a right to a seat in the senate of Massachusetts without a voice; but at present, I shall not attempt to take it.

"I am may it please your honors, with the greatest respect to the senate, your most obedient humble servant,

JOSEPH HAWLEY.

"October 28, 1780."

The following letters are copied from Peter Force's "American Archives":

Letter of Major Hawley to Gen. Washington.

WATERTOWN, June 21, 1776.*

GENERAL WASHINGTON:

The most important matters are soon to be decided by arms. Unhappy it is for the Massachusetts, and I fear for the whole continent, that at this season we have a large and numerous Assembly. More than one-half the House are new members. Their decisions are most afflictively slow, when everything calls for the utmost ardour and dispatch. The Lord have mercy on us! This colony, I imagine, will raise the men required by Congress before snow falls, but in no season for the relief of either New York or Canada.

Pray, Sir, consider what there is to be done. It is my clear opinion that there will not be a single company move in this colony for either of those places these three weeks. I know, Sir, it will vex you, but your Excellency will not be alone in the vexation. My soul at times is ready to die within me at the delays; at others my blood to press out at the pores of my body. But what shall be the expedients? I never was good at them, but will venture to propose again the same I mentioned in my last, namely, that some, or all of the five Continental Regiments here be ordered to march, without one moment's delay, to Canada or New York, as the exigences require. In such case, they must be paid up their arrears, or nearly. In that way you will in effect, get succours for New York or Canada, or both, from this Colony. Our people are so jealous for their own safety (though you know, Sir, that I judge them at present in very little danger) that they will raise the Militia for their own defence. I beg your Excellency to advert to the proposal for a moment. Our own Militia are as good, for all the intents answered, or to be answered here, by those regiments, as they are. They are much better for Canada or New York than the Militia. They are officered and organized, and well armed; the Militia to be officered, armed and equipped. The differences are too many to be enumerated. If I may say it, I am astonished at the policy of Congress in ordering more regiments here, instead of ordering those which are here, to parts where they are infinitely more needed. But my opinion is little worth; but as it is, I have given it; it may serve as a suggestion.

I am, may it please your Excellency,
Most sincerely yours,

JOSEPH HAWLEY.

To His Excellency General Washington.

Letters of Major Hawley to Elbridge Gerry.

WATERTOWN, February 18, 1776.*

DEAR SIR: I hope you will forgive me if I herein appear indelicate, by attempting to inculcate some things which I hinted to you in the minutes which you was pleased to accept of me, as you was setting out on your journey to Congress. But if you knew the infinite weight they are on my mind, you would not blame me, whether they impressed your mind in like manner or not. One was that the most sensible and effectual care should be taken that a sufficient number of the best of troops should be seasonably marched into Canada, and thorough provision made for their subsistence, pay and clothing, full supplies of artillery, arms and ammunition, that they be sure to repel and overcome all the efforts of the enemy in that quarter the approaching season. Depend on it, that the efforts of the enemy there and at New York the next season will be the greatest and the earliest which they can possibly make. In the year 1760, I am certain that ships arrived at Quebec from England some time in April, and I think as early as the middle of April, if not earlier. If they have any judgment or policy in England, their land forces for the reduction of America will be chiefly employed by the way of Quebec and New York; diversions may be given in other ports, but their main strength will be destined hither. I have no doubt but you are, by this time, fully sensible that the sharpest eye must be unremittingly kept on the people of New York; their manoeuvres and tergiversations exceed the depths of Satan. But I will not school you any longer on this head.

I beg leave to let you know that I have read the pamphlet, entitled "Common Sense," addressed to the inhabitants of America, and that every sentiment has sunk into my well-prepared heart; in short, you know that my heart before was like good ground well prepared for good seed; and without an American Independent Supreme Government and Constitution, wisely devised and designed, well established and settled, we shall always be but a rope of sand; and that well done, invincible. I must not repeat what I said to you of the worthlessness and futility of all paper currency, without such a general, well established and independent government.

Your field of business is immense, and absolutely boundless; but industry, courage, application and perseverance, will surmount everything; some relaxation and exercise is absolutely necessary to maintain health and spirit; but sloth and dissipation, and turning off business to others, and procrastination, if they gain any admission, will be our infallible ruin. I know you will not indulge to them, and I hope none others of your number. Solomon never uttered a truer maxim than you have said "Confidence in an unfaithful man, in time of trouble, is like a broken tooth, and a foot out of joint."

Two things I beg leave to hint; the one is, that it seemed to us here that when Congress, by their late resolve, ordered an appeal from our Admiralty Courts to their honorable body, they did not well consider how dissonant such a mode of trial is from the genius of the times, to wit, by Jury; nor how much it is open to the exception which was made to the Stamp Act, of its exposing and making one of the parties liable to be carried for a trial to any remote quarter or part of the Continent, at the will of a Crown officer. Would it not have been more expedient and constitutional to have ordered the appeal to have been to the Superior Court of the Colony in which the first trial was had? Besides, it seems to bear hard on the maxim, "That the Legislature and Executive ought always to be distinct and diverse."

Secondly, I hope, Sir, you will by no means forget to endeavor that there be the most peremptory and absolute order and injunction on all the generals and officers of the American Army, that quarters for the army, or any part of them, shall in no case be impressed, but by the intervention of civil magistrates, or direction of the Legislature of the Colony. They have again (I suppose through the resentment of Park, the Assistant Quartermaster) quartered a company on Major Thompson, against his will. Our Assembly is so much on the wing, and the active members so generally gone, that it is impossible to make any proper remonstrance thereof to the General.

It is not easy to imagine what a handle such conduct as this gives to the Tories, and how much they rejoice to be able to take such exceptions; besides it is downright and intolerably wrong. It is much more necessary that Congress should make some express order and regulation for their forces in every part, touching their behaviour in this particular, because you know that the Colonies in general and this in particular, are in the hands and power of the army, by reason of the militia being, in a great degree, stripped of their arms and ammunition, for the sake of furnishing the army.

I suggest one thing more, and I have done, to wit: I hope that the next period or term for which the Continental troops will be enlisted, will be three, or at least two years; the disadvantages and risk of their being engaged and held for so short terms, even for but one whole year, are many; at the same time they never will, nor can I say that I desire that they should engage for an indefinite time; but I believe they will after a little while, be willing to engage for two or three years.

My letter is unconnected. I enter matters as they occur, without studying coherence; if you think them of any value, you have full leave to communicate to your brethren in this Colony.

I am, Sir, with great and most sincere respect,

Your obedient humble servant,

To Mr. Gerry.

JOSEPH HAWLEY.

February 20, 1776.*

Pray Sir, will it not be extremely difficult for us to hold on with our defense, and support all our inhabitants without trade? Will people who have been bred and accustomed to trade till they have arrived at men's and women's estate, ever get into any other business? Be sure they never will be dexterous at any other, nor contented; nay, they will be a weight on the community, and a very heavy one too. But if we resolve on independence, what will hinder but that we may instantly commence a trade, not only with Holland, France and Spain, but with all the world, as the government of the new independent state shall permit. Then we shall have done with the unmanageable plans and chimeras of non-importation agreements, which, with non-consumption agreements, never were and never will be kept, and tend inexpressibly to debauch and wickedize a people, by means of the irresistible temptation which trading people will always be under to violate the general agreements, not only for the sake of profits, but really for any reputable subsistence; whereas, the instant you resolve on independence, and give leave to trade, your trading people will immediately fly to it, whatever risks and hazards there may be of losing; and indeed, the greatest part will escape.

Pray consider this matter, with regard to Canada and the Dutch of New York. Will they ever join with us heartily, who, in order to do it, must sacrifice their trade, to which they are so much addicted, and whereby they have always made good profits, and expose themselves to want and beggary? Whereas, the moment that we resolve on independence, trade will be free for them—for the one to France and the other to Holland; to which they always inclined, and would heretofore go at almost as great risks as they will then at first run; then we shall have done with our impracticable associations for non-consumption, the source of infinite feuds and animosity.

Independence, in short, is the only way to union and harmony, to vigor and despatch in business; our eye would be single, and our whole body full of light; anything short of it will, as appears to me, be our destruction, infalible destruction, and that speedily. Amen.

To Mr. Gerry.

JOSEPH HAWLEY.

WATERTOWN, May 1, 1776.*

MY DEAR SIR:—The Tories dread a declaration of independence, and a course of conduct on that plan, more than death. They console themselves with a belief that the Southern colonies will not accede to it. My hand and heart are full of it. There will be no abiding union without it. When the colonies come to be pressed with taxes, they will divide and crumble to pieces. Will a government stand on recommendations? It is idle to suppose so. Will Canada ever join us without Independence and Government? They will not. Can we subsist, and support our trading people, without trade? It appears more and more every day, in the country and Army, that we cannot. Nay, without a real Continental Government our Army will overrun us, and people will, by and by, sooner than you may be aware of, call for their old Constitutions; and as they did in England after Cromwell's death, call in Charles the Second. For God's sake let there be a full Revolution, or all has been done in vain. Independence and a well planned Continental Government, will save us. God bless you. Amen and Amen.

To Elbridge Gerry.

JOSEPH HAWLEY.

WATERTOWN, June 13, 1776.†

DEAR SIR:—Last week I received your valued and much esteemed favor of 25th May, and marked all the contents; and notwithstanding delays and impediments which you mention, I yet flatter myself that your Congress, like the Calvinistick Christian, will go on from one degree of grace to another, till you arrive at perfection. You know that a great part of the pleasures of life arises from surmounting difficulties and overcoming opposition.

You cannot declare Independence too soon; but the Confederation must be formed with great deliberation. When the House here called, last week, for the instructions of the several towns touching Independence, agreeable to the recommendation of the last House (which recommendation you undoubtedly saw in the Watertown newspapers), it appeared that about two-thirds of the towns in the Colony had met, and all instructed in the affirmative and generally returned to be unanimously. As to the other towns, the accounts of their members were, either that they were about to meet, or that they had not received the notice, as it was given only in the newspapers. Whereupon the House immediately ordered the unnotified towns to be notified by hand bills, and in a short time undoubtedly we shall have returns from all; and it is almost certain that the returns will be universally to support Congress, with their lives and fortunes, in case of declaration of Independence.

Yesterday our Assembly resolved the requisition of five thousand men for New York and Canada. The House im-

I am your most assured friend and servant,

Letters of Major Hawley to General Gates.

NORTHAMPTON, August 14, 1776.*

GENERAL GATES: I this minute received your favour of the 10th instant, and carefully mark the contents, and shall, dear sir, do everything in my power as soon as possible to effect what you have been pleased to ask. Your Honor will please to be informed that Number Four is upwards of seventy miles from this place. It is directly counter to the orders of the Council of this Government, that a man should tarry to inoculate. I have been so happy as to effect the march of about seven hundred good men from this county, without any delay for inoculation.

I have the honour to be, with the greatest respect, your most obedient, humble servant,

JOSEPH HAWLEY.

NORTHAMPTON, August 20, 1776.†

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR: As it is proper that you should be made acquainted with the terms upon which all the men under your command have engaged in the service, and as it may have happened that our Council, through the multiplicity of business, may have neglected to transmit to you the resolve of the General Assembly upon which our first recruits for our Army were raised, your Honour will not consider me as officious in sending to you that resolve.

You will observe, Sir, that the non-commissioned officers, as well as the privates, are entitled to a month's advance pay; and I beg leave to inform you that as, in some companies which went from the County of Hampshire, the non-commissioned officers were not appointed when they marched, they have not received any more advance pay than that of private soldiers. That was the case in Capt. Lyman's company, and I take it to have been so in Capt. Gray's. Pursuant to an order-resolve (of which I am not possessed), the commission officers were to have a month's advance pay, which these from this county have generally received.

I have many things on my mind which I want to suggest, but will defer them to another opportunity.

I most heartily wish your Honour health, victory, and on every account, a happy campaign; and have the honour to be with the greatest respect, your most obedient and humble servant,

JOSEPH HAWLEY.

To General Gates.

P. S.—According to your desire, Sir, I have done everything in my power to suppress the pernicious and iniquitous practice of delaying the march of officers and soldiers for the sake of taking the small-pox. Yours, J. H.

NORTHAMPTON, October 6, 1776.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR: I am so well knowing to your humanity and the goodness of your natural temper, as to be assured that nothing within your power necessary to the safety and health of the troops under our command will be omitted. I only beg leave just to acquaint you that from the declarations of officers in your army and people who visit your camps, the country are made vastly uneasy at being informed that there is scarcely any medicines for the sick, and that it is rare that any rations are dealt out to the privates but of meat and bread, or any money paid in lieu of the other articles. They say that there are plenty of doctors, but no medicine. Your Honour knows whether there are any grounds for these complaints, and if there are, whether these defects are chargeable on the Congress, or the neglects, frauds, and dishonesty of such as are employed by them.

I have heretofore suggested to your Honour the speedy need your army will be of snow-shoes; and as every little helps in every case, I mentioned in one or two former letters that I had by accident, in my custody, between fifty and sixty pair of snow-shoes, in good condition, belonging to the States, purchased last winter by Mr. Millin.

I have the honour to be, with the greatest respect, your Honour's most obedient, humble servant,
To General Gates. JOSEPH HAWLEY.

Elbridge Gerry to General Warren.

PHILADELPHIA, July 5, 1776.

DEAR SIR: I have the pleasure to inform you that a determined resolution of the Delegates from some of the Colonies to push the question of independency, has had a most happy effect, and, after a day's debate, all the Colonies excepting New York, whose Delegates are not empowered to give either an affirmative or negative voice, united in declaration long sought for, solicited, and necessary—the Declaration of Independency.

New York will most probably, on Monday next, when its convention meets for forming a Constitution, join in the measure, and then it will be entitled THE UNANIMOUS DECLARATION OF THE THIRTEEN STATES OF AMERICA.

I enclose you a copy of the Declaration for yourself, and another for Major Hawley, and offer you my sincere congratulations on the occasion; and I pray that we may never want the Divine aid, or the spirit and means to defend it.

Yours, &c., ELBRIDGE GERRY.

Excerpt from "Yale Biographies."

At the risk of repeating some facts the following is added from "Yale Biographies and Annals," by Franklin Bowditch Dexter, M. A. (1885), i. 709:

JOSEPH HAWLEY, the eldest child of Lieutenant Joseph Hawley, and grandson of Captain Joseph Hawley (Harv. 1674)* of Northampton, Massachusetts, was born in that town, October 8, 1723. His mother was Rebecca, daughter of Rev. Solomon Stoddard (Harv. 1662).

On leaving College [1742]† he began the study of theology with his first cousin, Jonathan Edwards, Y. C. 1720. He served as Chaplain with the provincial forces on the expedition for the capture of Louisiana in 1745.‡

After this experience he abandoned the ministerial profession, and began the study of law with Phineas Lyman (Y. C. 1738) of Sudbeld. He settled in practice in his native town, as early as May, 1749.

The next year was rendered memorable in Northampton by the dismission of Jonathan Edwards; and Mr. Hawley, though so near a relative, was a principal leader and chief spokesman of the members of the church in compassing this unfortunate result. Ten years later, in 1760, he wrote a remarkable confession

‡ Three thousand two hundred troops, under Gen. William Pepperell, sailed from Boston for Louisiana, on the 4th of April, 1745. On the 6th of May they were joined by a British fleet under Admiral Warrens. The combined forces, four thousand strong, landed in the rear of the town and fort. The French were taken by surprise. A regular siege commenced on the 31st of May, and on the 23th of June the city and fortress of Louisiana and the island of Cape Breton were surrendered to the English. (Loring's "Common School History," 68.)

By the above dates it will be seen that Joseph Hawley was only twenty four and a half years of age, when he sailed as Chaplain on the expedition to Louisiana,—being born Oct. 8, 1723; graduated in 1742, probably in June; studied theology; was elected an occasional Chaplain, and sailed April 4th, 1745.

of this fault in his course (published in Dwight's Life of Edwards, 421-27); in 1762, he was elected a deacon in the church, an office which he retained till his death.

"For the first twenty-five years of his professional life, he enjoyed a very extensive practice, and was justly eminent for fidelity and integrity. For over thirty years (with a few intermissions on account of ill health) he served as a representative in the General Court of the Province. In 1769, he was elected to a seat in the Governor's Council, but declined. During his service in the General Court he was usually a member of all important committees, and was regarded as the pillar of the party of resistance to Great Britain for Western Massachusetts, as was Samuel Adams for the Eastern Section. It has been said, that while in the legislature, no vote on any public measure either was or could have been carried without his assent. The almost unexampled influence acquired by Major Hawley, was owing not only to his great talents, but still more perhaps to his high-minded, unsullied, unimpeachable integrity. ('Life of Otis.')

"He was elected to the first Senate chosen under the Constitution of the State in 1780, but declined to serve.

"While Massachusetts was still a Royal Province, his great influence on the Whig side led to an attempt to silence him as a lawyer. There was printed in the Boston Evening Post of January 5, 1767, a distorted account of a notable trial of certain persons charged with riotous conduct in connection with the Stamp Act disturbances in November, 1765, in which trial Hawley was of the counsel of the defence. He published in the same paper July 6 and 13, 1767, a corrected version of the affair, criticising the action of the Chief Justice in influencing the jury and implying that the Court's sentence was unjustly severe. These articles were produced before the Superior Court at its session in Springfield in September, 1767, and the Court ordered that his name be struck out of the roll of the barristers and attorneys practicing before them; but he was restored at the next term.

"His remarkable foresight in regard to the struggle for independence, is shown by an extraordinary paper of 'Broken Hints,' which he drew up, in the summer of 1774, to communicate to the Massachusetts delegates to Congress; this paper, beginning with the eminent declaration, 'We must fight, if we can not otherwise rid ourselves of British taxation,' is printed at the end of volume nine of John Adams' Works, and is to be read in connection with an earlier letter, on page 342 of the same volume. Twelve other letters of his on the political situation, in 1775 and 1776, are in print, in Ferco's 'American Archives.'

"His townsman, President Dwight (a grandson of his first cousin), says of him, writing in 1796:—

"The late Gen. Joseph Hawley was one of the most influential in Massachusetts Bay for a considerable period before the Revolution, an event in which few men had more influence. This gentleman was a very able advocate. Many men have spoken with mere elegance and grace—I never heard one speak with mere force. His mind, like his eloquence, was grave, austere and powerful. At times he was deeply hypochondriac." "

Hon^{ble} Henry Gardner Esq^r

Note 231.—CAPT. ELISHA HAWLEY, No. 6223, son of Lieut. Joseph Hawley, was born in Northampton, Mass., in 1726, and was the youngest brother of the celebrated Major Joseph Hawley, lawyer, of the same place.

"On the 2d of August . . . , two hundred of the enemy were hovering around Fort Massachusetts (at the western foot of the Hoosac Mountain, about thirty miles west of Deerfield) which was then under the command of Captain, since Colonel, Ephraim Williams. The Indians fired upon a scout from the fort, and Capt Williams with thirty men went out to meet them, but their numbers were so great that he thought it best to return. In that action one Abbot was killed, and Lieut. Hawley and Ezekiel Wells wounded, but not dangerously. This was the last mischief done by the enemy until the year 1755." (See Big. Memoir of the Rev. Jno. Williams: Appendix, 128.)

"Lieut. Hawley, under Capt. Ephraim Williams, at Fort Massachusetts, was wounded in an engagement with the French and Indians, August 2, 1746 or 7, but recovered." (See Henry Trumbull's Indian Wars, 87.)

The first meeting of the proprietors of West Hoosac (afterwards called Williamstown, Mass.), of which there is a record, was held December 5, 1753, by virtue of a warrant issued by William Williams, Esq., of Pittsfield. Previous to this meeting, says Field's "History of Berkshire," the house lots, so called, had been laid out in the north part of the town. They were laid on both sides of a principal street, fifteen rods in width, and a mile and three quarters in length; it being the principal street in which now stand the colleges, chapel and meetinghouse. These lots were 120 rods in length, by 134 in width on the street, containing ten acres each, and were distributed by lot, although not generally occupied by those who drew them. Among those who drew these lots are enumerated, Joseph Halloy, Esq., (Hawley, doubtless) and Lieutenant Elisha Hawley. (See Holland's Hist. Western Mass., ii. 609.)

In the sanguinary battle between the French and Indians on the one side, and the English colonists on the other, which took place near Lake George, N. Y., September 8, 1755, Captain Elisha Hawley was mortally wounded, but lingered until the 24th of the same month, when he died, at the age of 29 years, having passed a short life of activity and peril in the service of his country.

From the Boston Recorder, Feb. 11, 1847:

"The following Record of olden time, and the annexed communication were forwarded by a venerable patron of the Recorder.—EDITOR."

"A. D. 1755, Sept. 24, Capt. Elisha Hawley of Northampton died of grievous wounds received in Bloody Battle fought Sept. 8, 1755, near Lake George, formerly called Lake Sacrament. He died in camp and there lies interred.

An Account of the Battle, by Dr. J. G. Holland."

"The expedition to Crown Point was under the command of Col. Johnson, and it is proper to follow the Hampshire Regiment in its connection with this enterprise. The army having advanced as far as the southern extremity of Lake George, in the latter part of August, awaited the arrival, or construction, of batteaux, to give them a passage to Crown Point. In the meantime, Baron Dieskau, with a large force of French regulars, Canadians and Indians, becoming aware of Johnson's movements, advanced with the intention of attacking Fort Edward, a work erected by the English, and garrisoned by Col. Blanchard's regiment of New Hampshire troops. Arriving in the vicinity of the fort, his Canadian and Indian force was found to be afraid of Blanchard's artillery, and to be in favor of proceeding to Lake George and attacking the main army. The arrival of the French force near Fort Edward was ascertained by Johnson, and, without any idea that they had changed their purpose in order to march against himself, he dispatched one thousand men, with two hundred Mohawks, under Colonel Ephraim Williams, to intercept the path of the force, as it should retire from Fort Edward, without regard to what might have been their success there. This was on the 8th of September, and at this moment, Dieskau was within a few miles of Johnson's camp, and had discovered the advance of the body under Col. Williams. The path of the latter lay through a ravine, peculiarly favorable to an ambuscade, and the French commander seized the opportunity, and laid his plans and made his arrangements admirably. Into this ambuscade, at the distance of only three and a half miles from Johnson's camp, the force under Williams, led by the Mohawks, marched; and although by the imprudence of some of Dieskau's Indians, the attack was precipitated, the English and Mohawks received a terrific fire, and under the worst possible disadvantages for defence. In the endeavor to reach a more elevated position for his troops, Colonel Williams was killed by a shot through the head. His fall produced alarm and confusion, and the whole body broke into a disorderly retreat, pursued and cut down by the closely following foe. The latter part of the retreat was covered by a small force sent out from Johnson's camp. Dieskau was now determined to follow up the impression thus made, by an attack on Johnson's camp, which had been timely fortified by a breast-work of logs. Johnson's force was the heaviest, but Dieskau's confidence in his regular troops overcame his caution, and he pressed on, and commenced the attack. The exaggerated accounts brought to the camp, of the power and ferocity of the French force, intimidated the colonial troops, but they soon entered into the fight with the most gallant and determined spirit, remaining firmly at their posts, and inflicting terrible carnage upon the enemy at every point of attack, until the latter turned in retreat, when Johnson's troops leaped over the breast-works, and pursued them. The fight lasted four hours, and in the pursuit Baron Dieskau was wounded and taken prisoner. The loss in both engagements, on the English side, was 216 killed and 96 wounded. The Hampshire Regiment suffered the most severely of all. Forty-six of the regiment were killed, and twenty-four wounded. The officers killed besides Col. Williams, were Major Noah Ashley, Captains Moses Porter, Jonathan Ingersoll and Elisha Hawley, Lieutenants Daniel Pomeroy, Simon Cobb and Nathaniel Burt, and Ensigns John Stratton and Kenben Wait."

Lake George in 1755.

BY THE AUTHOR OF THIS RECORD, AT THE AGE OF EIGHTEEN YEARS.

"Yet should the stranger ask what love
Of hyacinth days, this winding shore,
Van hills and level steps could tell,
If vocal made by Fancy's spell—
The varying legend might rehearse
Fit themes for high romantic verse.
O'er yon rough heights and moss-clad sod,
On bath the steepest narrow road,
He pencil the hunter's cue to mark
The progress of the clanking bagpipe."
—"Hesperian"—"Laluman," 1859

How broke the morn! a golden flood
Wave after wave swept lake and mountain, (1)
As swift it came o'er hill and wood,
From the dazzling depths of that distant fountain,
Whose flow of full transparent light
Was so divine, so rich, so broad,
So glorious that it might—its might Have issued from the throne of God.

How broke that morn! Lake Sacrament (2)
Amid the sleeping hills was sleeping,
And from its silver surface, sent Bright wreaths of mist, that slowly creeping
From step to step, on high ascended
Till with the clouds their beauty blended,
And there was music too, that stole
Across the waters in its flight
From lake to lake, and filled the soul
With an antold, unthought delight.
Aye, on the shores of Haricun,
Each beautiful bird
Gives utterance to the sweetest tone
Was ever heard.

Those diamond isles! that calmly sleep (3)
Like swans upon the crystal deep—
The Goddess Nature lingered near—
This holy lake one glorious year,
And lingering made, as if in play,
One lovely island every day. (4)
Then with the beauties that she gave,
Spent each on the mirror-wave;
So passing away to other spheres,
She hale them number the days and years.

* Holland's "Western Massachusetts," vol. i. 150.

How broke that morn! but ere the day-gol wheeled
His molten steeds up to the mid-day sky,
He looked upon a bleeding contest-field,
And amid the diemal din, the yell, the cry
Of battle. The hell-armed war-fend rages (5)
In every gorge, where late the morning flower
Had boded, blossomed and blushed, and where fur ages Silence had slept unstartled till that hour.
"Tis ever thus!" man's passions, dire, must spoil
The fairest spot that blooms upon the earth!
The serpent of a thousand folds must coil
Beneath the loveliest flower that nature gives a birth!
But man no demon, when his work was done,
Could snatch all beauty from the Horizon.

How waned that day! a thousand arms
Fell motionless upon the field;
A thousand souls heard death's alarms—
But rather die than yield!
The Indian has gone to his hunting ground,
Where the "good days" last the whole year round.
The Frenchman sleeps with the silent dead;
By his own pure lake his grave was given;
But the cross untouchèd and the prayer unsaid,
He may no hope for a home in Heaven.

Dim twilight came, as ne'er before,
And restèd on that lake and shore.
The stars came forth! but all that night,
A sadness was in their very light.
Yet on that shore there lingered one,
A beautiful dark-eyed girl—alone.
The silver hand across her brow
But half confined those tresses now;
The bodicled robe thrown half aside,
Reveals the form it was worn to hide;
And the sacred wampum, the beads, the brooch,
All—all may notice, but none may touch.
With a restless eye and a busy hand,
She stirred the canoe from that lonely strand—
As it moved away like a water-bird,
The Indian Prophetess was heard.
She wailed the wounded and the dead,
And her chant was calmly and slowly said;
Recounting their deeds and recalling their names,
The thoughts of their glory her soul inflames,
But of all the chiefs who had sank to rest,
She sung at the last, her own the best;
That strain was lost—but her voice once more
Came on the wind as her strength gave o'er,
And these are the lines tradition has brought,
As the last and the only words that were caught.
The echo stole, in its careless flight
From shore to shore, from hill to hill;
And oft on the heath of a summer night
The voice of that echo is audible still.

"Waves, shores, mountains, rest ye!
Lake of Isles, sleep on, sleep on;
Sleep, Minnito's voice has blessed thee; (6)
'Dreams move not my Horizon.' (7)
Tho' spirits may come from their voiceless raves,
And hold their revels upon your waves,
Rest thee! rest, they cannot move thee,
Rest, Minnito yet will love thee!

"Birds, breezes, beauties stay!
Lake of diamonds still sleep on;
Sleep, Minnito's voice doth say,
'Rest thee, spirit of Horizon.'
Though on thy breast is the stain of blood,
Nothing unbolty shall stay in thy flood;
For in ages to come, all who see thee shall wonder,
As they gaze at thy sands through the deeps they lie under! (8)

"And when my destined days are done,
My bark shall sink beneath this wave;
Then rest thee still, my Horizon,
And be at last my grave.
So thousands shall come in after days
On my lonely, beautiful tomb to gaze." (9)

NOTES.

(1) The border of Lake George, like all places surrounded by hills, has a long twilight. The light of the sun appears on the western mountain as the sun rises above the eastern hill, and its travelling gradually down to the water of the lake, as the sun rises, makes morning truly delightful.

(2) A name given by the French, who used its waters, both in Canada and France, for sacred purposes.

(3) There is a species of quartz, very much resembling diamond, found on some of the islands in this lake. They take the name of "Lake George diamond."

(4) The number of islands in the Geneva of America, is three hundred and sixty-five, equal to the number of days in a year.

(5) Referring to the French and Indian wars—in important operations which were carried on in that vicinity. Elisha Hawley, Captain in Colonel Williams' Division, was slain in the battle of September 8, 1755.

(6) Minnito—an Indian Deity.

(7) Horizon—the ancient Indian name of Lake George. It has also been called "Lake of Isles," "Lake of Diamonds," "The Holy Lake," "The Geneva of America."

(8) The water is remarkably clear, as the bottom can be distinctly seen in six fathoms. This is probably the reason why the French called it the "Holy Lake," and used it accordingly.

(9) This prophecy has been fulfilled to the letter!

Note 232.—SAMUEL HAWLEY, No. 62234, son of Capt. Joseph Hawley, was born in Northampton, Mass., in 1686, but no record of his death has been obtained.

The church of Amherst, Mass., was formed November 7, 1739, consisting of sixteen individuals, and among them were David Parsons, pastor, and Samuel Hawley.

On the first of January, 1740, the following, with others, were added: Mehitable Hawley, Sarah Hawley, Rebecca Hawley. (See Holland's "Western Massachusetts" ii. 165.)

Note 233.—REV. SILAS HAWLEY, JR., No. 64284, son of Silas and Elizabeth (Marsh) Hawley, of Amherst, Mass., was born in Amherst, Mass., 15 Aug., 1815; attended the common school a number of years, then "studied some five years in the academies of Holland Patent and Whitesboro," and at the Onondaga Collegiate Institute, all in Central New York. Also studied with the Rev. Stephen W. Burritt, brother of the author of the 'Geography of the Heavens.' He was licensed to preach in the Spring of 1835, and ordained the subsequent year.

The principal places of his pastorate were: Cazenovia, Penn Yan, Phelps and Peckskill, N. Y.; New Bedford, Mass.; Fond du Lac, Wis.; St. Paul, Minn.; and Wyoming, one of the beautiful suburbs of Cincinnati, Ohio.

He married 1st, Melinda Benedict, youngest daughter of Stephen Benedict, Esq., of Sherburne, N. Y., and sister of Hon. Joseph Benedict of Utica, and of O. M. Benedict, a leading member of the Rochester bar. They had three children.

His first wife died at Penn Yan, 23 Dec., 1848, and he married 2d, 24 Jan., 1850, Harriet Joy, daughter of Leander Reddy, and they had two children. She died in Fond du Lac, 24 May, 1857, and he married 3d, 22 May, 1860, Andalusia Gillette, the youngest daughter of Dea. Kirklaid Gillette, and they had one child.

Rev. Silas Hawley was one of the original Abolitionists, and was present at the formation of the New York State Anti-Slavery Society in October, 1835, in Utica and Peterboro, N. Y., and continued in that line to the end.

In the autumn of 1873, Rev. Silas Hawley retired from regular pastoral work, and located at Bever Dam, Wis., where he continued to do evangelistic work. He died 3 Nov., 1888.

A sermon of Rev. Silas Hawley, preached at Cazenovia, N. Y., and other places, was published in 1837, by request of many persons. It is an able discourse, and eloquent in its criticism on that part of the Westminster Confession of Faith, which is under discussion at the present time, in regard to a revision.

ERSKINE, his only son, educated at the Semi-Military Academy at Peckskill, N. Y., enlisted early in the service in the Wisconsin Volunteers, and fought in the ten battles prior to the investment of Vicksburg; was wounded at Vicksburg, and submitted to amputation, his life being despaired of for several weeks.

GENEALOGICAL NOTES.

Note 234.—REV. THOMAS HAWLEY, No. 65764, son of Capt. Joseph, of Northampton, Mass., was born 29 Sept., 1689; graduated at Harvard College in 1709, and was settled as pastor at Ridgefield, Ct., in 1713, but resided at that place a year or two previous to his settlement. He was chosen Register (or Town Clerk) in 1714. The conditions of settlement of the Rev. Thomas Hawley, in Ridgefield, are revealed by the following extract from the Ridgefield Proprietors' Records, now the town records:

"At a Proprietors' meeting held in Ridgefield, January ye twentyeth Anno Domini 1714-15, then voted unanimously (according to former promise), that our present minister, Mr. Thomas Hawley, shall have for himself, his heirs and assigns forever, that part and propriety of land that was reserved by the said Proprietors for a minister, commonly called ye Proprietors Reserve, (being one full twenty-eighth part ye whole Propriety-ship) with all ye individual land already laid out to ye said right for a minister with an equal right and propriety of all undivided land, and all other liberties and privileges with ye rest of ye proprietors and that by virtue thereof he the said Hawley shall be deemed equal in title, confirmation and privilege with themselves.

"A true copy of the Proprietors' Act and Grant as Attest Thomas Hawley, Clerk and Recorder of Ridgefield."

The Ridgefield deed from the Indians, dated Sept. 30, 1708, claims "by estimation twenty thousand acres of land," and hence Mr. Hawley's propriety, or part, was a little over seven hundred acres. He continued to serve the town as Recorder until his decease.

Rev. Thomas Hawley married about 1711, Abigail, daughter of the Hon. Nathan and Hannah (Talcott) Gold of Fairfield, Ct., and had ten children as seen on page 415 of this book. In the division of her father's estate, she, having previously had her marriage portion, received £140. She was born in February, 1687, and died April 17, 1749. Rev. Thomas Hawley died Nov. 8, 1738, aged 49 years.

Note 237.—WILLIAM HAWLEY, No. 66404, son of Thomas Hawley, was born in Ridgefield, Ct., where he was a merchant, and married Catharine, daughter of General Joshua and Ann (Ingersoll) King. Of this General King, Goodrich in his "Recollections," vol. i. 517, says:

"Gen. Joshua King was born at Braintree, Colony of Massachusetts Bay, 24 of Nov., 1758. He entered the army of the Revolution, a mere boy, at the commencement of hostilities between the colonies and the mother country. On the formation of Sheldon's regiment of Dragoons, he was made a cornet and afterwards a lieutenant, in which capacity he continued during the war, ever maintaining the character of a brave officer. Being stationed on the lines of Connecticut and Westchester county, N. Y., he became attached to this part of the country, and after the peace of 1783, he settled in Ridgefield, Ct., in the mercantile business, commencing in company with Lieut. James Dole, of the same regiment, and afterward married the youngest daughter of the late Rev. Jonathan Ingersoll, 18 April, 1784. He was several years a member of the Assembly, and was a member of the Convention of 1818, which formed the State Constitution. He died 13 August, 1839."

ery of a large amount of property which Maj. Joseph Hawley of Northampton as (if I remember correctly) executor of his uncle Ebenezer, gave to that town, without any legal authority or right so to do. But having the whole influence and wealth of the town and county against them, finally, after spending considerable amounts in fees and costs, abandoned the suit.

From Goodrich's "Recollections of a Life Time," vol. i. 519:

"DEACON ELISHA HAWLEY was born March 14, 1750. He was the son of Thomas Hawley, Jr., and grandson of the Rev. Thomas Hawley, first pastor in that place, and one of those who settled it, and who removed from Northampton, where the family had been located since their emigration from England. Elisha Hawley lost his father at the age of fourteen, and four years afterward was drafted for service in the struggle with Great Britain, and was sent to New York for the defence of that city. His regiment was stationed at Corlaers Hook, and the British sent up a part of their fleet to cut off its retreat. The Colonel, however, refused to quit his post without orders from his superior officer. When they were received, their retreat was so hasty as to oblige the men to throw away their muskets and knapsacks. The vigor of our young soldier, with an appreciative sense of their use, allowed him to retain his, which the colonel was glad to share with him, when at night, on the North River, without muskets, they were exposed to the peltings of a violent storm. At day-break next morning, they took up their march for Harlem Heights, out of reach of the enemy. Here they made their first meal on flour cakes baked on the stones in the sun. Young Hawley was next engaged in cutting off the retreat of the enemy from Danbury, where they had been to destroy stores, etc.

"In 1786, at the age of twenty-seven, he was married to Charity Judson of Stratford. They had six sons, two only of whom are living. Shortly after their matrimonial alliance, he and his partner joined the Presbyterian church; he was afterward elected to the office of deacon, which he held during life. Being a man of very temperate and regular life, he enjoyed uninterrupted health, which, with his habits of industry, contributed to give him that vigor of body and mind which made him so remarkable in the latter years of his life. In the summer prior to his death, at the age of ninety-one, he would work nearly all day with his men in the field. It was the desire of keeping himself employed that led to the exposure which caused his death. On a chill October day he accompanied his men to his woods, to direct the cutting of timber, taking with him his afternoon meal, and remaining until the day was far advanced. Here he caught cold from the inclemency of the weather, which resulted in his decease in the following April, 1850.

"Not only was Mr. Hawley active in promoting his own interests, but he showed equal zeal in assisting his neighbors, visiting the sick, and working for the interests of the community in which he lived. His faculties were unimpaired to the last; his retention of memory was such that he would quote passages from Scripture, chapter and verse, and would delight his grandchildren by singing to them the songs of his youth. On the celebration of the Fourth of July, 1839, in his native village, he was called upon to address the people, which he did, directing his conversation mostly to the young, telling them of their responsibilities to God and their country, and that upon them depended its future welfare; winding up with the kindly hint contained in that little verse:

"A little farm well tilled,
A Bible wife well willed,

and closed with singing, in an audible voice, 'Hail Columbia,' etc.

"One of the leading characteristics of his life was his endeavor to follow strictly the golden rule of 'doing unto others,' etc.; and in all his business transactions with his fellow men, his constant exercise of mind was lest he should charge his neighbor more than the article was actually worth.

"In relation to his piety, I quote from the obituary sketch written by Rev. Mr. Clark, of Ridgefield: 'Throughout his whole life he was untiring and assiduous in the performance of every Christian and social duty. He was always abounding in the work of the Lord, whether it consisted in visiting the sick, relieving the poor, promoting peace among his neighbors and brethren, contributing freely to benevolent objects, or in prayers and labor for the prosperity of the church with which he was connected, and Zion at large. The memory of his name will long be fragrant among the people where he lived and died. They feel as if their best friend and counsellor had been taken away, and many acknowledge his influence, under Christ, for their hopes which they are permitted to cherish.'

"Having at one time held the post of chorister in the church, he would often in his old age, in the absence of the leader, set the music for the hymn.

"His widow at the age of ninety-five, lives (1856), and enjoys remarkably good health.

"The children of Deacon Hawley were as follows: Elisha, Judson, Irad, Daniel, Stiles, Channucey. Irad and Judson—now living—have been successful merchants in New York."

Note 239.—REV. STILES HAWLEY, No. 6679, son of Dea. Elisha Hawley, of Ridgefield, Ct., was born in 1799. He was licensed to preach by the New Haven East Association of the Congregational Church in 1827, and was sent as a Sunday-School Missionary to Illinois, where in attempting to cross the Kaskaskia river, he was drowned, January 30, 1830.

The following is the poem of Mrs. Sigourney on the death of this young man:*

"Cold sweep the waters o'er thee!
"Thou hast found,
'Mid all the ardor of thy youthful zeal,
And self-devotion to the Savior's cause,
An unexpected end. The ice-swollen tides
Of the Kaskaskia shall no more rebound
To the wild struggles of thy falling steed,
In the deep plunge that gave thy soul to God!

"Say, in thy journeyings o'er the snow-clad waste
Of yon lone prairie, on that beautiful day
When Death strode by thy side, where roamed thy thoughts?
Upon thine angel mission? or the scene
Of listless home, with all its sheltering trees,
And voice of fateful waters? Didst thou hope,
When Heaven's pure seal should blossom in the wild
Of the far Illinois, once more to sit
Beside its breast-stone, and recount thy tale,
Mingling thy prayers with those who faultily nursed
Thy tender infancy?"

"Now there are tears
In that abode, when'er thy cherished name
Escapes the trembling lip. Oh, ye who mourn
With heavy temples o'er the smitten son,
Stain in his Savior's service, know that pain
Shall never vex him more. Peril and change,
And winter's blast, and summer's sultry heat,
And sinful snare—what are they now to him,
But dim-remembered sounds?"

"If 'twere so sweet
To have a son on earth, where every ill
Might launch a dart against his breast, and pierce
Your own through his, is it not doubly sweet
To have a son in Heaven?"

L. H. SIGOURNEY."

Elisha Hawley, born at Ridgefield, Ct., 11 April, 1793, went to New York in 1807, and in 1812 became a partner in a company as Holmes, Hawley & Co., which continued as a prosperous house in the West India trade for more than twenty-five years. He married Sarah, daughter of Eldad and Lucy (Lockwood) Holmes, 25 Dec., 1819. She was born 24 Dec., 1801, and after her husband's decease, at Rome, Italy, 28 April, 1865, she resided during the summer months in the old homestead at Ridgefield, Ct., which property has been in the family since the first settlement of the town in 1713, the land having been apportioned by the original settlers to the Rev. Thomas Hawley, the first minister of the town.

DELIA A. HAWLEY (BRUSH), No. 1684, daughter of Elias S. and Lavinia H. (Selden) Hawley, married Edward N. Brush, M. D., Sept. 18, 1879, then of Buffalo, N. Y.

Edward Nathaniel Brush was born in Colden, Erie Co., N. Y., in the village of Glenwood, April 23, 1852, and was educated in the public schools of Buffalo, and the Central (now High) School. He read medicine in the office of the late Prof. Julius F. Minor, and attended three courses of lectures in the medical department of the University at Buffalo, taking his degree of M. D. in February, 1874. His thesis for the degree was upon Syphilitic Diseases of the Nervous System, and was published by vote of the Faculty.

Doctor Brush became immediately connected with the Buffalo Medical and Surgical Journal, and was one of its editors until 1879. While in practice in Buffalo he was one of the visiting physicians to the Hospital of the Sisters of Charity, and during the college sessions of 1877-8 and 1878-79, delivered lectures at the Medical College upon Electro-Therapeutics.

In March, 1878, he was appointed 4th assistant physician at the New York State Lunatic Asylum, and soon promoted to 3d, then 2d, and made Superior Assistant in July, 1880. While in his position in the Asylum at Utica, he was one of the editorial staff of the American Journal of Insanity, and contributed original articles and reviews to its pages.

In December, 1884, he resigned the position in the Utica Asylum to accept the position of Senior Assistant at the Pennsylvania Hospital for the Insane, at Philadelphia, in charge of the department for men.

In 1882, Doctor and Mrs. Brush visited England and Scotland, and on their return he wrote "Notes on a Visit to some of the Asylums of Great Britain," which was published in the Journal of Insanity, and also (a translation) in the Bulletin of the Society of Mental Medicine of Belgium.

Since residing at Philadelphia, Doctor Brush contributed to the 4th volume of Wood's Reference Hand-Book of the Medical Sciences (an eight volume Hand-Book!) the article on Idiocy, Imbecility and Cretinism, Epileptic Insanity, Hysterical Insanity and Hysterio-Epilepsy, and on Hypochondriacal Insanity. He also wrote the review of the literature of Insanity (periodical) for the Annual of the Universal Medical Science for 1889, and also is engaged on the same for 1890.

The Gun, of which the above cut is a correct likeness, was found by my grandfather, Amos Hawley (No. 1505), on the battlefield at Saratoga, at the "surrender of Burgoyne," October 17, 1777. My grandfather was there as a soldier in the Connecticut Line of the Continental Army. He took the gun to his home in Farmington, Conn.; and when, in February, 1793, he removed to Saratoga county with his family, my father, Seth (No. 1630), then a lad of 12, took this "fowling-piece" with him, and it has ever since been in the family, and now (1890) is in my possession.

Annexed is a fac-simile of the brass plate inlaid on the upper side of the stock, directly back of the lock, which is as good a COAT OF ARMS as I desire.

It is not easy to acquire distinction nor success, particularly when the start in life is made at great disadvantage; and such was the beginning of Ravaud Kearney Hawley's career. He was the eldest son of Elias Hawley and Catharine Berry, born in Warren Co., N. Y., January 15, 1821. He had the usual advantages of the times in his school days—a partial academic course at Hamilton Academy, in Madison County; his studies were confined chiefly to the dead languages, Greek and Latin. Later he was placed in Oneida Institute under President Beriah Greene, and was still confined to the same text-books—mostly ignoring all other lines of study through his Freshman year; at the end of which the President gave him a list of Hebrew books he would need for the next year, in order that he might be prepared for a professional life. This not being at all to his taste, he settled his accounts, and found employment to procure enough money to pay his expenses home, where he was rather coolly received, for his father evidently designed him to be a professional man, and before his son's return had received a letter from President Greene, reporting his departure from the Institute to parts unknown, and expressing the probability that "he would end his career on the gallows." Fortunately the President was not a true reader of character.

On his return, he persuaded his father to allow him to go into the lumber camp in Bradford Co., Pa., and begin the study of the occupation which was in accord with his tastes, and which has, from that beginning, enlarged to great proportions, and now occupies his full time, with that of a large corps of skilled assistants.

In 1846 he married Mary Talmage, daughter of James Harvey Talmage of Danbury, Ct., and in 1848 removed to Baltimore, Md., and founded the house of R. K. Hawley & Co., which had an existence of some 35 years. In the year 1861 his wife died, and in 1863 he married Virginia F. Knight, daughter of Theo. B. Knight and Caroline Abrahams. In the year 1871 he founded the Cleveland Saw Mill and Lumber Co., in Cleveland, Ohio, and became its President. In the year 1879 he associated himself with the house of Alger, Smith & Co., of Detroit, as its Vice-President; and finding the large interests now growing up so distant from Baltimore, he removed to Cleveland, Ohio, in 1883,—leaving the care of the Baltimore branch in the hands of his brother Martin and Mr. Thos. P. Stran, both of whom had long been associated with him in the house of R. K. Hawley & Co.; the latter having been with him from boyhood, and being still his trusted partner and Vice-President of the Cleveland Saw Mill and Lumber Co.

In 1885, his attention was called to the timber prospects in Washington Territory, and in connection with Gen. R. A. Alger he made a beginning in the lumber business in what is now the State of Washington. Later, in 1889, he became President of the Adirondack Timber and Mineral Co., which had that year come into possession of a large body of virgin timber land in the famous Adirondack region.

Mr. Hawley is endowed with the qualities which constitute men leaders, and by study and close observation has greatly overcome the disadvantages of his youth, and surpassed most of those who started in the race of life far in advance of him. His career presents a fine example of Christian character; a man of noble mind, great generosity and sterling integrity.

It is to Mr. Hawley that the members of the Hawley family are indebted for this Record, he bearing all the cost of publication, and at the same time bestowing the whole edition upon the author of the manuscript, in recognition of the patient and persistent labor, study and expense he has put upon it during more than forty years, while engaged continuously in responsible business occupations.

Additional to Note 83.

ELIAS S. HAWLEY, No. 1644, son of Seth and Susan (Sill) Hawley, was born in Moreau, Saratoga Co., N. Y.; attended district school winters and worked on the farm most of the time summers until he was 15 years of age. He was fitted for college at Cambridge Academy, Washington Co., N. Y., then in charge of Rev. Nathaniel Scudder Primo, D. D., the Doctor's son, S. Ireneus Prime, being his mate during this time.

He was graduated at Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., in 1833, third on the roll of merit in a class of eighty students.

After teaching some time in Weston Academy, Ct., and at Glen's Falls, N. Y., he removed to Buffalo, N. Y., in the autumn of 1836, and formed a copartnership with the Rev. Philo G. Cook in a private school; and when the public schools of the city were first made free, in 1838, he was appointed teacher for No. 8, the first school opened under the new system, where he remained until his health failed from overwork, when he entered the office of Barker & Hawley for the study of the law, and after three years was admitted at New York city to practice in the Supreme Court of the State; and the next year he was admitted at Saratoga Springs, at the office of Chancellor Walworth, to the old Court of Chancery.

After practising a short time in partnership with Jesse Walker, afterwards Judge of the Erie County Court, he abandoned his profession and engaged in other occupations.

He was Superintendent of the public schools in Buffalo, in 1844, 1846 and 1847; was alderman of the city in 1867 and 1868, during which term he was largely instrumental in securing the land now owned as the City Park of Buffalo.

He was for twenty-three years Superintendent of the extensive Iron Works and Blast Furnaces at Black Rock, now Buffalo; and in 1883 was a member of the State Assembly. For a number of years he has been in charge of large real estate interests, and is now Secretary and Treasurer of the Buffalo State Insane Asylum. He is a member and Director in the Buffalo Historical Society; a life member of the Buffalo Library Association; a member of the Y. M. C. Association; of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin; of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, and of the Buffalo Republican League.

In closing the work of this book, he cheerfully acknowledges his indebtedness, for very cordial assistance in procuring material therefor to many members of the Hawley family, but especially to the following persons: Miss Jennie Shelton, of Birmingham, Ct.; Miss Mattie H. Canfield, of Arlington, Vt.; Miss Mattie Hawley, of Newtown, Ct.; Dr. George B. Hawley, of Hartford, Ct.; Maj. John A. Hawley, of P. Q.; the Rev. B. L. Swan, of N. J.; Sylvester Judd, of Northampton, Mass., the well-known antiquarian; R. B. Lacey, Esq., and the Rev. Samuel Orcutt, both of Bridgeport, Ct.; the last having been employed in the work of seeing the book through the press.

He is also very much indebted to the following works: Farmer's Register, Goodwin's Notes, Savage's Genealogical Dictionary, N. E. Hist. and Gen. Register (44 vols.), Cothern's History of Woodbury, Orcutt's Histories of New Milford and Stratford, Ct., and many other town Histories and family Genealogies now in his library.

This work was commenced, and continued for forty years, as a matter of personal pleasure, he having no expectation of publishing it until a recent proposition to that effect was made by Mr. Ravaud K. Hawley, as shown in the preceding note; and the publication is completed with no possibility of a profitable income from the sale of it. It has, however, been a work of great pleasure as well as relaxation from the cares of responsible business engagements; and the labor has proved to be in a good degree what the writing of poetry was to Coleridge,—

"Its own exceeding great reward."

HOUSE BELONGING TO THE ACADEMY PROPERTY, CAMBRIDGE, WASHINGTON CO., N. Y., FROM PHOTOGRAPH TAKEN JULY, 1890.

I have not been able to ascertain the date at which this house was erected, but it was before 1821, as the Academy Records speak of it in that year. It is said to have been built by Hon. Garrett Wendle.

The maple trees shown in the picture were planted in the year 1829, at which time the premises were occupied by the Rev. Nathaniel Scudder Prime, D.D., then Principal of the Academy; and some of the students (myself included) named in the annexed fastbook of the Catalogue, lived in the family of the Principal.

"On Sunday, December 29th, after an illness of but a few hours, the bright life of this estimable lady was suddenly closed. Having long been known as the amiable wife of the Rev. Charles Hawley, D. D., of Auburn, N. Y., with a widely extended acquaintance, the announcement of her sudden death will carry a pang of grief to many hearts in all parts of the country. She was full of vivacity and intelligence, having apparently excellent health and vigor; cheerful and kind in all relations, of exquisite taste and delicacy, with a charm of grace and manner which ever endeared her to all her acquaintances. She maintained a position of distinction and affectionate regard in every social circle in which she might be found; and by the simple display of her own graceful personality, she contributed generously to the common advantage and enjoyment. As the wife of her honored and lamented husband, who for twenty-eight years was the pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Auburn, she abounded in all charities and deeds of kindness and love.

"Regularly in his company she went the rounds of visiting the different members of the large congregation, calling upon every family at least once in a year, enlivening every household with her cheerful presence.

"When, four years before her, her husband was called away by death, she bore the sad bereavement with that Christian resignation which comes of unflinching faith in the Father's hand, and in the abiding confidence that He doeth all things well. And when the sudden summons came for her, it found her not unprepared. She was simply spared the infliction of pain, and quietly sank away with but little suffering. On the last day of the year her loving friends gently laid her by the side of the husband she loved so well, in the cemetery at Fort Hill, to await the call which will bring both of them forth into a new and better life."

Page 164, No. 2467. Mary was born 1748, and died 4 April, 1765, aged 17 years.

Page 176, No. 2660. Additional to Note 128, on Jehiel Hawley, is the following, taken from Hall's "Early History of Vermont":

"To Mr. Benjamin Spencer and Mr. Amos Marsh and the people of Clarendon in general:

"Gentlemen: On my return from what you call the mob, I was concerned for your welfare, fearing that the force of our arms would urge you to purchase New Hampshire title at an unreasonable rate, though at the same time I know not but that after the force is withdrawn you will want a third army. However, on proviso, you incline to purchase the title aforesaid, it is my opinion that you in justice ought to have it at a reasonable rate, as new lands were valued at the time you purchased them. This with sundry other arguments in your behalf, I laid before Capt. Jehiel Hawley, and other respectable gentlemen of that place [Arlington], and by their advice and concurrence, I write you this friendly epistle, unto which they subscribe their names with me, that we are disposed to assist you in purchasing reasonably as aforesaid; and on condition Col. Willard or any other person demand an exorbitant price for your lands, we scorn it, and will assist you in mobbing such avaricious persons, for we mean to use force against oppression, and that only. Be it in New York, Willard or any person, it is injurious to the rights of the district.

"From yours to serve,
JEHIEL HAWLEY,
DANIEL CASTLE,
GIDEON HAWLEY,
REUBEN HAWLEY,
ABEL HAWLEY."

"One of my relatives has a short account of my great grandfather, Benjamin Hawley, [No. 2], written about himself, of which I quote a part, as follows:

Page 498, Note 115. Since printing the sketch on page 499, a more extended account of the life of Rev. Ransom Hawley, No. 2237, has been received by favor of Mr. R. B. Lacey, of Bridgeport, Ct., as printed in the Standard of that city, as follows, in which it will be seen that his residence was Indiana and not Iowa, as on page 499:

Rev. Ransom Hawley, of Terre Haute, departed this life Tuesday, November 19, 1889, aged 87 years, 6 months and 26 days.

He came to Indiana in 1828, and was ordained and installed pastor of the church at Washington, Daviess Co., Ind., November 21, 1829. It is more than probable that not a member of that Wabash Presbytery, by which he was ordained, survives, Mr. Hawley studied theology at Auburn Seminary, was licensed May 28, 1825, and immediately came to Indiana. In about two years he returned to Bridgeport, Conn., his native place, and was married to Miss Sarah W. Hall. Together they have made their home in Indiana ever since. Mrs. Hawley, in very feeble health, still survives. For some years they have made their home with their son Henry, at Terre Haute. Rev. Ransom Hawley, of St. Paul, is a son. Mr. Hawley preached for six years at Washington, giving one-half his time to Wheatland, Nazareth and Carlisle. For eight years he preached at Bloomington. In 1841 he went to Putnamville, where he resided for nearly forty years, preaching there one-half the time and the other half successively at Bethany, Green Castle, Bowling Green, Poland, Christie's Prairie and Brazil. A short time before his death he stated that he had preached 6,350 times in different places, and had received 540 persons into the churches of which he had charge. He baptized 400 persons and married 370. He organized four churches and built five houses of worship. During his ministry he traveled 90,000 miles, on horseback for the most part; distributed more than 1000 Bibles, 30,000 tracts and many religious books. The field for which he felt responsible in his early ministry, and over which he traveled, preaching whenever practicable, was twenty miles in breadth and sixty miles in length.

Mr. Hawley was rightly styled "the Patriarch of the Synod of Indiana," having spent over sixty-one years as a member of it. Most of the pioneers have passed away with whom in his active ministry he was associated. Through his labors many were added to the Lord. He has come to his grave in a full age, like a shock of corn cometh in his season. His life was a blessing, and his end was peace.—Terre Haute Papers.

E. P. W.

Mr. Hawley was a native of Bridgeport, the son of Ebenezer and Lucy (French) Hawley, whose home was on the site of the present residence of Dr. I. DeVer Warner on Park Place. He was descended from Joseph Hawley, the original settler of that name in Stratford; Samuel, born 1647; Deacon Thomas of Stratfield (Bridgeport); Capt. Ezra; and Thomas, the father of Ebenezer above mentioned.

In his boyhood Mr. Hawley enjoyed only the educational advantages of the public schools of the place. At proper age he was apprenticed to Mr. Thomas Gouge, hat manufacturer, whose shop stood on the site of the Warner building, on the southwest corner of Fairfield Avenue and Middle Street. He was among the subjects of the special religious interest in the parish in 1821, under the pastorate of Rev. Elijah Waterman, united with the Congregational church, with fifty-one others, in October of that year, and soon after turned his attention to the study for the ministry. His preparatory studies were in the academic school conducted by Mr. Waterman, in the old conference room building, which occupied the site of the present chapel of the First Congregational church on Bank Street.

His wife was the daughter of Mr. Josiah B. Hall, formerly a well-known hardware merchant—the father of that special line of trade in Bridgeport. The family of Mr. Hall is now represented here by Mr. Sutes Hall of No. 36 Liberty Street, son of the late E. Silliman Hall, a brother of Mrs. Hawley.

Isack Hawley is named in a list of petitioners to the General Court, from Hadley, Mass., against impost. Nothing more is found concerning him. (Genealogical Register, vol. ix. 91.)

Samuel Hawley is named in a list of prisoners committed to Old Mill prison, England, during the Revolutionary War, taken in August, 1777. (Gen. Register, xix. 136.)

William Hawley is found in another list during the same war, committed to Old Mill prison, England, in 1781. (Gen. Register, xix. 210.)

W. A. Hawley is said to have been the author of a History of the county of Berkshire, Mass., pub. at Pittsfield, in 1829. (Gen. Register, xxi. 321.)

..... Hawley is mentioned in the Genealogical Register, vol. xxii. 185, as Assistant Secretary of State in Massachusetts in 1867.

Pages 488 and 572, Note 83. Connection of the Hawley with the Jacob Hurd Family:

HURD, JACOB, the father of the first below mentioned, removed from the Highlands of Scotland, about June, 1720, and landed at Plymouth, where he remained a short time, then removed to Chatham, and thence to Pine Swamp (now Westchester, Middlesex Co.), Ct.

The above information was furnished by Mr. Joseph Dart, Jr., of Buffalo, July 10, 1847, as the tradition in the family.

Besides the two families of Hurds among the earliest settlers (1639) at Stratford, Ct. (pp. 510 and 511 in this book), there was another family, John Hurd and his wife Mary, who remained at Boston, Mass., where he was made freeman 13 May, 1640. They had five sons: John, Joseph, Benjamin, Jacob, and Samuel. Jacob settled in Charlestown, Mass., and had a number of descendants. (See "Genealogies and Estates of Charlestown, Mass.," by Wyman, vol. i. 530.) The other sons may have remained in Boston, since there were Hurds there or in Roxbury in 1780.

1 HURD, JACOB, Jr., was born in December, 1720; married 28 Feb., 1746 (or 1745, as by record of Rev. Benjamin Bowers, first pastor of Middle Haddam church), Thankful, dau. of David and Mary Hurlbut, of Chatham, Ct., Middle Haddam Society. He joined the church in Middle Haddam, 5 Nov., 1749. She was born in "Middletown Upper Houses," Ct., 26 April, 1727, and joined the same church as her husband, 11 April, 1766.

He is said to have been the second man who followed the coasting business on the Connecticut River. He died in March, 1810, in his 91st year; and she died in 1814, at the age of 87 years. Their children were all born in Middle Haddam Society, Chatham, Ct.

A. H. Hawley

[No. 3863 page 252.]

AMOS HOYT HAWLEY, late Secretary of the Ohio Farmers Insurance Company, was born at Worthington, Ohio, December 14th, 1840, and died at Le Roy, Ohio, September 16th, 1890. He was elected Secretary December 6th, 1866, and held the position until his death. Of Mr. HAWLEY'S remarkable ability, as an underwriter there can be no question. This is attested by the rapid and healthy growth of the company under his management. He was a most genial man, and his house was one of the most hospitable in the country. He made the company second only to his family, and his devotion to each was an attractive characteristic of the man. His death will be long felt by all who knew him as well as by the business interest, to which he had given his life. At the zenith of his usefulness, when maturity of judgment and wealth of experience and learning commanded regard, he died.
